TO
THE MOST REVEREND FATHER IN GOD,
THE RIGHT HON. LORD JOHN GEORGE BERESFORD, BY DIVINE PROVIDENCE
LORD ARCHBISHOP OF ARMAGH, AND PRIMATE OF ALL IRELAND; WHO,
THROUGHOUT MANY YEARS OF NO COMMON DIFFICULTY AND DANGER TO THE CHURCH, HAS EVER SUPPORTED HIS HIGH STATION WITH DIGNITY, AND GRACED IT WITH CHRISTIAN PIETY AND PRINCELY MUNIFICENCE, THIS WORK IS INSCRIBED, WITH PROFOUND RESPECT,
BY HIS GRACE'S
DUTIFUL AND MOST GRATEFUL SERVANT,
THE AUTHOR.

P R E F A C E.

THE design of this work, which, after six or seven years' labour, is now brought to a close, is to rescue from oblivion the names and appointments of the Prelates and other members of the Cathedral bodies of Ireland.

Sir James Ware, about two centuries ago, gave us a History of our Bishops; a work of great labour and research, which was compiled from the most authoritative sources, and is generally considered to be accurate and faithful, while, at the same time, it abounds in interesting information. That work, which its author first published in detached portions, at various times, was enlarged by Walter Harris, and continued to the year 1739; down to which period it may be regarded generally as the best authority for everything relating to the official history of our Prelates.

But we have no such detailed account, even of the Bishops, for the last hundred and ten years; and as for the Deans, Archdeacons, and other members of Cathedrals, I never heard that any attempt whatever has been made to collect their history, or hand their names down to posterity.

Therefore I have endeavoured to supply this omission, so far as the materials now existing, and accessible, have enabled me. These latter persons, indeed, have not moved in so elevated and prominent a sphere as the Bishops ; but I trust that there will be found among them many who have deserved well of their Church and their Country ; many who have laboured earnestly and successfully in their holy calling ; have brought to its service great talents and acquirements, and have employed these usefully ; have set bright examples of piety, contentment, and Christian charity to their neighbours ; have been first in every good work, and have helped forward every real improvement ; and who on all these accounts deserve to be reckoned among those, “ Qui—sui memores alios fecêre merendo.”

I confess I should be deeply sorry, for many reasons, that the names of such men should be allowed to sink into utter oblivion. I wish it to be remembered, not only for the sake of these individuals, but likewise for the sake of the Church at large, that many of those great lights which shone out brightly from the Episcopal bench, in times of difficulty and peril both to Church and State, had been nursed in the bosom of our Cathedral institutions.

And let it not be forgotten, that Irish Prelates and Dignitaries, since the Reformation, have occupied no mean place in the walks of Science and general Literature, as well as in their more strictly appropriate field, Theology.

It may be sufficient here to point to some few of the best-known names ; as those of Archbishops Ussher, Bramhall, and Newcome, of Armagh.

————— Narcissus Marsh, William King, and Magee, of Dublin.

————— Nicolson, and Laurence, of Cashel:

————— William Daniel, Edward Synge, and

Bishops JEREMY TAYLOR, Law, Leslie, Downham, Hopkins, Huntington, H. Jones, Dopping, Clayton, Pococke, M. Young, Butson, Percy, Bedell, Richardson, Stock, Hutchinson, John Bale, Griffith Williams, Nicholas Walsh, H. Hamilton, Chappel, Wetenhall, Ryder, Downes, Berkeley, Browne, Woodward, Synge, Milles, O'Beirne, Mann, Elrington, Mant, Brinkley, Jebb.

Among our Deans were the honoured names of SWIFT, N. Bernard, Abbadie, Story, Burrowes, Graves.

Among our Dignitaries and Prebendaries are reckoned (to say nothing of that eminent friend and patron of learning in olden times, William of Wykeham, who was an Irish Prebendary) Richard Bancroft (afterwards Archbishop of Canterbury); Meredith Haumer, the Chronicler ; Charles Leslie ; Andrew Sall ; Dr. Delany ; Jeremiah Milles ; Dr. Thomas Leland ; Thady Dowling, the An-nalist of his country ; Dr. Wm. Hales ; Nicholas Brady, translator of the Psalms ; Hugh Cressy ; Mervyn Archdall ; Parnell ; Philip Skelton ; Dr. C. Elrington ; and Professor Butler.

Others might easily be added ; and for obvious reasons I must say little of those who are still alive, and at work. But any person, who is acquainted with the [diminished] Cathedral staff of Ireland at the present day, will see that the race of literary men is not yet extinct there ; and will readily recall to mind the names of WHATELEY, Hinds, Romney Robinson, Jebb, Forster, O'Sullivan, and Todd.

I have adduced the foregoing as persons deserving of honourable remembrance, and who have given to the public indisputable evidence of their abilities and learning. But it should be borne in mind, that these form only one class among many. It has been judiciously remarked(a): “It were an unreasonable requisition, that all Divines who in their age have benefited the Church, should have been writers, and all have written for our age as well as for their own. In what other profession would it be supposed that the names of all those, who, in their generation, served God and promoted the welfare of mankind, would, in all subsequent ages, be in the mouth of all the people ; would such a test be applied to any other branch of duty ? I ask men, in deciding on this grave question, but to look to evidence. Let them either examine for themselves, or let them take the word of those who have examined, that these are but a portion only of that noble host, who—when patronage was honestly bestowed, ‘as a trust for the good of the Church of God, for which strict account was to be given’ [Nelson’s Life of Bishop Bull],—did good service to religious wisdom and holiness.”

But whatever differences of opinion may prevail among the public, as to the desirableness or value of such a compilation as I have attempted; on one point, unfortunately, there cannot but be a general agreement; namely, that the lists of these Clergymen, however diligently sought out, must of necessity be very imperfect. For it is well known to those who have made inquiries into such matters, that one of the many sad results of the political convulsions with which this Island has been too frequently afflicted, is the almost total disappearance of ancient Ecclesiastical documents; so that it is nearly impossible to meet with a full and consecutive series of such papers anterior to the Restoration of King Charles the Second.

If it be asked, what has become of those papers? the answer is, that, doubtless, many of them were destroyed long ago, either by accident or design: some of them have passed into lay hands, perhaps in company with property of which they may have contained evidence: that a few others have found their way into public libraries, and other similar repositories, and thus have been saved from destruction. There is great reason for believing, that a considerable portion has been carried into foreign countries at various times ; some are in possession of Maynooth College, and other Roman Catholic establishments : while sadly small is the number which still remains in the Churches and Registries to which they originally belonged(a).

But if all those which remain in Ireland could be brought together, I fear they would be found to form but a miserable remnant of that large body of muniments which, there is reason to think, once existed in our Churches ; and would exhibit a melancholy picture of the losses which have been sustained, during several centuries, by the alternate agencies of violence, treachery, and neglect.

This publication does not concern itself with Church property. I make no inquiry about either (a) Indeed it must be confessed, that inattention to the preservation of public records and documents of every kind is a disease of long standing in this country.

John Hooker, in his preface to the Supplement of the Chronicles of Ireland [Holinshed, vol. ii.], complained in 1586 that the Records “were very slenderly and disorderly kept;” and mentions among the laudable doings of Sir Henry Sidney, the Lord Deputy, that “the Records, which were evil kept, not fenced or defended from rain and foul weather, but lay all in a chaos and a confused heap, without any regard, he caused to be viewed and sorted, and then prepared meet rooms, presses, and places for the keeping of them in safety; and did appoint a special officer, with a yearly fee, for the keeping of them.” (Ibid. p. 152.)

lands or tithes : but, of course, I cannot banish from my mind the conviction, that the loss of our records is intimately connected with the alienation of much of that property: and therefore, if for no other reason, I must ever deplore the occurrence of transactions which have been the means of depriving us of much authentic information, not now to be obtained from other sources.

In alluding to such transactions, as having led to the removal and concealment of Church records, I neither insinuate nor believe that all the blame of them ought to be laid upon the Laity. As, in cases of adultery, the guilt cannot wholly lie upon one side only; so I cannot acquit Churchmen, in times before the Restraining Act of Charles I. (10th and 11th years, chap. 3), of having consented to most improvident disposals of that property, which had been confided to their management as trustees, and ought to have been deemed sacred, and handed down to their successors unimpaired.

I have mentioned that there still remain lists, and some reasonably full accounts, of most of the Archbishops and Bishops of Ireland, at least from the time of the English settlement in the twelfth century. One reason for this may be, that those ecclesiastics occupied a high and prominent position; their official acts were public, and frequently were attended with important results to the community. Secondly, in the earlier periods of our history, it often happened that Bishops filled some of the highest offices of State ; they were Treasurers, Chancellors of the Exchequer, Lords Chancellors, and Lords Justices of Ireland ; so that their personal history became necessarily interwoven with that of the nation. And thirdly, upwards of two centuries ago, before the Rebellion of 1641 had miserably dispersed or destroyed ecclesiastical records, they found in Sir James Ware an inquiring and laborious historian, who collected from all the sources within his reach (and they were many) every available information concerning the successive occupants of the Irish sees.

In the absence of those essential materials, thus lost or dispersed from various causes, a work like the present cannot be otherwise than defective ; and concurrent with its defectiveness is the difficulty of obtaining even that scanty amount of information which is still to be had : for, as the regular channels are nearly dried up, it has become necessary to deviate in all directions, in hopes of picking up, little by little, detached scraps of intelligence ; and all these scattered links have to be arranged and fitted into their right places in the chain.

Those persons, who have had experience in researches of this kind, will not need more words upon this point ; and those, who have not, will scarcely be made to comprehend the various obstacles and difficulties which lie in the way of obtaining information apparently within reach and easy of acquirement ; the inaccuracies, confusion, and sometimes contradictions, which have to be encountered and unravelled; and, after all, sometimes with but an unsatisfactory result.

As it has been my wish and uniform endeavour to procure information from the fountain head, instead of depending upon reports at second or third hand, it will be readily understood, that the first quarter to which I directed my attention was the Diocesan Registries; where ought to be preserved entries of all promotions, consecrations, titles to benefices, rolls of subscription, copies of all Episcopal Visitation Books, &c. &c. &c. To every single one of those, throughout all Ireland, I have gone in person; have examined the records, and made extracts with my own hand.

The second source to be consulted was the Chapter Books of Cathedrals; containing the names of members who were present at Chapter acts, and often minutes of their admission or installation. But, unfortunately, few of these are ancient, and still fewer are as regular and full of matter as they ought to be. And, as Bishop Nicolson remarked in his "Historical Library," concerning the ancient registers of dioceses, "I am afraid they are very few: so many and so great have been the revolutions which have happened in this kingdom, that the scarcity of records, ecclesiastical as well as civil, is not to be wondered at." (p. 10.) But indeed this defect was noticed long before the time of Bishop Nicolson; as may be seen in the following instance:

When Bishop Ryder of Killaloe was required, in 1622, to give to the Royal Commissioners a Return of all Collations and Institutions in his Diocese since the first year of King Henry VIII. he returned for answer: "Never any of the ancient Register-books did ever come to my hands or notice: whereby I know not what hath been done before my time, except in those few that were beneficed in my Diocese before my time, and do yet live." [Cashel Reg.]

And in Dr. Jones' "Remonstrance of divers remarkable passages concerning the Church and Kingdom of Ireland" (4to. 1642): it is deposed on oath, that "about Christmas last, the titular Bishop of Kildare, the Guardian and other priests and friars there, did take away the Chapter-chest belonging to the Cathedrall Church of Kildare, and did cause the same to be carryed to the house of Peter Sarsfield of Tully, Esquire," p. 67(a).

I am obliged to confirm the Bishop's remark by my own experience, and to state that very few of

(a) It appears, from Keith's Catalogue of the Scottish Bishops, that similar destructions of ecclesiastical documents—indeed wilful ones—took place in Scotland also. In his Introduction, p. xi. he states, "the Church records of all the Scottish dioceses, except three, seem to have been destroyed by our Reformers."

And at p. 176: "The frequent revolutions in the Isles, and the confusion which fell out there at the Reformation, occasioned the loss of all the ancient evidences belonging to that See [of the Isles]; which obliged the Parliament in 1617 to settle a new Chapter for the See."

these registries supply anything like a series of documents extending farther back than the Restoration.

In proof of the paucity of documents now remaining in our registries, take the following sketch, respecting those particular kinds of papers which I had to consult for this volume of Munster.

But, so far as regards the earlier part of the seventeenth century, we meet with some extraneous aid, from what are called Regal Visitation Books; many copies of which are existing in various places. These Visitations were holden by Commissioners appointed by the Crown; and the books are of different dates, chiefly in the reign of James I. and again in that of Charles I. under the vigorous government of Lord Strafford: but some dislocated fragments of regal Visitations during the reign of Elizabeth are yet extant in the Library of Trinity College, Dublin, apparently of the years 1588 and 1591. The more recent ones are of 1607, 1615, 1622, and 1633: and it is not improbable, that the state of things disclosed by the last of these led to the enactment of the Restraining Statute (of 1635) alluded to above.

The Royal Commissioners, who do not appear in all cases to have been the persons best qualified for such investigations, received and placed on record, among other particulars, the names of all members of Cathedrals and parochial Incumbents; sometimes adding the dates of their appointments, with occasionally those of their receiving Deacons' and Priests' Orders. They also report generally on the state of the Churches and Church Services, and the seeming sufficiency of their Incumbents. Some of their remarks (perhaps they may be those of the clerk or secretary whom they employed) are curious. For example, in one instance they describe the Bishop of a diocese as "Homo admodum civilis coram nobis ;” as if they had expected to find him either sullen or ferocious at their intrusion, but were agreeably disappointed. In another diocese, Lismore, in 1607–9, they have left the following observation; which I give literatim from a copy in the Royal Irish Academy :

“ There is a personage at Lismore by the name of an Iconomasie, in the possession of Sir Richard Boyle, knight ; and we find that it was the Iconomasie off an office [Iconomast his office [Prerog. Off.]] and charge to keep the Cathedral church in reparation when it was up.” There are many persons who, perhaps, might not readily discover that this “ personage,” who unhappily had fallen into Sir Richard Boyle’s retentive hands, was no other than the Æconomy-fund of the Cathedral(a) !

In further aid of the deficiencies in our Diocesan registries, we have the remains of a very valuable mass of authentic documents, in the Returns of Spiritual promotions, made every half-year to the Exchequer by the Diocesans, in obedience to writs issued by the Crown ; commencing with the year

(a) This strange phraseology of a public officer of the king reminds me of a map of my own glebe, made some fifty years ago by a country surveyor ; who, after duly parading all his scientific knowledge, his magnetic and true meridian, &c., announces that it is “ A map of Thurles glebe, estate of His Grace Charles Egar, Archbishop of Cashel, cumbent of the Rev. Francis Garnett.” By which the worthy geometer intended to express, that the patron of the living was Archbishop Agar, and that the Rev. F. Garnett was the Incumbent.

1615. These formerly were lodged in the Office of First Fruits ; and at the dissolution of that Office in 1833, were transferred to the Record Office, in the Custom House of Dublin. Unfortunately, the earlier part of the series is very imperfect: the papers appear to have been greatly neglected in former times, so that very many of them are missing, and others are much injured by damp and rats; but since their removal to the present repository, under the care of Mr. Harding, nothing can be better than the security of the custody, the arrangement of the documents, and the facility of reference.

I beg here to express my warm thanks to the Right Honorable Lord Eliot, then Chief Secretary, and to the other authorities of Dublin Castle, for having most liberally placed these, and the records in Bermingham Tower, at my command for this publication: and am happy to add, that nothing can exceed the kind attention with which their instructions and my wishes have been carried out, by the officers to whose care those important papers are confided.

Another fertile source of information I have found in the book entitled Liber Munerum Hiberniæ ; which contains, amongst other matters, a list of all Presentations to Spiritual Offices by the Crown, with the dates of the patents, &c. from the time of the Reformation ; beginning with the year 1535, and coming down to 1827. [I believe this list was prepared, from the original grants, by Mr. Lodge, author of "The Peerage of Ireland."] As this imperfect work (containing a great mass of curious information carelessly put together, and deformed by flippant and impertinent remarks of the compiler, most unbefitting a Government employé), which was compiled by order of the English Government, but, for very sufficient reasons, was never published, is little known, the following account of its contents may not be unacceptable :

It forms two large, closely-printed volumes in folio, having for title, "LIBER MUNERUM PUBLICORUM HIBERNIÆ, ab an. 1152, usque ad 1827 : or, the Establishments of Ireland, from the nineteenth of King Stephen, to the seventh of George IV. during a period of six hundred and seventy-five years. Being the Report of ROWLEY LASCELLES, of the Middle Temple, Barrister at Law. Extracted from the Records and other authorities by special command, pursuant to an address, An. 1810, of the Commons of the United Kingdom. Ordered to be printed, MDCCCXXIV."

The work is divided into seven parts; the contents of which, as given in the Table of Contents, are as follow :

TITLE.—Table of Contents, one page. Project of a Schedule to the Establishments of Ireland (one folding sheet). Introduction and Key, one page.
PART I.—Supplement to the History of England ; or Res gestæ Anglorum in Hiberniâ (p. 5–175. Signatures a–xx) : accompanied with the Peerage of Ireland, and abstracts of the Charters of Boroughs. P. 1-80. Sign. [A]-[U]. The Parliamentary Register of the Commons. P. 1-40. Sign. [a]- .

PART II.—The Patentee Officers, in four of the five departments, viz. Civil Affairs, Law, Revenue, and Public Defence; from the end of the reign of Edward I. to the commencement of the late reign [George III.] i. e. Lodge's Patentee Officers, Civil and Military, from A. D. 1541. P. 1-128. Sign. A-3 L.

PART III.—Supplementary lists to those of Lodge, for the same period, and for that antecedent to it [viz. from the eighth year of John]; a Synoptical Table of Chief Governors, &c. (a folding sheet); continuation to the seventh of the King [George IV.] P. 1-40(a), 52^a to 52^z; a folding sheet; Schedule of the Establishments of Ireland in 1760, 1773, 1775; p. 53-148. Sign. A-K. [Nf, Ng]; O-Oo.

PART IV.—Patents of Office, Peerage, and Benefice; Privy Seals, King's Letters, Sign Manuals, and the Oaths of Office. P. 1-160. Sign. A-Rr.

PART V.—The Church of Ireland. The succession of Dignitaries and others deriving under the patronage of the Crown ; including all grants to the Church that are to be found on the Patent Rolls of Chancery in Ireland, from the Reformation to the present time. P. 1-260. Sign. A-3 T*. [Leaf ry 2 * is a cancel.]

PART VI.—Substance of the Statutes of Ireland, so far as they relate to the Establishments ; (1) from 3rd Edward II. to the period of the Union ; (2) from the Union to the year 1827. P. 1-268(a), (255, 256 being double). Sign. A-3 x (3 s 2 being double).

PART VII.—Selections from the Journals of the Lords and of the Commons, to the year 1827. Conclusion, with notice of English Statutes, and the adjudged cases on the Law of Offices. [This last portion does not appear to have been printed]. P. 1-380. Sign. A-5 c.

For Promotions earlier than the Reformation, excepting those of the Bishops, we are greatly at a loss, from want of the original documents ; so that notices of those are to be picked up scantily, from various quarters, and with great difficulty. Some of those Presentations, which were granted by the Crown, are found in the Patent and Close Rolls of Chancery ; a Calendar of a portion of which was printed and published by the late Irish Record Commission, down to the end of the reign of Henry VII. under the title of “Rotuli Cancellariæ Hiberniæ.”

A part of the second volume, comprising the patents of Henry VIII. of some part of the reign of Edward VI. and of James I. (not of Elizabeth), was printed, but has not been published.

Some few Irish promotions are recorded in the voluminous and valuable collection known as “Prynne’s Records,” 3 vols. folio, London, 1665, &c.

Some ancient names, especially of Deans and Archdeacons, taken from old deeds, grants, &c. to which they were parties, are preserved in a manuscript, formerly belonging to Bishop Stearne, of Clogher, but now deposited in the Library of Trinity College, Dublin.

Ware, in his account of the Bishops, has noticed their earlier Church preferments, which often were in some of the Cathedrals; and incidentally has given the names of some other Dignitaries and Prebendaries.

These, I think, form the principal sources, on which we must now depend for information respecting the members of our Cathedrals.

I may add, with regard to the notices of Deaths and Burials, occasionally scattered throughout this work, that in general they have been taken, either from parochial Registers, or from ocular inspection of the Tombstones themselves. I have thought that these particulars might prove interesting, if it were known that they could be depended on.

The reader will scarcely be surprised at being told, that much confusion is created, and much difficulty is thrown in the way of distinguishing and tracing persons mentioned in this work, from the great looseness observable in the spelling of their names in different Records. For instance, names, which sometimes admit a final E, are as frequently spelled without it; as Brown, Browne; Rugg, Rugge; Shaw, Shawe; Gold, Golde; Clark, Clarke, Clerke; &c. &c. Also we find the same persons indifferently written Symes and Symmes; Smith, Smyth; Beecher, Beecher; Pine, Pyne; Rider, Ryder; Austen, Austin; Davis, Davies; Gold, Gould; Kenny, Kenney; Burgh, De Burgo, Bourke, Burke; Barry, De Barry; Simcox, Simcockes, Symcockes; Percevall, Percival, Persevall; Sullivan, O'Sullivan, O'Sullevan, O'Sowlevan; Dermid, Diarmid, Dermod; Donovan, O'Donovan; Donellan, O'Donellan; Hogan, O'Hogan; Magrath, M'Craith; &c. &c.

I have endeavoured to steer my way through these obstructions, with as much care as possible; but as I cannot hope to have succeeded in every case, I must throw myself on the indulgence of the Public.

It has been suggested to me, more than once, that this work would be far more generally interesting if it took a somewhat wider range, and afforded some Biographical Notices of the more conspicuous persons whose names occur in it. Undoubtedly there is much truth in this remark; but on the whole, I felt convinced that it would have been unwise for me to make such an attempt.

For, in the first place, I think it would be foreign to the design of a work like this ; which I wish to be a record of facts, rather than a vehicle of opinions. I think that we stand more in need of books of the former class than of the latter ; and shall be glad if I can add even the weight of a single feather to the deficient scale.

Secondly, it would be a task of much time and difficulty to obtain a sufficient amount of information which should be both interesting and trustworthy. In the early stages of the publication of this book, I requested Clergymen and others to be kind enough to favor me with any such information, suitable to its subject, as they might possess. A few responded to my call, in the most friendly way ; but they were very few ; not comprising one-tenth or one-twentieth part of those who might have given a far higher value to this work, by the additional lights which they could have thrown upon many portions of it.

But it will be perceived, that in a few instances I have relaxed my rule, and entered into some particular personal details : as in the cases of Bishop Bedell, Primate Newcome, and Archbishop Laurence. This was done, merely because I happened to be in possession of some information respecting those Prelates and their writings, which was not known to many other persons, or at least had not been previously made public.

As some persons, who regard us with no great good-will, have not scrupled to represent the Prelates and members of our Cathedrals as an useless set of idle drones, and as men utterly unknown in the fields of Literature and Science (see above, p. vi.-ix.), I have taken pains to meet that unfounded charge, by ascertaining and making known the published works of many of those maligned Clergymen. Wherever lists of such works have been already given,—as in Ware's Writers of Ireland, or his History of the Bishops, in Chalmers' Biographical Dictionary, or similar publications,—I have given references to those authors; but in the majority of cases, especially more recent ones, the particulars have been collected by myself: and I may venture to say, that this book supplies more full and accurate catalogues of the writings of some of our Irish Divines than can be met with in other quarters. See, for instance, the works of Archbishops Newcome, Magee, Laurence, and Whateley; Bishops Bedell, O'Beirne, Matthew Young, Elrington, Mant, and Jebb; Dean Graves; Drs. Elrington, Hinds, Todd, O'Sullivan, &c.; Mr. Jebb, Forster, Lemuel Matthews, Nicholas Brady, &c.: several of these lists having been furnished to me by the authors themselves.

I am aware that persons have frequently expressed a desire to know the birth-places of our Bishops, Deans, &c.; and in what University they received their education. With every wish to give such information, I have not been able to effect so much as I could wish upon this point. As a general rule, in the absence of direct information, I have assumed that they were natives of Ireland, and were educated at the University of Dublin. But wherever I found proof of the contrary, I have been careful to note the fact, for the satisfaction of inquirers.

One other matter I may as well mention here ; namely, that I have added, by way of Appendix to Vol. IV., a list of the Consecrations of our Prelates, from the Reformation to the present time, so far as these have hitherto come under my notice.

It is most gratifying to me to testify that the design of this publication was received on its first announcement with the most kindly spirit in all quarters. The Lord Primate early lent to it his friendly countenance and encouragement ; and I have to make grateful acknowledgments to His Grace, to the Archbishop of Dublin, and to the other Prelates of Ireland, for their liberality in giving me free access to the contents of their Registries. I have experienced the same favor from the Deans of Christ Church and St. Patrick's, and from the Right Hon. Dr. Keatinge, Judge of the Prerogative Court. I feel likewise obliged, for polite attention and much valuable assistance, to Sir Wm. Betham, Keeper of the Record Office, Bermingham Tower ; to Mr. Samuels, Registrar of the Consistorial Office, Dublin ; to the several Diocesan Registrars, those laborious and often ill-paid officers ; to Mr. Lea, Registrar of the Dean and Chapter of St. Patrick's ; to Mr. Harding, Keeper of the Records in the Custom House ; to Mr. Matthews, Secretary to the Commissioners of Charitable Bequests ; to many of my brother clergymen, more especially to the learned and indefatigable William Reeves ; and, of course, to the Rev. Dr. Todd, Senior Fellow of Trinity College, the Sine quo non of every literary enterprise in Dublin. If this work be found to possess any interest or value, much of it is owing to their kind co-operation and assistance.

The errors and deficiencies of a first attempt, like the present work, no one can know better than he who has laboured in vain to remove them. I willingly adopt the sentiment expressed by Bishop Nicolson in his Irish Historical Library : “ Great room there is for amendments, as well as additions ; and either of them, in what dress soever they come, rough or smooth, will be very heartily welcome to me.”

I have done as much as I was able, in difficult and partly untrodden ground, to smoothen the road for those who may follow in my track. I have collected the scattered and mouldering bones from the neglected recesses of our Cathedrals ; it remains for others, to clothe them with flesh, and warm them into life. I have furnished the chambers of our Church antiquaries with a commodious set of pegs ; let those, who are best able, hang upon each one its appropriate history.

THE DIOCESE OF CASHEL.

THE original erection of the see of Cashel is involved in considerable obscurity. Sir James Ware states, that it is a difficult task to point out accurately who was the first bishop. It seems probable, that during some centuries Cashel was subject to Emly as its metropolitan see.

ARMS OF THE SEE.

In Harris's edition of Sir James Ware's works, the following seals are engraved:

1. SIG. MAVRITH EP. CASSEL, 1303. (Representing a bishop seated.)
2. SIG. ED. BUTLER ET M. MAGRAGH EP. CASSEL (bearing a bishop's crosier and pastoral staff, in saltier).
3. SIG. MODERNUM EPISCOPORUM CASSEL. (Two keys in saltier.)

The authenticity of the latter two, at least of their inscriptions, may be more than doubted. The seal of the last Archbishop of the province, Richard Laurence, is deposited in the Royal Irish Academy. The Academy possesses an impression of the seal of Ralph Kelly, A.D. 1346; also of another seal, extremely fine, bearing three full length figures under canopies; beneath the central one is a fourth figure, on each side of it a coat of arms;

the inscription is, SIGILLVM DLIS DEI GRACIA EPISCOPI CASSELLENSIS. Quære, whether DLIS ought not to be DDIS, for David Creagh, who sat from 1483 to 1503? We know of no prelate named Daniel.

Among the Lansdowne MSS. in the British Museum, Plut. LXXVI. E. 418, lettered "Ware's collections for Ireland," occurs a notice of the seal of Marian O'Brien, Archbishop from 1224 to 1238, appended to a deed executed by him and Thomas, Dean of Cashel. The seal bears the figure of a bishop, inscribed thus: MARIAN⁹ DEI GRA. CASSELLINIS ARCHIEP⁹.; and on the reverse side [quære, the private seal] it has the Virgin Mary and Jesus in her arms, with a bishop kneeling, and these words, OFFER OPEM SERVO VIRGO MARIA TUO.

The same deed has likewise the seal of the Chapter of Cashel, a description of which see in its place. [Rev. James Graves.]

A seal of Richard O'Hedian, Archbishop from 1406 to 1440, is appended to a deed of the year 1409, now remaining among the Ormonde papers in Kilkenny Castle. [Graves.]

SUCCESSION OF BISHOPS.

A. D. 901. CORMAC MAC CULINAN is the first prelate, of whom there are any certain accounts. He was descended from Aengus, the first Christian King of Munster; and he himself occupied that throne at the same time with his bishopric, a circumstance not very uncommon in Ireland during the middle ages. He is said to have been a person, not only of great piety, but also of considerable learning, and especially skilled in the Antiquities of his country, having been brought up under the learned and pious Snedgc, Abbat of Disert-Dermada (Castle-Dermot). [O'Connor's Dissertations]. As a temporal prince, he was frequently engaged in wars; and, after various engagements, was killed in battle, in the year 907 or 908.

He is believed to have composed the volume called "The Psalter of Cashel," a work highly commended by the Irish annalists and antiquaries; also a "Genealogy of the Saints of Ireland;" and a lexicographical work of great repute, which still bears the name of "Cormac's Glossary," and is preserved in the library of T. C. D.

After Cormac's death, our information, as to his successors for the next two centuries, is very scanty; the only prelates, of whom Ware could find any account, are the following:

1090-98. DONALD O'HENE, who died on December 1st, 1097, or 1098. The Annals of the Four Masters report of him, that "he was the fountain of religion in the western parts of Europe; was second to no Irishman in wisdom and piety; and was the most learned Doctor of Ireland in the Roman Law."

1118. MILER, or MAEL-MURRY (i. e. servant of Mary), O'DUNAN. He assisted, as the Pope's Legate, in the year 1119, at the Synod of Fiod-Mac. [Todd's MSS.] He died at Clonard, aged 77, on December 24 of this year. O'Donovan brings arguments to prove that he was not Archbishop of Cashel, but Bishop of Meath (or Clonard). [See Miscell. of the Archæological Society, vol. i. p. 155.]

1131. MAELISA (i. e. servant of Jcsus) O'FOGLADA, died in this year.

1137. DONAT O'CONAING, " a prelate celebrated for his devotion, wisdom, and alms deeds," died.

ARCHBISHOPS.

1152. DONAT O'LOHARGAN, Bishop of Cashel, received, in this year, the archiepiscopal pall from John Paparo, the Pope's Legate; who at the same time distributed three others, to the prelates of Armagh, Dublin, and Tuam. Donat died at a good old age in 1158, with the character of a learned and liberal man, especially to the poor.

1158. DONALD O'HULLUCAN succeeded. In his time (A. D. 1172) an important Synod was holden at Cashel, attended by almost every prelate in Ireland; at which those prelates confirmed the kingdom of Ireland to Henry the Second of England, and his heirs. The acts of this Synod are preserved in the work of Giraldus Cambrensis, entitled " Expugnatio Hiberniæ." Donald died in 1182.

1182. MAURICE, or MUIRCHERTACH, " a man of learning and wisdom," succeeded Donald. He died in 1191.

1192. MATTHEW O'HENEY, a Cistercian monk, Papal Legate for Ireland, succeeded. He was a learned man, called, in the Annals of St. Mary's Abbey, Dublin, " the wisest and most religious man of the natives." He wrote the " Life of St. Cuthbert," certain " Epistles," and some other tracts. He died at the Abbey of Holycross, in the county of Tipperary, in 1206.

1206. DONAT O'LOHARGAN (II.), a Cistercian monk, succeeded, and was confirmed by the Pope on April 6th, 1210. He is said to have assisted at the Council of Lateran in 1215; and to have died, either at Rome or at Cîteaux in Burgundy, soon afterwards.

1216. DONAT O'LOHARGAN (III.) (unless his predecessor's death, in 1215, be misstated) succeeded. He erected the town of Cashel into a borough. He voluntarily resigned his see in the year 1223; and died nine years afterwards.
1224. MARIAN O'BRIEN was translated hither, by the Pope, from the see of Cork. The King gave his assent to the translation on August 25 [Abp. King's Collections]. In his time the Pope confirmed twelve Canons in the cathedral of Cashel. In 1228 King Henry III. granted to him, and his successors, the whole town of Cashel, "in pure and perpetual alms," free of all exactions and secular services. The Archbishop upon this summoned his Dean and Chapter; and with their consent, on July 12, 1229, erected a corporation, consisting of a provost and twelve burgesses; and granted to them extensive privileges, reserving certain small rents and property to the see. His seneschal founded an hospital for lepers in the town. Marian died in the Abbey of Inislonaught, on the banks of the Suir, near Clonmel, in the year 1238; and was there buried.
1238. DAVID MAC KELLY, a Dominican friar, Dean of Cashel, and afterwards Bishop of Cloyne, succeeded. He founded a convent of Dominicans at Cashel. He died on March 2, 1252, and was buried in his cathedral, "in the little chapel of the Apostles."
1253. DAVID MAC CARWELL (or MAC CAGHWELL), Dean of Cashel, was elected by the Chapter, whose choice was afterwards confirmed by the King. He founded the chantry of St. Nicholas, at Cashel; likewise refounded or re-constructed Hore Abbey, or "St. Mary's Abbey of the rock of Cashel;" and, displacing some Dominican monks, gave their revenues to Cistercians. His singular motive for this proceeding may be seen in Ware's History. There is evidence that he was of an imperious and tyrannical disposition, and that more than once he was compelled to go over to England, to obtain the King's pardon for acts of violence committed by him. He died at an advanced age, in the year 1289.

1290. STEPHEN O'BROGAN, Archdeacon of Glendaloch, was elected by the Dean and Chapter, by license from the King; and was confirmed by the Pope, and restored to his temporalities in March of the following year. After governing the see about eleven years, he died in August, 1302, and was buried in his cathedral.

1303. MAURICE MAC CARWELL, Archdeacon of Cashel, was elected by the Dean and Chapter, and was confirmed by the King, on May 17. It is thought that he was consecrated at Rome. He appears to have been a man of charitable and munificent disposition; so much so, that he brought himself into considerable pecuniary difficulties. In 1311 the Pope summoned him and some of his suffragans to attend the Council of Vienne, in Dauphinè, but the Archbishop forbore to go. He died in March, 1316. A drawing of his episcopal seal is in the archives of Christ Church, Dublin.

1317. WILLIAM FITZJOHN, Bishop of Ossory, having been warmly recommended to the Pope by King Edward, was confirmed by him in the archbishopric on April 1; although the Dean and Chapter of Cashel had proposed two other persons for the see: namely, John O'Carrol or M'Carwell, Bishop of Cork, and Thomas O'Lonchy, Archdeacon of Cashel. During this prelate's incumbency, the city of Cashel was encompassed with a stone wall. He died on Sept. 20, 1326.

1327. JOHN O'CARROL (or MAC CARWELL), Bishop of Meath, and formerly Bishop of Cork, was promoted by the Pope's provision, on July 18, and was confirmed by the King. He had but a short enjoyment of his dignity, for he died at London, on his return from Rome, about the beginning of August, 1329.

1330. WALTER LE REDE (or RUFUS) Bishop of Cork, succeeded, by the Pope's provision; but he died within the same year. He was a benefactor to the Vicars Choral.
- 1331-2. JOHN O'GRADA, Treasurer of Cashel, "a man of great wisdom and industry," and a liberal benefactor to his church, was elected by the Dean and Chapter, approved by the King on October 10, 1331, and confirmed by the Pope. He died at Limerick, on July 8, 1345; and was buried in the Dominican abbey of that city.
1345. RALPH KELLY (or O'KELLY), a native of Drogheda, a Carmelite monk, Prolocutor and Advocate-General of his order, was appointed by the Pope, and obtained his temporalities from the King, on April 4, 1346. He appears to have been a bold and high-spirited Prelate, maintaining the supposed privileges of the Church with a high hand against his sovereign. He wrote a "Book of Canon Law," and some "Familiar Letters;" but neither of these works is now extant. He died at Cashel on November 20, 1361; and was buried in his cathedral.
1362. GEORGE ROCHE (or DE RUPE), succeeded. But it is doubtful whether he ever was in full possession of his see, or even was consecrated, being unfortunately drowned (probably on his return from Rome), in that year.
1365. THOMAS O'CARROL, Archbishop of Tuam, formerly Archdeacon of Cashel, succeeded, by provision of the Pope, after a vacancy of three years. He was descended from the family of O'Carrol, chiefs of the territory of Ely-O'Carrol; and was said to be "a prelate worthy of having his memory handed down to posterity, on the score - of his great learning and wisdom." He died at Cashel, on February 8, 1373; and was buried in his cathedral.

- 1373 or 1374. PHILIP DE TORRINGTON (or TORYNTON), D.D. a Franciscan friar, was appointed by the Pope; and was confirmed by the King's patent, on September 19; but, as a penalty for having accepted his see from the Pope, the King compelled him to give an annual pension to a clerk to be named by the King, until the Archbishop should provide him with some church preferment; and the King nominated John Hoveden for that pension. [Rot. Canc.] The practice was not unusual at that period. It is probable that Philip was a man of talent, since he was sent as ambassador to the Pope "on very important affairs." He died in foreign parts, in 1380.
1381. PETER HACKETT, Archdeacon of Cashel, was elected about 1381; at least the King's license for election was given to the Chapter on October 12 in that year, and subsequently in that year a writ was directed to the Archbishop, as though the see was full. [Rot. Pat. 5 Ric. II.] Sir James Ware is probably mistaken in stating that the see remained vacant four years. Hackett sat about twenty-six years, and died in 1406.
1406. RICHARD O'HEDIAN, Archdeacon of Cashel, succeeded and was consecrated in that year. He was a benefactor to the see, recovered some of its lands, which had been usurped through the slothfulness of his predecessor, repaired the mansions, built a hall for the Vicars Choral, and gave them some land, and rebuilt St. Patrick's Cathedral, which was in a sad state of ruin. He died, full of years, on July 21, 1440, and was buried in his cathedral.
1450. JOHN CANTWELL, a Bachelor of Laws of the University of Oxford, was promoted by the Pope, after a vacancy of ten years (during which time the revenues of the see had been farmed out by the Crown to the Earl of ORMUNSTER.]

monde). However, he was not consecrated till 1452. He repaired the Dominican friary at Cashel; and endowed the college of Vicars Choral with some property in Clonmel. He died in 1482; and was buried at Cashel. In the year 1453 he held a Provincial Synod at Limerick; the Canons of which are printed in Wilkins' Concilia Magn. Brit. et Hib.: and another, at Fethard, in 1480.

1483. DAVID CREAGH, LL.B. a native of Limerick, was consecrated Archbishop in this year. He is said by Campian, the historian, to have suffered much ill treatment from Gerald Earl of Kildare, the Lord Deputy of Ireland. Having governed the see twenty years, he died on September 5, 1503.

1504. MAURICE FITZGERALD was promoted, by provision of the Pope. He held a provincial Synod in 1511, and another in 1514; some Canons of this latter are still extant; and a list of those of the former one, "Registrum Statutorum Cassiliæ, A. D. 1511," is in a manuscript of T. C. D. [F. 3, 16]. He died in 1523.

1524 [or 1527]. EDMUND BUTLER, a natural son of Peter Earl of Ormonde, was promoted by the Pope in this year; but appears not to have been accepted by the King, nor consecrated, until 1527. Together with his archbishopric he held the Priory of Athassel, near Cashel. He died on March 5th, 1550 $\frac{1}{4}$; and was buried in his cathedral, under a marble monument, adorned with his arms and effigies, erected by himself. This monument has not been preserved.

1553. ROLAND [FITZGERALD] (OR LE BARON), a branch of the family of Fitzgeralds, titular barons of Burnchurch, in the county of Kilkenny(a), was elected by the Dean

(a) This custom of dropping the family name seems to have been common with the Fitzgeralds. We have Milo Fitzgerald, Bishop of Ossory in 1527, calling and Chapter, pursuant to the Queen's letter, dated November 20; and was confirmed by Queen Mary, on November 26. He was consecrated in December, 1553. On July 10, 1556, "the incorporation of the archbishopric of Cashel" took place. [Index to Pat. in Rolls Office.] Roland died on October 28, 1561.

1567. JAMES MAC CAGHWELL (or MAC CARWELL), was promoted, after a vacancy of nearly six years, by letter of Privy Seal, dated January 22, 1567: but his patent did not pass until October 2, 1567. [Quære, whether he was the person whom Queen Elizabeth had previously nominated to the see of Down, in 1564, but the nomination had not been carried into effect?] In the Queen's letter for his investiture, &c. he is said to be a native of that part of the country (Cashel), to be learned in the Scriptures, and a meet man for that charge and function; also, that he had been recommended to the Lord Deputy, Sir H. Sidney, by the Archbishop of Armagh. [Cooper's MS. Ware.] He was consecrated by Hugh Curwen, Archbishop of Dublin. [Elrington.] Soon after his advancement he was severely wounded with a skeine, by a rival candidate whom the Pope had appointed, because he would not surrender his see. During his incumbency the bishopric of Emly was united to Cashel by Act of Parliament. He died in the year 1570.

CASHEL AND EMLY.

1579. MILER MAGRATH(a), a native of Fermanagh, who had been a Franciscan friar, but, becoming a Protestant, had been appointed Bishop of Clogher, was advanced to these himself Milo Baron; and in the next century, Bonaventure Fitzgerald, a student at Rome of some distinction, a pupil of Luke Wadding, was generally known under the title of Bonaventure Baron.

(a) He is called "Meillmorre McCraghe," and "Moylmoorre McCragh," by Tyrone, when writing to Con O'Neill, in 1599. [MS. Lambeth, 632.]

sees on February 3, of this year. From 1582 to 1589 he also held the bishoprics of Waterford and Lismore in commendam; and, on the death of Bishop Wetherhead, (appointed to them in 1589), in 1592, he again held them until 1607, when he resigned those, and received a grant of Killala and Achonry instead. It appears that, by some means or other, he had contrived to recommend himself strongly to Queen Elizabeth; but he was an avaricious and unprincipled man, and a most unscrupulous waster of the patrimony of the sees under his administration, as may be seen in "Strafford's Letters," vol. i. p. 172. Among the Patent Rolls of King James I. anno xxii. (1624), is an important letter from the King to the Lord Deputy, concerning the spoliations which Magrath had made on the archbishopric. The Regal Commissioners, at their visitation in 1615, thus name him: "Archbishop, Miler Magrath, who would give the Commissioners no satisfactory information respecting his revenues. He held four bishoprics, and a great number of benefices in various dioceses." The Roman Catholic writer, Philip O'Sullivan, abuses him violently; alleging, among other crimes, that he was twice married. It appears [from MS. T. C. D. F. 3, 27] that the Archbishop married Amy, daughter of John O'Meara of Lisany, in the county of Tipperary; and had issue, Turlough, Redmond, Bryan, Mark, Mary, Cicely, Anne, and Eliza. Bryan, his fourth son, died in September, 1633, leaving issue, Mark, Philip, James, Redmond, Matthew, and Bryan. His sons, or at least some of them, are said to have relapsed to Popery, though they contrived to possess themselves of several church livings. In 1610 the King passed a letter under Privy Seal, appointing William Knight to be coadjutor to the Archbishop, and to be allotted for his expenses the profits arising from the jurisdiction which the said Archbishop's son, who is a recusant, now enjoys: also, granting the said archbishopric, when vaeant, to the said William Knight. This grant is dated September 25. [Rot. Pat. 9 Jac. I.] On July 26, 1611, Knight had a second grant of the office of coadjutor; and to receive for his maintenance all synodals, fees, and profits arising from the exercise of his jurisdiction. [Ibid.] After possessing this archbishopric no less than fifty-two years, Magrath died in December, 1622, aged 100 years; and was buried in his cathedral, under a monument previously erected by himself; which still remains (miserably patched) on the south side of the choir, and contains some curious Latin verses, which may be seen in Ware's History.

1623. MALCOLM HAMILTON, a native of Scotland, Chancellor of Down, succeeded, by patent dated May 23; and was consecrated at Drogheda on June 29, by Christopher, Archbishop of Armagh. [Elrington.] In 1626 he made a representation to King Charles of the despoiled condition of his archbishopric: and the King issued a letter under Privy Seal, dated July 8, in reply to his memorial. On Dec. 12th, of that year, the King granted him other preferments, in commendam, amounting to the annual value, in the King's books, of £39 17s. 4d. [R. Office.] He died of fever on April 25, 1629; and was buried in his cathedral, where a monument to his memory was erected on the north wall of the choir. The stone still remains in its place; but the armorial bearings and the inscription have been entirely chiselled away, with the exception of the motto, "Pasce oves meas."

1630. ARCHIBALD HAMILTON, D. D. of Glasgow, (younger brother of Sir Claud Hamilton of Cloney,) Bishop of Killala, was translated to Cashel on April 20. He made attempts, during the government of the Earl of Strafford, to recover some of the see lands which had been alienated by Miler Magrath. [Strafford's Letters.] In the rebellion of 1641, the Archbishop was plundered to a large amount. It was deposed that he lost, in goods and apparel, £1200; a library of books, £300; sheep, £500; oxen and cows, £400; horses, £360; cash, £60; he was dispossessed of mortgaged lands and the title-deeds of the same, value £1330; he lost by debts, £1220 13s.; by arrears of rent, £550; by money paid for a lease, which lease was carried off by the rebels, £300; in silver plate, £200; the value of his archbishopric, £1000; arrears of same, £1500: the total amount of his losses was £9090. [Depositions in T. C. D. F. 2, 14.] He died at Stockholm in Sweden, in 1659, aged nearly 80 years.

166⁹₁. THOMAS FULWAR, D. D. Bishop of Ardfert, was translated to Cashel, by patent dated February 1. He has left behind him a "Sermon on Luke, ii. 48, preached upon the anniversary of the Irish Rebellion," 4to. London, 16—. He died on March 31, 1667, aged 74; and was buried at St. John's, Cashel, where his tombstone still remains, bearing the inscription,

"Hic jacet corpus Reverendissimi in Christo Patris Thomæ Fulwar nuper Casseliensis Archiepiscopi: qui obiit 31^o die Martii 1667 ætatis suæ 74."

He bequeathed to the Cathedral of Cashel a silver flagon, paten, and cup, which are still used there in the administration of the Lord's Supper.

1667. THOMAS PRICE, D. D. a native of Wales, Bishop of Kildare, succeeded, by patent dated May 30, and was enthroned on June 9 (FF.) Having been trained under Bishop Bedel, he took great pains to instruct the native Irish in religion, through the means of their own language(a): but all his efforts were obstinately opposed by the Romish priests. He died on August 4, 1685, aged 85, and was buried at Cashel, where his tombstone still remains in St. John's churchyard, bearing a Latin inscription:

"Hic jacet corpus Reverendissimi in Christo patris Thomæ Price nuper Casseliensis archiepiscopi, qui obiit 4^o die Augusti anno Domini 1685, ætatis suæ 85."

After his death, the see of Cashel was kept vacant by James II. who distributed its revenues among the Romish priests according to his own will and pleasure. The Dean and Chapter undertook the guardianship of the spiritualities of the see during the vacancy; and by a formal act, a MS. in the Registry of Cashel [marked A], which acquaints us that he held synodical meetings of his clergy in the years 1667, 1670, 1671, 1674, 1676, 1677, 1679, 1680, 1682.

"At a Synod holden at Cashel, before the Archbishop, on May 30, 1676, upon motion had for the encouragement of the Irish, and for the reducement of them, in as much as may be, to understand the discipline of the Church of England in their own native tongue; it is, therefore, unanimously assented to by His Grace, and the rest of the clergy present, that Mr. Terence Tierney [Tiernan] shall have for his service, for reading prayers in the Irish tongue and other duties [those other duties were, to preach in Irish in the Cathedral on Sundays in the afternoon] for this present year, ending the 29th day of March, next ensuing the date hereof, the benefit of the ensuing acknowledgment [viz. from the Archbishop and clergy, £26 15 0, to be paid to him half-yearly.]

"At a Synod holden in 1678, it is ordered, 'that the Irish Prayers be continued.'

"At another Synod, in 1682, it is ordered, 'that the Irish Prayers do continue.'"

N. B.—Mr. Tiernan was a Roman Catholic convert: he was ordained Deacon by Bishop Jones at Kildare, on 1st October, 1675, and Priest by Archbishop Price, "in King Cormaek's chapel," on June 10, 1677. He was Curate of Cashel, Vicar of Killenaulc, and afterwards of Pallis Green. Another agent of the Archbishop in this good work was Paul Higgins, a convert. He was Vicar of Drom in 1678, and of Templemore in 1682.

Primate Marsh has recorded, that by seeing the efforts made by Archbishop Price, he was led, while Provost of Trinity College, to use all his exertions towards encouraging the study of Irish among the Scholars of that College. See a letter by him to Dr. Thomas Smith, printed by Dr. Todd, from the original in the Bodleian Library, in the "Christian Examiner," for November, 1833.

dated August 4, 1685, they deputed the exercise of their powers in that behalf to one of their body, John Dassy, Archdeacon and Subdean. [Ch. Book]. Such is the account given by Ware; but there is some reason for thinking that James did (at least verbally, if not by a formal instrument) appoint an archbishop, a Roman Catholic, whose Christian name was JOHN. The library of Archbishop Marsh, in Dublin, contains a folio volume, "Graduale Romanum," which has on the title-page a manuscript note in these words: "Die 21mo Augusti, 1688, Ecclesiæ metrop. S. Patritii Casseliæ dono dedit Joan. Archiepus Cassellensis."

1690. NARCISSUS MARSH, D. D. Bishop of Ferns and Leighlin, was translated on February 26. After sitting here only four years, he was promoted to the archbishopric of Dublin; and subsequently to the Primacy. He has left behind him in print:

1. Manuductio ad Logicam (altered and adjusted from the logic of Philip de Trien). 8vo. Oxonii, 1678.

2. Institutiones Logicæ, in Usum Juventutis Academicæ Dubliniensis (anonym.) 8vo. Dubl. 1681.

3. An Essay on the Doctrine of Sounds (Philosophical Transactions, No. 156).

4. A Charge to the Clergy of the Diocese of Cashel. 4to. Dubl. 1694.

1694. WILLIAM PALLISER, D. D. Bishop of Cloyne, succeeded, by patent dated June 26. He was a considerable benefactor to Trinity College, Dublin, where he had been educated; bestowing on it £1500 sterling, besides 4000 selected volumes of books from his library. He also directed Mrs. Palliser to give communion plate to the Cathedral of Cashel; namely, a flagon, two cups, and two patens, in the year 1715. This plate is still in use. The only piece of his composition which has been printed is a Latin oration spoken at the funeral of Primate Margetson, Vice-Chancellor of the University. 4to. 1679. He died in Dublin, on January 1, 172⁶/₇; and was buried at St. Andrew's, in that city.

172⁶/₇. WILLIAM NICOLSON, D.D. a member of Queen's College, Oxford, B. A. in 1679, D. D. in 1702, Bishop of Carlisle, and afterwards of Derry, was translated to Cashel by patent dated February 9: but was never enthroned; for he died suddenly at the palace of Derry, on the 15th of the same month, and was buried in that cathedral.

Bishop Nicolson was a zealous antiquary, and a learned historian and philologist, as is proved by his numerous valuable writings. He also was a proficient in Natural history. I have a small MS. volume written by him, comprising an account of plants growing in Cumberland, and especially in the neighbourhood of Carlisle, as observed by himself in his walks. Harris, in Ware's History of the Bishops, gives but a scanty notice of our prelate's works; and in the History of the Writers of Ireland, there is not even mention of his name. An enumeration of his writings is given in Chalmers' Biographical Dictionary; to which the following particulars may be added:

1. A Sermon preached on the King's Accession. 4to. London, 1685.

2. A Sermon, preached before the House of Lords, on January 30. 4to. 1703.

3. A Sermon preached before the Society for Reformation of Manners. 4to. London, 1706.

4. A Sermon, on the Queen's Accession, preached before Her Majesty. 4to. London, 1707.

5. A Sermon on 2 Kings, ii. 11. 1712.

6. A Charity Sermon, on Ephesians, ii. 8, 9. 1716.

7. A Spital Sermon, on Esther, ii. 8, 9. 4to. London, 1716.

Some manuscript volumes of his Diary are in possession of his family connexions in Ireland, viz. the Mauleverers, descendants of the Rev. Bellingham Mauleverer, son-in-law of the Bishop. And his Common-place book (containing abstracts and extracts, &c.) on various works, viz. on the Psalms; on Purchas' Pilgrimage and Pilgrims; on Baronii Annales; De Præsulibus Angliæ, &c. &c. is preserved in the Library of Trinity College, Dublin. (See also under the diocese of Derry, pp. 321-323).

1727. TIMOTHY GODWYN, D. D. Bishop of Kilmore, succeeded, by patent dated June 3. He rebuilt the palace of Kilmore. He died in Dublin, on December 13, 1729, and was buried at St. Michan's Church.

1729⁹/₀. THEOPHILUS BOLTON, D. D. Bishop of Elphin, was translated on January 6; and was enthroned by the Dean, "immediately after the second lesson," on June 5. [Chapter-Book.] He was a man of great ability; especially learned in the civil and canon law; and had been Vicar-General of the diocese of Dublin, in which he had been ordained Deacon, in 1702, and Priest on 26th September, 1703. [Consist. Dubl.] He was a personal friend of Dean Swift.

While at Cashel, he endeavoured to restore the ancient Cathedral on the rock, and to make the approach to it more commodious to the parishioners: and was a great benefactor to the clergy of the diocese, by bequeathing to them his valuable library(a), consisting of several thousand volumes; with an injunction in his will, that none of them should ever be moved from Cashel(a). These were preserved in a building adjoining the palace; until, under the Act of Parliament for uniting certain bishoprics in Ireland (3 & 4 Will. IV. c. 37), the then Archbishop, Dr. Laurence, removed his residence to Waterford; upon which the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for Ireland took possession of the palace and of the room containing the books. A new library was erected in the cathedral churchyard, by the contributions of the Chapters of Cashel and Emly, the Vicars Choral, and others of the clergy: and Archbishop Bolton's books, with exception of such as had been lost or destroyed during the Rebellion of 1798 (when the palace was occupied by soldiers instead of a bishop), were removed to it, and there remain, agreeably to the instructions of his will.

(a) It ought not to be forgotten, that the Archbishop was seconded in this laudable design by an humble clergyman of his diocese, the Rev. Alexander Christie, Rector of Moyalliffe; who, by his will, dated January 2, 1732, bequeathed a hundred pounds to Archbishop Bolton, to aid in buying books so soon as his library should be conveyed to the public. [Cashel Dioc. Reg.]

While he was Chancellor of St. Patrick's, Dublin, Dr. Bolton published "A Sermon preached before the Irish House of Commons, on the Anniversary of the Irish Rebellion, 23rd October, 1721." 4to. Dublin, 1721. He died in January, 1744; and was buried at St. Werburgh's, in Dublin.

1744. ARTHUR PRICE, D. D. educated at the University of Dublin, and appointed its Vice-Chancellor in December, 1746, was promoted from the bishopric of Meath, by patent dated 7th May; and was enthroned by proxy on the 25th of that month. It was remarked of him, by Harris, the editor of Ware, that he passed successively through every gradation of the ministry.

(a) Extract from the will of Archbishop Bolton, in the Prerogative Office, Dublin, dated January 27, 1743:—"I leave my books in the library and palace at Cashel to my successors in the same see, and to the clergy of the diocese: my will and meaning being, that the said books should remain and continue in the said library for ever, for the use of my successors in the said see, and of the said clergy, and that none of them be removed from thence."

His memory is not had in esteem in Cashel, from the circumstance of his causing the ancient Cathedral on the rock, the chancel of which was then used for Divine Service, to be unroofed and dismantled, under authority of an Act of Parliament obtained in 1748: viz. [a° 21 Geo. II. c. 8.] Having persuaded his Chapter to consent to the removal, and to petition the Lords Justices to that effect, he then obtained an order of the Privy Council, dated 10th July, 1749 (a copy of which is given below as a specimen(a), there being many of the Irish Cathedrals which are under this double condition), for making the parish church of St. John cathedral and parochial; and commenced the erection of the building now used as the Cathedral. He died at Celbridge, near Dublin, on July 17, 1752, and was buried in Leixlip church; but a monumental stone was raised to him at Cashel, which still lies in St. John's churchyard.

NEWPORT, C. HEN: BOYLE.

"Whereas His Grace the Arch Bishop of Cashell, Primate of Ireland, and Metropolitan of the whole Province of Munster, and Bishop of the Diocese of Cashell, has, by his Petition to this Board, prayed that the Site of the Cathedral Church of St. Patrick's Rock, Cashell, may be removed to the Parochial Church of St. John the Baptist, Cashell, and that the said Parochial Church may be made Cathedral and Parochial;

"And Whereas his Grace the Lord Arch Bishop of Cashell, as Arch Bishop of the said Province, and Bishop of the Diocese, has certified his advice and approbation thereto under his hand and Archiepiscopal Seal, and the Dean and Chapter of the said Cathedral Church, in Chapter assembled, have certified their consents under the Chapter Seal, and the Incumbent, Churchwardens, and the Protestant Inhabitants of the Church of Ireland, as by law Established, of the said Parish of Saint John the Baptist, Cashell, and of the other Parishes thereunto united, in Vestry assembled, have certified their consents under their respective hands, and their Excellencies the Lords Justices having given their consent under their hands and seals:

1752. JOHN WHITCOMBE, or WHETCOMBE, D. D. (called by the Irish, Kirwan, i. e. "Ciran bhan," white comb), Bishop of Down and Connor, succeeded, by patent dated August 12; and was enthroned by the Subdean, both in the old and the new cathedrals, on October 12. He died at Cashel, on September 22 of the following year; and was buried in the old cathedral, where his tomb is seen beneath an arched way in the southern transept, leading into Cormac's chapel.

1754. MICHAEL COX, D. D. (a son of Sir Richard Cox, Lord Chancery of Ireland), was born on November 2, 1689, and received his education at Christ Church, Oxford: where a portrait of him is preserved, in the Hall. He was ordained deacon at Dublin, in June, 1712 [Consist. Dubl.]; and, after obtaining various preferments, was made Bishop of Ossory; from whence he was translated to Cashel, by patent dated January 22. He was enthroned (by proxy) by the Prebendary of Newchapel. Having holden his archbishopric nearly twenty-five years, he died at his family seat, Castletown, on May 28, 1779, in the ninetieth year of his age ; and was buried in the cathedral of Kilkenny.

1779. CHARLES AGAR, D. C. L. (brother of James, first Viscount Clifden), was born at Gowran, in the County of Kilkenny ; and was educated at Westminster School, and afterwards at Christ Church, Oxford, where a portrait of him is preserved in the Hall. M. A. 1762 ; D. C. L. 1765. He became Dean of Kilmore, and Bishop of Cloyne ; and was translated to this archbishopric by patent dated August 6. He was enthroned on August 19. Being a man of an enterprising spirit, and of great talent for business, he was confidentially consulted by the Irish Government on important matters, both of Church and State ; and was successively created Baron and Viscount Somerton, and Earl of Normanton. He was very active in administering his diocese ; finished the modern Cathedral, by the addition of a tower and spire ; improved the episcopal residence ; and regulated the choir. In 1801 he was advanced to the archbishopric of Dublin.

He died on July 14, 1809 ; and was buried in Westminster Abbey, where the following elaborate inscription may be seen on his monument :

Sacred to the Memory of

CHARLES AGAR, D. D. Earl of Normanton,

And Archbishop of Dublin.

He was educated at Westminster School, and was a Student of Christ Church, Oxford.

In 1768 he was consecrated Bishop of Cloyne, in Ireland ;
And translated from thence to the Archbishopric of Cashel in 1779.

In 1795 he was created Baron Somerton, of Somerton in the County of Kilkenny,

And Viscount Somerton in 1800 ;

In the following year he became Archbishop of Dublin ;

And in 1806 he was created Earl of Normanton.

He departed this life on the 14th of July, 1809, aged 72 years.

And rests near this spot, in the same grave with his uncle,

The Right Honorable WELLBORE ELLIS, Baron Mendip.

In the course of his episcopal labours

Not less than 17 churches and 22 glebe houses for the residence of his clergy,

Were built under his direction and assistance ;

And he erected, principally at his own expense(a), the Cathedral Church of Cashel.

As a statesman and a prelate, he was an able and zealous supporter

Of the religion he professed and taught,

And of the country whose councils he assisted.

His care for the welfare of the Church is testified

By the numerous Acts of Parliament which he framed

For its permanent regulation and support.

The perfect state in which his dioceses were left,

And the veneration impressed by his talents and virtues

On the hearts of those over whom he presided,

Are far nobler monuments

To his Memory.

1801. Hon. CHARLES BRODRICK, D. D. (son of George, third Viscount Middleton), became Treasurer of Cloyne, Bishop of Clonfert, and afterwards of Kilmore. He was translated to Cashel by patent dated December 9, and was enthroned on December 12. In 1811 he was appointed, by letters patent, coadjutor to the Archbishop of Dublin, who was then of unsound mind, and unequal to the performance of his duties. He died in Dublin, on May 6, 1822 ; and was buried at the family seat, Middleton, in the County of Cork ; where a marble monument, erected to his memory in the churchyard, bears the following inscription :

The Right Honorable and Most Reverend CHARLES BRODRICK, D. D.
Archbishop of Cashel ;
Formerly Rector of this Parish ;
Fourth son of George, third Viscount MIDDLETON.
Born 3rd May, 1761 ; died 6th May, 1822.
And to the Memory of The Honorable MARY BRODRICK, his wife,
Second daughter of the Right Reverend
Bishop of Cloyne.
Born 11th June, 1767, died 28th March, 1799.
This Tablet is erected
By their seven surviving children.

1822. RICHARD LAURENCE, D. C. L. was a native of Bath, the son of a member of the corporation of that city, and received his earliest education at its Grammar School. His mother was a daughter of — French, Esq., of the family of Lord French, in the county of Galway(a). He afterwards went to Oxford, where he became a member of Corpus Christi College, and subsequently of University College (M. A. 1785 ; D. C. L. 1794) ; and at length, in 1814, was made Regius Professor of Hebrew, and a Canon of Christ Church. He received

(a) Archbishop Laurence married Mary Vaughan Princee, daughter of Mr. Vaughan Princee, of Faringdon, merchant ; whose father, the Rev. — Princee, was Vicar of Uffington, in Berkshire ; and married the widow of an Irish prebendary (Thomas Derham, Prebendary of Kilneglory in the Cathedral of Cork), formerly Miss Vaughan, of Golden Grove, in the county of Tipperary. The vicar's brother, Charles Princee, was Præcentor of Cashel and Chancellor of Waterford, during the reign of Charles II. and James II. from 1666 to 1686.

Thus, after more than a century and a half, the Archbishop and his children renewed their family connexions with Ireland, and in particular with the dioceses of Cashel, Emlý, and Waterford.

Priest's orders from Dr. Shute Barrington, Bishop of Salisbury (afterwards of Durham), on June 20, 1784. On July 4, 1787, he was instituted to the vicarage of Coleshill, Wilts, and in 179— to that of Great Cheverell, Wiltshire, on the presentation of the Earl of Radnor. Soon afterwards he became Rector of Rolleston in Wiltshire; in 1805 Rector of Mersham in Kent; and in 181— Rector of Stone, near Dartford. He was born in 1760, and was younger brother of Dr. French Laurence, an eminent civilian, Member of Parliament for Peterborough, the intimate friend of Edmund Burke: and through him was introduced to the society of many of the leading characters of that day, including Burke, Sir Joshua Reynolds, Lord Fitzwilliam, and the chief leaders of the Whig party. About the commencement of the French Revolution, he amused himself by the composition of several short pieces in verse, chiefly on political subjects, directed against some of the wild revolutionary opinions of that day. Some of these obtained considerable popularity at the time, but the author was not generally known; among them were,

1. The Monkeys in Red Caps, an old story, newly inscribed to the Club of Jacobins, by Timothy Thrum, Esq. 4to. 1792.

2. Heroic Epistle to Joseph Priestley, LL. D. 4to. 1791. 2nd edit. 1792.

3. A Second Epistle to the same. 4to. 1791.

4. The Brothers, a politico-polemical eclogue, humbly inscribed to the Rev. Mr. Timothy and the Rev. Dr. Joseph Priestley. 4to. 1792.

5. A Poetical Epistle to the Hon. Thomas Erskine. 4to. [s. a.]

6. The Golden Age, a Poetical Epistle from Erasmus Darwin, M. D. to Thomas Beddoes, M. D. 4to. 1794.

The Archbishop from his youth was of retired habits; he became a very learned theologian and a good canonist; and subsequently, turning his attention to the study of the Oriental languages, attained to high eminence in that department of literature. During his whole life his hours of relaxation were given to pursuits in practical Chemistry, a science of which he had been fond from his earliest years. The activity of his mind, and the bent and extent of his studies, may be understood by the subjoined list(a) of the works which he composed or edited, form, as Deputy Professor of Civil Law, and afterwards as Professor of Hebrew; and where he could avail himself of the society of learned men, and the rich stores of ancient learning preserved in the Bodleian and other Libraries.

Most unwillingly, after repeated solicitation of the Prime Minister, the Earl of Liverpool, he consented to leave his Academic pursuits, and undertake the cares and duties of the Archiepiscopal office, being then in the sixty-third year of his age.

His patent for this See bears date July 11: he was consecrated (in company with Dr. Bissett, Bishop of Raphoe) at the Chapel of Dublin Castle, on July 21, by the Archbishop of Armagh, assisted by the Bishops of Kildare and Down; and was enthroned at Cashel, on July 24.

After his elevation, he constantly resided at Cashel; until the Church Temporalities Act (3 & 4 Will. IV. c. 37), annexed the dioceses of Waterford and Lismore to those of Cashel and Emlý, permitting the Prelate then in possession to select the future place of residence for himself and his successors.

30. The Visitation of the Saxon Reformed Church in the Years 1527 and 1528, with an Introduction, and some Remarks on Mr. Newman's "Lectures on Justification." 8vo. Dublin, 1839. [The Archbishop had finished and prepared this for the press, but died before it was printed.]

Archbishop Laurence also edited a work by his brother, Dr. French Laurence, entitled "Critical Remarks on detached Passages of the New Testament, particularly the Revelation of St. John." 8vo. Oxford, 1810; and "The Epistolary Correspondence of Edmund Burke and Dr. French Laurence." 8vo. Lond. 1827.

Archbishop Laurence, at this time an aged man, was personally disinclined to remove himself to a new spot, and form a fresh acquaintance: but, judging that Waterford was a more important post for a Bishop of our Church, than the smaller city of Cashel, however closely this latter was connected with ancient ecclesiastical recollections; he disregarded all private feelings on the question, decided that Waterford should be the future residence of the Bishops, and forthwith took up his abode there.

After having, in the last year of his life, published the "Book of Enoch" in the Æthiopic language, from a manuscript brought to Europe from Abyssinia, by Bruce the traveller, and having likewise superintended new editions of some of his former publications, he died at Dublin, on December 28, 1838, aged nearly 79; and was buried in the vaults of Christ Church Cathedral, in the choir of which a marble tablet is placed to his memory.

The clergy of Cashel, desiring to mark their sense of his worth, erected a handsome monument of marble in their Cathedral, bearing the following inscription:

Sacred to the Memory
Of the Most Reverend RICHARD LAURENCE, LL. D.
Lord Archbishop of Cashel, Bishop of Emly, Waterford, and Lismore,
And Primate of Munster,
Formerly Regius Professor of Hebrew in the University of Oxford,
Who departed this life on the 28th December, 1838,
In the 79th year of his age.
The learning of this eminent Prelate was extensive and profound;
Age could not damp his literary ardour;
And his numerous works bear evidence of talents
Uneasingly devoted to the service of that Church
Which, from conviction of its excellence, he highly prized.
This Monument was erected
By the clergy of the united diocese of Cashel and Emly,
Over whom he presided during an eventful period of 17 years,
In testimony of their grateful recollection,
Both of his abilities and his kindness.

And in that of Waterford a small slab records the simple fact, that it was owing to Archbishop Laurence that Waterford escaped being deprived of a resident Bishop(a).

At his death the Metropolitan rank and rights of the see of Cashel were extinguished, and it became suffragan to the Archbishopric of Dublin(b).

Dublin, and likewise of Cork, was elected Dean of St. Patrick's in December, 1840. This election was disputed, but was finally decided in his favour by the Court of Delegates. After holding that dignity (undisputed) not more than a few days, he was raised to the Episcopal Bench, by patent dated January 12; and was consecrated in St. Patrick's Cathedral, on the 29th of that month, by Richard, Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Cork, &c. and of Ossory and Ferns.

DEAN AND CHAPTER.

There is no certain evidence to shew the period at which the Chapter of Cashel was originally formed. In the year 1224, Pope Honorius III. confirmed the number of twelve Canons and a Dean in that cathedral. Some few years afterwards, we find a person styling himself Præpositus, i. e. Provost. For centuries past the Chapter has consisted of five dignitaries and six prebendaries, the Archbishop being one, holding the prebend of Glan-keen as parcel of his see. The prebend of Crohane has been united to the archdeaconry for more than 200 years. It has been thought, that the Chapter of Cashel had a charter permitting them to elect their Dean. At the close of the reign of Queen Mary, and the beginning of that of Queen Elizabeth, several Deans appear to have come in by election. [Austin Cooper's MS. additions to Ware.]

CHAPTER SEAL.

A deed, of about the year 1230, made by Marian O'Brien, Archbishop, and Thomas, Dean of Cashel, has a seal appended, which bears the figure of a church, with the legend SIGILLUM CAPITULI CASSELLENSIS. See a notice of this, among Sir J. Ware's Collections in the British Museum, MSS. Lansdowne, Plut. LXXVI. E. 418. [Graves.]

A seal of the Dean and Chapter, of the date 1315, is engraved in Harris's edition of Ware's Bishops; and likewise a second, differing from the former, bearing the date 1739(a). But from the initials E. D. occurring on this latter, I conjecture that it was engraved during the time when Essex Digby was Dean, viz. at the Restoration of King Charles II. about which period I have observed that several Deans and Chapters caused new seals to be made; their former ones having been destroyed or lost during the troubles of the Rebellion, and the disorders which followed under Oliver Cromwell.

DEAN'S JURISDICTION.

It appears, from the ancient document recited above, at p. 30, that the Dean's jurisdiction, whatever may have been its nature and limits, extended in point of time to about nine months in the year, "à crastino S. Joannis Baptistæ usque ad crastinum S. Patricii."

In 1660 the Dean appointed his own special Registrar of his Court. [Chap. Book.]

DEANS.

Between A. D. 1224 and 1238, THOMAS appears as Dean, in a grant by Marian O'Brien, who was Archbishop during that period. [King's Collections, and Ware's MSS.]

Before 1238, DAVID MAC KELLY, a Dominican monk, was (a) It is observable, that on many of the seals engraved in Harris's edition of Ware, this same date of 1739 is given. It is most probable, that this is not the real date of the seals themselves; but rather it intimates that these seals were then in use in the respective dioceses, namely, at the time of the publication of that book.

Dean; he was made Bishop of Cloyne, which see he resigned in 1238, for the archbishopric of Cashel. He founded the Dominican Friary of Cashel; died on March 2, 125 $\frac{2}{3}$, and was buried in his cathedral. [Ware.]

Before 1253, DAVID MAC CARWELL was Dean; and, like his predecessor, was advanced (in 1253) to the archbishopric. He founded the Cistercian community of Hore Abbey; and died in 1269. [Ware.]

1254. THADDEUS O'BRIEN appears. [Cod. Clarend. 46.]

1260. KERAN, or KYRAN, was Dean. Having been harshly treated by Archbishop Mac Carwell, who, he alleges, had spoiled his deanery and imprisoned him, he appealed to the Pope; and by him was recommended to the protection of the King of England. [Ware.]

1267. ROLAND was Dean. The Annals of Multifernan record, at this year, "Rolandus Decanus Cassellensis capitur a Regalibus" (i. e. the King's party.)

1282 and 1289. ANTONIUS appears as Dean. [Cod. Clar. 46.]

1302–1306. PHILIP BRODER is Dean. [MS. T. C. D. F. I. 18. and Cod. Clar. 46.]

1346. RICHARD FITZJOHN. [Ibid.]

1402–1412. RICHARD BARRY. [Cod. Clar. 46.]

1429–1437. DAVID O'DWYER. [Dioc. Reg. and King's Collect.]

1452. CORNELIUS. [Cod. Clar. 46.]

1467–1485. JOHN HEDIAN, or O'HEDIAN, is Dean. [Archdall's Monast. and Cod. Clar. 46.]

15—. PETER BUTLER was Dean. He died in 1558. [Cooper's MS. additions to Ware.]

1558, or 1559. WILLIAM STAPLETON was elected by the Chapter, on May 1, upon the death of Peter Butler.

[Cooper's MS. additions to Ware.]

15—. JOHN M^cCODY succeeded. He died in 158 $\frac{3}{4}$. [Id.]

158 $\frac{3}{4}$. ROBERT COMAN was elected by the Chapter, on Feb. 5, and was confirmed by the Archbishop on the day following. [Ibid.] He died in 1605.

1605. DERMOT O'MEARA was elected December 21, and confirmed by the Archbishop on the next day. He had been a convert from the Church of Rome, and afterwards returned to it. Dr. John Todd, who had been presented by the Crown, disputed O'Meara's right; but being soon afterwards promoted to the bishopric of Down, he left the dispute undecided. On O'Meara's departure, the Chapter elected Andrew Donellan (whom see under the diocese of Emly) on January 6, 160 $\frac{6}{7}$, and the Crown presented Lewis Jones, who eventually retained possession; though the right of patronage remained in dispute for many years, and the Royal Visitors in 1615 report it as "litigious between L. Jones and Donellan." [Ibid.]

1606. JOHN TODD, D. D. Treasurer of Lismore, formerly a Roman Catholic, and a Jesuit, was presented on May 20. [Lib. Mun. Hib.] In the next year he was raised to the bishopric of Down.

1607. LEWIS JONES, a native of Monmouthshire, or Wales, educated at Oxford, was presented on June 16. The Regal Visitors in 1615 state, that he had improvidently leased the revenues of his deanery to a son of Archbishop Miler Magrath. In 1629 he was made a Prebendary of Emly. Archbishop Ussher very warmly recommended him to Bishop Laud, in 1629, as a fit person to succeed to the archbishopric of Cashel, then vacant: reporting, that he was sixty-nine years old, and had been Dean twenty-two years; during which time he had rendered good service to the archbishopric, had restored the cathedral church, and had established a choir there, which before his time had been quite extinguished. [Bodleian Library.] This recommendation did not prevail at that time; but soon afterwards, viz. in 1633, Dean Jones was raised to the bishopric of Killaloe. He reached the age of eighty-six years; and two of his sons became bishops.

1633(a). WILLIAM CHAPPELL, B. D. an Englishman, a Fellow of Christ's College, Cambridge, succeeded, by patent dated August 9, and was installed on August 20. In 1634 he was elected Provost of Trinity College, Dublin; and in 1638 he was advanced to the bishopric of Cork.

For his character and writings, see Ware's Bishops, p. 566.

1638 $\frac{9}{10}$. RICHARD HOWLETT was installed Dean on March 9. [FF.] In the Rebellion of 1641 his house and goods at Cashel were plundered by the rebels, on Jan. 1, 1641-2. [MS. T. C. D. F. 2. 14.]

1660 $\frac{1}{2}$. ESSEX DIGBY, D. D. (son of Sir Robert Digby of Coleshill, in Warwickshire, afterwards Baron Digby of Geashill, and of Lady Lettice Fitzgerald, Baroness of Ophaly), was educated in the University of Dublin. The Crown had presented him to the prebend of Geashill, in the cathedral of Kildare, before he had taken orders, and while he was a student at Dublin University! [Lib. Mun.] He was presented to this deanery on February 6, and was installed on February 27. [FF.] In 1670 $\frac{1}{4}$ he was raised to the bishopric of Dromore.

1671. CÆSAR WILLIAMSON, D. D. an Englishman, educated at Westminster School, and at Cambridge, came to Ireland about the year 1646. In 1654 we find him a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, and Public Orator of the University. In 1661 he became a Prebendary of St. Patrick's; and in 1664 Treasurer of Christ Church, Dublin. His patent for this deanery is dated April 1; and he was installed on August 29. He died in May, 1676. He published a piece, entitled "Parænesis in Henricum Cromwellum, Deputatum Hiberniæ." 12mo. Dublinii, 1658.

(a) In a copy of a Regal Visitation Book (of 1607?) in Bermingham Tower, Dublin Castle, and another in the Prerogative Office, the following entry occurs: "Decanus, Andreas O'Donnellan per electionem Capituli et confirmationem Archiepiscopi." This relates to Emly diocese, not to Cashel. Donellan was rector of Pallis Green, in Emly; and is mentioned in a Regal Visitation of that diocese as usurping the prebend of Doone, which, at that time, was the Archbishop's mensal.

1676. JOHN GLANDIE, or GLENDIE, B. D. a Prebendary of Christ Church, Dublin; instituted July 4. He died on January 22, 169 $\frac{3}{4}$; and was buried in his church of St. Michael's, Dublin.

In his will, dated September 17, 1690, he says: "I do give and bequeath to the poor of St. Michael's, Dublin, and St. John's, Cashel, the hundred pounds sterling, due to me by bond from Jeremy Jones, of Ardneglass, and John Connor; with all the annual rents; to be divided between the poor of the said parishes. [Vestry Book of St. Michael's, Dublin.]

- 169 $\frac{3}{4}$. HENRY PRICE, M. A. (D. D. in 1696) Treasurer, and a Prebendary, of Kildare. His patent is dated Feb. 15; he was instituted and installed(a) March 17. He died in 1706.

1706. WILLIAM MULLART, or MAILLART, B. D. a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin; patent dated September 30; instituted and installed on April 4, 1707. He died on May 18, 1713; and was buried in St. John's churchyard.

1714. JOHN WETHERBY, D. D. Dean of Emly; patent dated April 29; instituted April 30; installed May 7. In 1723 he became Archdeacon of Emly. He died in Dublin, on July 24, 1736, and was buried at St. Nicholas' within the Walls.

(a) In the year 1696 the Chapter passed a resolution that all future Deans or Members of Chapter should have their installations registered in the Chapter Book.

1736. WILLIAM GORE, M. A. a native of the County of Tipperary (son of Dr. William Gore, Dean of Down), was ordained Deacon, at Killala, in September, 1732; and Priest, at the same place, in June, 1734: patent dated October 14; instituted and installed November 2. In 1758 he was promoted to the bishopric of Clonfert; and subsequently to Elphin, and to Limerick.
1758. THOMAS PAUL, M. A. Patent dated April 30; installed June 5. He resigned in 1769.
1769. JOHN JEBB, D. D. (great uncle of Dr. John Jebb, Bishop of Limerick), was an Englishman, educated at Peter-House, Cambridge; he came to Ireland as Chaplain to the Duke of Devonshire, Lord Lieutenant; and was made Treasurer of Christ Church, Dublin, in 1740. His patent for this deanery is dated June 22. He died in 1787.
1787. JOSEPH PALMER, M. A. Chancellor of Ferns, was presented May 26; instituted June 22; installed same day. In 1801 he obtained the Præcentorship of Waterford. He died at Bath, after a long continuance of ill-health, on May 1, 1829.
1829. SAMUEL ADAMS, M. A. a Prebendary of Elphin; presented August 10; instituted and installed August 29. He is the present Dean.

He has published, 1. A Sermon on the Death of the Rev. A. Edwards, Curate of Cashel. 8vo. Cork, 1836.

2. A comparative View of the Anglican and Roman Churches. 12mo. Dublin, 1836.

PRÆCENTORS.

Between 1226–1238, a person signs himself “D. Præpositus” (quære if Præcentor?) to a deed executed by Marian, Archbishop of Cashel, and Thomas the Dean: it is also witnessed by the Chaneellor and the Archdeacon. [Ware’s MSS.]

1437. JOHN BARRY appears. [Dioc. Reg.]

14—. JOHN O’HEDIAN was Præcentor, and also a Canon of Kilkenny; he was succeeded in both these preferments by William Bourke in 1495. [Rolls’ Office.]

1495. WILLIAM BOURKE was presented by the Crown, on September 28. At the same time the King gave him a prebend in the Cathedral of Kilkenny. [Rot. Pat. 11°. Hen. VII.]

16—? STEPHEN DOWDALL appears. [MS. T. C. D. E. 3. 14.] (Perhaps the person who was a Vicar Choral). He was ordained Deacon and Priest, on January 16, 160 $\frac{1}{2}$ (a). In a Regal Visitation Book he is described as being “altogether unlearned, not understanding any Latin, and only able to read English.” It appears that the Visitors deprived him.

160 $\frac{7}{8}$. JOHN DARLING, M. A. presented by the Crown on February 28. [Rot. Pat. 5 Jac. I.] On June 22, 1608,

(a) This custom of conferring both Deacon’s and Priest’s orders at the same time, or within a very few days of each other, prevailed extensively in Ireland in the latter part of the sixteenth and the beginning of the seventeenth century. However, it was not generally approved. About the year 1591 the Royal Commissioners of Queen Elizabeth deprived one incumbent, “propter trialitatem beneficiorum incompatibilium,” and another, “propter ordines per saltum receptos.” [MS. T. C. D. E. 3. 14.]

he was appointed Dean of Emly; the deanery being united to this preferment, on account of the smallness of their incomes. [Rot. Pat.]

16—. — CRAYFORD was Præcentor. [See next entry.]

1627. WILLIAM BERKELEY, or BARCLAY, M. A. (ordained Deacon, October 10, 1624; Priest, July 3, 1625), was collated May 26, "on the resignation of Crayford." [Reg. Vis.] N. B. This book of Regal Visitation calls him "Gavin," not "William." Installed June 23.

1629. GAVIN BARCLAY, or BERKELEY, presented by the Crown, sede vacante; admitted July 18; installed August 8. [FF.] In the Rebellion of 1641 he was robbed of property worth £976, besides his Church living, worth £260. [MS. T. C. D. F. 2. 14.] He held this dignity till 1660-1; in which year he (or another person of both his names) was made Archdeacon of Killaloe.

1661. RICHARD BURGH, B. D. admitted April 8. I am of opinion that he was also Præcentor of Emly at this time.

166 $\frac{5}{6}$. CHARLES PRINCE, M. A. an Englishman, appears. [Quære, whether he was Vicar of Polroan, in the diocese of Ossory, in 1639?] In 1641 he was Vicar of Tubrid, in the diocese of Lismore; and in the Rebellion of that year, having fled for safety to the castle of Ballyroche, or Rochestown, with several others, was besieged and taken prisoner by the rebels under the Lord of Cahir, having lost all his papers, his letters of orders, and property amounting to £413. [MS. T. C. D. F. 2. 14.] In 1666 he was made Chancellor of Waterford; and in 1669 a Prebendary of Lismore. He died in 1686.

1686. JOHN DOHERTY, M. A. presented by the Crown, sede vacante; patent dated June 22; instituted and installed, August 27. He was also Prebendary of Doon, in the church of Emly. In 1703 he was the Chapter's Proctor to the Convocation. He died on November 3, 1714. By his will, he left £100 to trustees; the interest to be applied towards the instruction of the poor children of the parishes of Doone, Templenciry, Donohill, and Ballinure. [Account of the Charity Schools of Ireland. 4to. 1719.]

1715. WALTER THOMAS, M. A. a Scholar of Trinity College, Dublin; collated July 6; installed same day. In 1715 he was the Chapter's Proctor to Convocation. In Dec. 1719, he was made Rector of Thurles, which preferment he held till the year 1744. In 1720 he resigned this præcentorship, and in 1722 became Treasurer.

1720. HENRY MERRIFIELD, M. A. a Prebendary of Emly, succeeded. He died in October, 1727; and was buried at Cashel.

1727. DANIEL HEARNE, M. A. a Prebendary of Emly; collated —. In November, 1727, he was elected the Chapter's Proctor to Convocation. [Chap. Book.] He resigned the præcentorship shortly afterwards, and was made Archdeacon.

1728. RICHARD BAINBRIGGE, M. A. Chancellor; collated March 7. He died in 1733.

1733. JAMES BORDES, Clk., Prebendary of Killardriff; collated Dec. 14; installed Dec. 21. He died in 1746.

1746. DAVID PRICE, Clk., collated October 11; installed October 12. He vacated in 1756.

1756. SHAPLAND SWINY, or SWEENY, Clk. Chancellor; collated August 30. He was admitted to a seat in Chapter, on June 8, 1757. He resigned on March 3, 1789, and became Prebendary of Fennor.

1789. RICHARD FITZGERALD, M. A. collated March 31; installed same day. He died in 1798.

1798. Honorable ROBERT PONSONBY TOTTENHAM, M. A. (second son of the first Marquess of Ely), was educated at Christ Church, Oxford (M. A. 1797; D. D. 1805), and MUNSTER.]

was ordained Deacon, at Tuam, on October 27, 1797; and Priest, at the same place, on March 11, 1798. He was collated May 8; installed May 16. In 1804 he was promoted to the bishopric of Killaloe; and subsequently to Ferns, and to Clogher.

1805. RICHARD BAGWELL, M. A. Dean of Clogher; presented by the Crown on February 18; installed March 6. He died on December 25, 1825.

1826. RICHARD FRENCH LAURENCE, M. A. an Englishman, was educated at Merchant Tailors' School, and became a Fellow of Pembroke College, Oxford; collated February 15; installed February 18. He resigned on August 26 in the same year, and became Treasurer.

1826. BENJAMIN HOLFORD BANNER, M. A. an Englishman, was educated at Merchant Tailors' School, and afterwards was a Fellow of St. John's College, Oxford; he was collated August 26; installed same day. He is the present Præcentor.

CHANCELLORS.

1230 (circa). RADULPHUS DE BELLOFAGO signs (as Chancellor of Cashel) a deed of Marian the Archbishop. [Ware's MSS. in MSS. Lansdowne, LXXVI. E. 418.]

1437. WILLIAM CANTWELL appears. [Dioc. Reg.]

1550. THOMAS CANTWELL appears. [Cod. Clar. 36.]

1561-2. EDMUND HIFFERNAN was Chancellor, on Feb. 18, of this year; when the Earl of Desmond recommended him to the Lord Deputy, as a fit person to be made Archbishop of Cashel.

1563. JOHN ARCHDEACON was presented by the Crown, on June 21. [Lib. Mun. Hib.]

16—. JOHN HASSHEA (Hassy, O'Hasshea, or O'Shea?)
[Regal Vis.] He was deprived in 1608.

1608. THOMAS WILSON, presented by the Crown on May 18. [Rot. Pat.] In 1610 he was made Dean of Lismore.

1615. RICHARD PARR, a Vicar Choral of Lismore. [Reg.
Vis.] He must have been a mere tool of the Archbishop;
for the Royal Commissioners remark, that "all of the income, except five pounds, is received by the Archbishop's son, Redmond Magrath." Magrath died in 1623.

16—. THOMAS BOYD, or LLOYDE, appears to have been Chancellor. Michael Boyle's patent, dated 1623, recites, that the dignity was then "vacant by the cession or resignation of Thomas Boyde, or Lloyde;" and had lapsed to the King, the see of Cashel being vacant. [Reg. Vis.
of 1633.]

1623. MICHAEL BOYLE, D. D. a native of London (brother of Richard, Archbishop of Tuam, and uncle of Michael, Archbishop of Dublin), was educated at Merchant Tailors' School, and at St. John's College, Oxford. Coming to Ireland, he was made of Dean of Lismore (through the powerful interest of his cousin, Richard, first Earl of Cork), in 1614; and Bishop of Waterford in 1619. King James granted him this Chancellorship in commendam, by patent dated May 17, the see being then vacant; he was admitted by mandate from the Primate, on Dec. 10, and was installed on January 29 following. He died at Waterford, on December 27, 1635; and was buried in his cathedral. [Ware.]

1636. SAMUEL PULLEIN, D. D. was a native of Yorkshire, and was educated at Cambridge. In 1634 he obtained a prebend in the Cathedral of Kilkenny; and was appointed, by the Crown, to this dignity, on April 7. [Lib.
Mun.] He was likewise Rector of Knockgraffon, in this diocese. In 1638 he was made Dean of Clonfert. In the rebellion of 1641 he was plundered of all his goods and church income, to the amount of £4652: and his "pair of wind instruments" (i. e. organ) was broken by the rebels [MS. T. C. D. F. 2. 14]; but the lives of himself and his family were saved, through the influence of James Sall, a Jesuit of Cashel, in whose house he remained a close prisoner for some days. After this ill usage he returned to England. Upon King Charles' Restoration, he was recommended to the King's notice by the Duke of Ormonde; and in 1660⁹ was advanced to the archbishopric of Tuam. [Ware.]

1660⁹. HUGH GORE, D. D. an Englishman, was educated at the school of Lismore; then went to Oxford, and afterwards to Trinity College, Dublin. He was presented by the Crown, on February 8; and was installed on February 27. His patent was confirmed by the Chapter, on March 19. [Chap. Book.] He was Vicar-General of the diocese; and was the Chapter's proxy to the Convocation in 1661. In 1662 he was Treasurer of Lismore; in 1663 Præcentor of Waterford; in 1664 was made Dean of Lismore; and in 1666² was raised to the bishopric of Waterford; under which diocese see an account of his munificent charities, and likewise of the ill-treatment which he experienced. He died in Wales, in 1690 or 1691, aged eighty years. [Ware.]

1666². JOHN JONES, M. A. a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin; presented by the Crown, on March 5. [Lib. Mun. Hib.] He died in April, 1678.

1678. ANDREW SALL, D. D. Prebendary of Swords in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, was admitted on June 14. Two years afterwards he obtained other preferments in the diocese, viz. the rectory of Kilfithmone and of Templemore. He also was Rector of Ardmulchan, and Vicar of Moyaghir, in the diocese of Meath.

Dr. Sall was a native of Cashel, where his family, a Roman Catholic one, had long been of considerable note(a). The names and armorial bearings of some of its members are still to be seen, in the churchyard of St. John's, and at the old cathedral on the Rock. He was educated on the Continent; and, having entered into the society of the Jesuits, was appointed Professor of Moral Theology at Salamanca. After some years he was sent back from Spain into Ireland, as a person well able to protect the interests of Rome in this country. But having, from deep thought and study of the Scriptures, become convinced of the errors of the Church of Rome, he quitted her communion in the year 1674, and placed himself under the protection of Archbishop Price, of Cashel, who had been instrumental in satisfying his religious doubts; and who, perceiving his sincerity and steadfastness, continued to befriend him, and even received him into his own house. While residing with the Archbishop in Dublin, he was employed in getting transcribed and prepared for the press Bishop Bedell's Irish translation of the Old Testament.

Sall's conversion raised up a host of enemies against him; and several violent pamphlets were published, attacking the reasons which he had publicly given for his change of sentiment, and urging him, by every motive, to return to the Church of Rome. But he remained firm, equally against threats and promises; and, dying on April 6, 1682, aged about seventy years, was buried in St. Patrick's, Dublin.

(a) Geoffrey Sall, of Cashel, gent., obtained a grant of the castle and lands of Ballinacourty and Clonbeg in Aharlow, by patent from King James I. in 1607. [Rot. Pat.] In 1641 James Sall of Cashel was a lawyer; and at the same time, Nicholas Sall, Geoffrey, Francis, and Nicholas, were inhabitants of that city, and Edward Sall was its mayor. [MS. T. C. D. P. 2. 14.]

As evidenee of his talents, and the sincerity of his religious belief, he has left in print the following works:

1. A Recantation, or Deelaration, made in St. John's Church, Cashel. 12mo. Dublin; and 4to. London, 1674.

2. A Sermon preached in Christ Chureh, Dublin, on Matthew, xxiv. 15; to which is added the foregoing Deelaration. 4to. Dublin, 1674; 12mo. Dublin, 1675.

4. True Catholic and Apostolie Faith maintained in the Church of England; being a Reply to J. E. N. N. and J. S. 8vo. Oxford, 1676.

In 1837 he was promoted to the rectory of Templemore.

Dr. Holmes was an eloquent preacher, and a person of active mind and literary habits. While curate of Holywood, near Belfast, in 1810, &c., he was mainly instrumental in establishing the Mendicity Institution of that town, having called the public attention to that subject in a tract which was very favourably received. Besides numerous communications on ecclesiastical matters, by means of the periodical press, and a Statistical account of the parish of Holywood, county of Down, printed in "Mason's Parochial Survey of Ireland," Dr. Holmes published the following works:

1. A Plan for a Mendicity Institution. 8vo. Belfast, about 1817 to 1819.

ARCHDEACONS.

In ancient times, when the Archdeacons of Ireland exercised jurisdiction and visitorial powers, it appears, from the document recited above at p. 30, that the Visitation of the Archdeacon of Cashel was continued during three months in every year; namely, from November 3 until February 2. And it is observable, that during this period the Visitation of the Archbishop was suspended. We find the Archdeacon, in 1661, appointing a Registrar of his own Court. [Ch. Book.]

Habet vicariam desuper dotatam; sed devorata [est] per Comitem Ormoniaë. MUNSTER.]

He was likewise a Canon of Emly; and subsequently became Bishop of that see, with which he also held the high office of Chancellor of Ireland. There is every reason to believe that he owed these important and honorable stations to his distinguished talents. [Ware.]

In 1744 he resigned his prebend, and accepted the benefice of Feathard in this diocese. That he was a liberal benefactor to the poor, to schools, and to the Church, will be seen by the extract from his will given in the note below(a).

(a) Extracts from a copy of the will (in the Registry of Cashel) of "Morgan Hickey, of Kilmore, clerk." "I bequeath all my plate to be sold, and the money arising thence to be applied to buy Church-plate for such churches" of this Diocese as my Executors, the Survivor, or Survivors of them shall think fit, by and with the consent and approbation of the Archbishop of Cashel for the time being.

 Crown, dated June 16, which recites that the place was vacant by deprivation or removal, and permits him to hold it in union with his deanery, on account of the smallness of his income. [Rot. Pat. 6 Jac. I.]
1624. HEZEKIAH SMITH was presented by the Crown, "by

COLEMAN.

1437. WALTER FLEMING is called "Prebendary of Coleman," in the copy of an ancient writing remaining in the Registry of Cashel, entitled "Inceptio Visitationis Ricardi Archiepiscopi Cassellensis, 18^o Martii, 1437." [See an extract from this MS. above, at p. 30.] It is observable in it, that six Abbats and six Priors are cited to attend the Archbishop's Visitation. A table of procurations, &c., is given, not only for the dioceses of Cashel and Emly, but likewise for the entire province; and it is declared that these fees are to be demanded and taken as for the year 1571. This appears to fix the age of the present paper to the beginning of the prelacy of Miler Magrath.

I have found no notice of any subsequent Prebendary. For a long time past, Coleman has formed part of the corps of the deanery of Cashel.

RANILLESTON, OR RAYLSTOWN.

1302. THOMAS FITZJOHN FITZTHOMAS is presented by the King (Edward I.) to "the Prebend of Ranilleston," during the vacancy of the see of Cashel. [Rot. Cane. Hib. p. 6.]

I have found no second notice of this church being prebendal. "Raillestown," or "Villa Raille," now forms part of the Union of Fethard.

KILMILCHON.

1388. THOMAS SNELL is called "Prebendary of Kilmilchon;" and with his prebend held the vicarage of Fethard and the rectory of Cnoekgraffan (for doing which, without the royal license, he was fined by King Richard II.) In 1399 we find him Archdeacon of Glendaloch, and made Bishop of Waterford; and in 1405 he was translated to the see of Ossory. [Rot. Cane. Hib.]

For some centuries past, Kilmilchon has not been a prebendal church, but has formed part of the mensal lands of the see of Cashel.

KILLETAN.

This church, in the deanery of Ely, is named as a prebend in the ancient Papal Taxation.

DERENFLAN.

This church, in Slievardargh deanery, is called a prebend in the Papal Taxation.

GARRE.

I do not understand the meaning of the following entry; but set it down as given in the "Calendarium Rot. Pat. Hib." (anno Ric. II. 13).

1389. Rex dedit Will^o White clerico vicariam de Garre in ecclesiâ Cassellensi præbendam vacantem. 5 Dec. Et mandavit J. archiepiscopo Cassellensi quod ipsum W. ad præbendam prædictam admittat, et ei stallum in choro, &c. assignari faciat," &c. A William White appears to have been Dean of Kildare at this time; another William White was made Dean of Waterford in 1396.

VICARS CHORAL.

We do not find at what period the Vicars Choral of Cashel were originally instituted. It is on record, that Archbishop Walter le Rede granted some tithes to them in the year 1330; and that Archbishop Richard O'Hedian, who sat from A. D. 1406 to 1440, endowed them with lands, and built a "Hall" or dwelling for them on St. Patrick's Rock, adjoining the Cathedral, which the same prelate also rebuilt. Anciently the College consisted of eight Vicars and Choristers, an Organist, a Sexton, and a Purveyor or Steward. At a subsequent period we find the numbers reduced, and the revenues intercepted; and this invasion of lawful rights proceeded from a quarter whence such treatment ought least to have been expected. A manuscript in the Prerogative Office, Dublin, containing an account of a Regal Visitation of the Diocese of Cashel [in the year 1615?], has the following remark: "Touching the Vicars Choral: there were eight Vicars Choral; and then they had three pounds sterling a piece, per annum. And now they are reduced to four, and six pounds per annum is allotted to them. But there are but two of these attending the church. The whole living [i. e. income] is in the hands of Barnaby Carney and Mr. Calanan(a), to the use of Redmond, the Archbishop's son, demised to them (reditus reservatus, 8*d.* per annum, as is said). It is confessed that the Archbishop [this was Miler Magrath] hath carryed with him a good sum of money belonging to the college, the certainty whereof is not known; with which he had promised and undertaken to get and purchase a mortmain for the college, to maintain four Vicars, an Organist and a Choir, as they can agree."

For a long time past, the Vicars Choral have been five in number; nominated respectively by the five Dignitaries of the cathedral. About forty-five years ago, the Vicars, who then were laymen, made some improvident and improper leases of their common property, without asking or receiving confirmation of them by the Dean and Chapter, as had been always usual: and to prevent this abuse in future, it was judged advisable to nominate five clergymen as Honorary Vicars, and to appoint five singing men as their deputies, such deputies to be always approved and confirmed by the Chapter. Those clerical Vicars received merely five pounds per annum, as an honorarium; and full salaries were paid to those persons who actually performed the Choral Service. The improvement thus effected not being sufficiently understood or appreciated by the Government, an Act was passed in the year 1836, whereby it was ordered, that all the rights and property of the Vicars Choral of Cashel should immediately vest in the Ecclesiastical Commissioners: and this highly penal enactment has been carried into effect.

SUCCESSION OF VICARS.

1615. In this year we find as Vicars Choral:

END OF CASHEL DIOCESE.

EMLY (called by the old annalists “Imleach(a) Iubhair,” Emly of yew trees (b)) is certainly one of the most ancient sees of Ireland, having been founded in the fifth century. It soon attained an eminent reputation, and was acknowledged for the metropolitan see of Munster in the time of St. Patrick, and for several centuries afterwards. But when the Pope, in the year 1152, sent a Legate into Ireland bearing four archiepiscopal palls, these were distributed to the prelates of Armagh, Dublin, Cashel, and Tuam; and from this period the Bishop of Cashel, from having been a suffragan of the Prelate of Emly, became his metropolitan. In 1568 the see of Emly was united to that of Cashel by an Act of Parliament; which is here printed, for the first time, from the original Roll in the Rolls Office, Dublin:

“An Acte for the unitinge of the Busshopricke of Imolie with the Archbusshopricke of Casshell.” [A. D. 1568, xi Anno Reg^æ Elizabethæ.]

(a) “The word Imleach denotes land bordering on a lake.” [O'Donovan, apud Miseell. Soc. Archæol. vol. i. p. 148.] The characteristic, Iubhair, was probably added, to distinguish this place from four or five other Imleachs in different parts of Ireland.

(b) Although the yew is now comparatively a searee tree in Ireland, it appears to have been abundant in former times. Considerable quantities of the wood are found in certain bogs. Cathaoir More, King of Leinster, who died in A. D. 177, left by will to one of his sons, “fifty large vessels made of red yew;” and to another, “fifty large vats made of red yew.” It is stated, by the Four Masters, that in 1162 a grievous misfortune befell the abbey of Newry (Viride lignum or Iubhar Cinntrachta); namely, that the abbey was burned down, with all its furniture and books, and especially the yew-tree which St. Patrick himself had planted. [See Reeves' Down, p. 118.]

SUCCESSION OF BISHOPS.

About A. D. 448. The founder and first bishop was St. AILBE, a native of the district called Ely O'Carroll, who has been considered one of the earliest preachers of Christianity in Ireland. He is celebrated by numerous writers as a person of great piety, wisdom, and humility; and became a friend and fellow-labourer of St. Patrick and St. Declan in the conversion of the southern Irish.

There is much uncertainty about the period when he commenced his ministry, and likewise respecting that of his death: for the accounts given by ancient writers differ considerably on these points. The learned Archbishop Ussher was of opinion that Ailbe was anterior to St. Patrick.

He is said to have attained a very great age, and to have died on September 12, A. D. 527 [some have said A. D. 541], and to have been buried in his church of Emly. His festival is still observed there on September 12. He was author of "A Rule for Monks," which is believed to be still extant in manuscript. [Ware.]

The list of St. Ailbe's successors, up to the arrival of the English in the twelfth century, is imperfect; yet it is far more full than those of many other of the dioceses of Ireland: but we can ascertain few or no particulars of the personal history of those prelates. Sometimes we find them called "Bishops," sometimes "Abbats," and sometimes "Archbishops." Their names, so far as Sir J. Ware was able to ascertain them from the ancient Irish annalists, are as follows:

- 660. CONAING O'DATHAIL (or O'DALY), called "Abbat of Emly," and "Comorban of St. Ailbe." He died in 660 or 661.
- 707. CONAMAIL M'CARTHAIG. He died in this year.
- 718. CELLACH died this year.
- 778. SENCHAI or SEANCHAIR died.
- 784. CUAN died in this year, or in 786.
- 819. SECTABRATH died.
- 825. FLAN M'FAMCHELLAIC died.
- 850. OLCOBAR M'KINEDE, King of Cashel in 846, as well as Bishop of Emly, "a great warrior and conqueror of the Danes," died.
- 857. MANUS M'HUARGASA died.
- 872. COENFELAD, or "KINFEOLADH FITZ MUTIGAN, Lord of Caisil, and Archbishop of Imleagh" [O'Flaherty], King of Cashel and Bishop of Emly, died.
- 882. RUDGALL M'FINGAIL died.
- 887. CON CENMATHAIR died.

889. OWEN M'COENFELAD, called Prince of Emly and Bishop, was slain.
895. MAELBRIGID, the son of Prolect, "a holy man and Archbishop of Munster," died.
898. MISCELUS, or O'MEICSELBE, died.
903. FLAN M'CONAIL died.
912. TIBRAID M'MAELFIN, called also "Prince of Emly," died.
941. EOCADHA M'SCANLAIN died.
953. HUARACH died.
957. MAEL KELLACH died.
981. FEOLAN M'CELLAID died.
990. CEN-FADA died.
1003. COLUMB M'LAGENAN died.
1020. CORMAC O'FINN, "the most learned Bishop of Munster," died.
1027. SERBRETHAC died.
1040. MAEL FINAN died.
1047. O'FLANCHUA died.
1047. O'SIYDHA, Bishop of Emly, was slain in battle by Turlogh O'Brien, in this year. [Annals of Innisfallen.]
1049. CLOTHNA MUIMNECH died.
1075. MAEL MORDA died.
1093. MAEL-ISA O'HARACHTAIN died.
1114. DAIRMIT O'FLYNN, Bishop of Emly, died. [D'Alton's Annals of Boyle, vol. ii. p. 199.]
1122. O'LIGBAI died.
1123. MAEL MORDA M'INCLODNAI succeeded. In his time Emly was plundered; and St. Ailbe's mitre, a relic long preserved with the utmost veneration, was burned. The Bishop saved his life by flight.
1152. GILLE AN COMDEH O'ARDMAIL, called by Latin writers "Deicola," was Bishop, and assisted at the Synod of Kells, which was holden this year.

1163. MAEL-ISA O'LAGENAN, " Bishop and Abbat of Emly," and likewise Abbat of Bellagh-Conglais, died at Emly in this or the following year.
1172. O'MEICSTIA, or O'MEICSELBE, died.
1177. CHARLES O'BUACALLA, Abbat of Mellifont in the County of Louth, succeeded to this see; but died there within a month of his elevation.
1177. ISAAC O'HAMERY succeeded.
1192. REGINALD O'FLANUA was Bishop in this year, when his cathedral was burned down. He died in 1197.
1197. The name of Reginald's next successor has not been found.
- [1210. WILLIAM, a Canon of Emly, was elected Bishop in this year; but the Pope annulled his election, on the ground of some irregularities attending his ordination, viz. his having received the three Orders in one day.]
1212. HENRY, a Cistercian monk, Abbat of Binden in Dorsetshire, was consecrated this year. He obtained from King John, for his town of Emly, the privilege of holding fairs and markets. After governing the see upwards of fourteen years, he died in 1227.
1228. JOHN COLLINGHAM, Chancellor of this cathedral, was elected by the Dean and Chapter, and was confirmed by the Pope, though without the King's license. For some time King Henry III. refused to acknowledge him as Bishop; but Collingham appealed to the Pope; a commission of inquiry took place, the King found himself worsted in the contest, and eventually he yielded, and restored the temporalities.
1236. CHRISTIAN succeeded, under the King's cong  d'elire directed to the Dean and Chapter, on June 14th; and was confirmed on October 28, 1237. He is said to have been a great benefactor to his church.

[One Daniel, Prior of St. John's without Newgate,

London, appears to have obtained the King's assent as Bishop elect of Emly, in 1238; but there is no proof that he ever was admitted or consecrated; and Christian remained in possession till his death in 1249.]

1249. GILBERT O'DOVERTY (O'DOHERTY ?), Dean of Emly, was elected by the Chapter, agreeably to the Royal license dated December 12; but he was not confirmed by the King until October 11, 1251. He died on October 9, 1265.

1266. FLORENCE, a native of Emly, a Canon of the cathedral, succeeded (probably by the Pope's provision). He was consecrated about Whitsuntide of this year; and, dying at the close of 1271, was buried in his cathedral.

1272. MATTHEW M'GORMAN, Archdeacon of Emly, was confirmed as Bishop, by patent dated June 18; and was consecrated in August following. He sat only two years and a few months.

1275. DAVID O'Cussy (O'Cusby, or O'Tussigh), a Cistercian monk, Abbat of Holycross in the County Tipperary, was elected on June 24, and was confirmed by patent on August 2. He died in June, 1281.

1282. WILLIAM DE CLIFFORD, an Englishman, Escheator of England, was consecrated to this see in 1282. The profits of his bishopric were seized by the King in 1299, for some debts due to him by Clifford while he held the office of Escheator. He died in England, in 1306.

1306. THOMAS CANTOK, a native of England, became a Prebendary of Kilkenny; afterwards a Canon of Emly; and in 1302 the King conferred on him a prebend in the church of Cashel. His patent of confirmation in this bishopric is dated September 4, 1306; and he was consecrated the same year, in Christ Church, Dublin, with great honor, all the elders of Ireland being present. He gave a great and sumptuous feast, first to the rich and afterwards to the poor. [See Camden's Annals.] He likewise held the high office of Chancellor of Ireland with his bishopric. He sat here but a short time, dying on February 3, 1303.

1309. WILLIAM ROGHENED, or ROUGHHEAD (RUFFHEAD), Dean of Emly, succeeded. While riding to his church, he fell from his horse and broke three of his ribs; but recovered from the accident, and survived it eight years. He died in 1335, and was buried in his cathedral.

1335. RICHARD LE WALLEYS (WALSH, or WALLIS), was elected, and was consecrated in this year. He joined with his Metropolitan in opposing the levy of a subsidy from the goods of the clergy, which had been granted by the King without the Church's sanction being obtained. He sat about twenty years, and died in October, 1355.

1356. JOHN ESMOND, Archdeacon, and afterwards for a short time Bishop, of Ferns, succeeded by the Pope's provision; and was restored to his temporalities by the King, on April 27. He died on April 4, 1362.

1362. DAVID was Bishop; of whom we know nothing for certain, with regard to his election or consecration; except that on his death, in the following year, the Pope appointed a successor, viz.:

1363. WILLIAM, Archdeacon of Emly. He was restored to his temporalities by the King, on October 11. He was Vicar-General, or Commissary, to the Archbishop of Cashel during his absence in foreign parts. Ware states, that he held the see of Emly thirty years, being known to be living on December 17, 1393; but the time of his death is not ascertained; nor, perhaps, the name of his immediate successor. An instrument by this prelate, dated A. D. 1380, has appended to it a Seal, bearing a sitting figure of our Saviour in the act of blessing; beneath which, between two shields charged respectively with the arms of England and a plain cross, is a Bishop in the attitude of kneeling, mitred, with crozier in hand. No inscription is discernible. [J. Graves.]

1422. NICHOLAS, Bishop of Emly, died. The date of his appointment, or consecration, has not been found. Upon his death, it appears that the Pope bestowed this see upon four different persons in succession: namely, John Rishbury, an Augustinian; Robert Windele, a Franciscan; Thomas Burgh, an Augustinian; and Robert Portland, a Franciscan. But there is no proof that any one of them was consecrated or put into possession; and the revenues, for about nine years, were returned into the King's Exchequer.
1431. THOMAS BURGH, an Augustinian Canon, one of the above-named four persons, was elected Bishop: and was consecrated at last, in this year. He sat twelve years, and died in 1443.
1444. CORNELIUS O'CUNLIS, or O'RICALIS, a Franciscan friar, was advanced to this see on October 6, the Pope having previously named another person, viz. Robert of England, a Franciscan. As soon as he was consecrated, the Pope sent him into Ireland as Nuncio, directing him to collect money there for carrying on the war against the Turks. In 1448 he was translated to Clonfert.
1448. CORNELIUS O'MULLEDY (or O'MULLALY), a Franciscan friar, by order of the Pope, exchanged the see of Clonfert for that of Emly, on August 29.
- 1459? WILLIAM O'HEDIAN succeeded, by Papal provision, in or about this year. In 1468 the Pope made him Prior Commendatory of the monastery of Kells, although the Prior of that house was living. We do not know the time of his death, nor who succeeded him.

1494. PHILIP, Bishop of Emly, died in this year. We know nothing more concerning him.
- [1494. DONAT O'BRIEN, LL. D. was appointed by the Pope's provision, upon the death of Philip, on November 10, in this year; but it is not known for certain that he was ever consecrated.]
1498. CHARLES MAC BRIEN, one of the Canons of Emly, was advanced to the bishopric, by Papal provision, dated April 30. It is not known how long he sat.
1507. THOMAS HURLEY (or ORLEY) was consecrated in 1507. He was an eminent canonist. He died at a very advanced age, in 1542, and was buried in his cathedral.
1543. ÆNEAS O'HIFFERNAN (or O'HERNAN), a native of the County of Limerick, became a Knight of St. John of Jerusalem, and Præceptor of the Hospital of Any in the County of Limerick. In 1541 he surrendered his Hospital to King Henry VIII. and received a pension of £28 17s. 8d., by a grant dated June 30. [Rot. Pat. 33 Hen. VIII.] He was appointed by the King, by a congè d'élire directed to the Dean and Chapter, dated April 6, in virtue of Letters of Privy Seal, dated on October 8, preceding. [Cod. Clar. 36.] He governed the see about ten years. A favourable report is given of him by the Lord Deputy, St. Leger, in State Papers, vol. iii. p. 397.
- 1553? RAYMUND DE BURGH, an Observantine Franciscan friar, succeeded. He died on July 28, 1562. Some writers say that he was buried in a monastery of his Order at Adare, in the County of Limerick; others, at Athenry, in the County of Galway.
- 156-? The name of Raymund's immediate successor is not known. The see was vacant in 1568.
- In the year 1568 this see was united to that of Cashel by

DEAN AND CHAPTER.

I have not been able to ascertain at what period the Chapter was constituted. In the time of Pope Boniface VIII. A.D. 1302, it was composed of a Dean, Præcentor, Chancellor, Treasurer, Archdeacon, and six Prebendaries; the only prebend then named is Dunleske (now Doone); the rest are designated by the names of the persons who held them at that time.

From a MS. account of certain Royal Visitations, in Trinity College, Dublin (E. 3. 14.), it appears, that in the time of Archbishop Miler Magrath almost all the dignities and prebends were vacant! Another ominous entry in a Regal Visitation Book of this period informs us, that “the Œconomy Fund, of twenty marks, is disposed of by the Archbishop as he pleases.” [R. I. A.]

At the present time the Chapter consists of a Dean, Præcentor, Chancellor, Archdeacon, and five Prebendaries. The treasurership, having been plundered of all its revenues, has not been filled up since the time of Archbishop Magrath(a): but there appears no reason why the Capitular body should be made to suffer the loss of one of its members, although the appointed support of that member has been unjustly taken away.

The prebend of Disert Laurence had been for centuries

(a) We learn from Le Neve, p. 153, that the same calamity befel the cathedral of Lincoln, about the time of the Reformation. He found in the Chapter Registers these words, “Abrepto omni Ecclesiæ thesauro, desiit Thesaurarii munus.”

annexed to the archbishopric, until the recent Church Temporalities Act disunited it, and gave its revenues to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners; and the prebend of Dollardstown has always been annexed to the archdeaconry.

The Dies natûs of this Chapter is the 11th of September; on which day alone they were bound to receive, as of right, the Visitation of the Bishop. (Probably the 12th, the festival of St. Ailbe, is meant.) [Ch. Book.]

SEAL.

A seal of the Dean and Chapter, dated 1739, is engraved in Harris's Ware. In the year 1849, an ancient seal of this Chapter was accidentally dug up in the neighbourhood. It is of brass, of circular form, about the size of a crown piece. It contains the figure of a large church, surmounted by a spire; and is inscribed, SIGILLVM CAPITVLI IMELACENSIS. The seal is not in good preservation. It is at present in private hands.

1602. HUGH HOGAN succeeded: he was living in 1622; but appears to have resigned his dignity some years previous to his death. [Ibid.]

A roll in the Registry of Cashel states this; but rather vaguely, and it may be doubted. See A. Donellan, under Doone prebend. See also p. 36, above.]

He died on June 24, 1845; and was buried at his parish of Abington.

At his death the appointment to the deanery was suspended by Act of Council, and the revenues were transferred to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. But in

PRÆCENTORS.

I have not been able to meet with a single name of the early Præcentors.

1607. The place was vacant. [Reg. Vis.]
1608. RANDAL HURLEY was appointed Præcentor by the Crown, on December 3, "notwithstanding his minority and defect of clerical Orders." [Rot. Pat. 6 Jac. I.]
1615. RANDULPHUS HURLEY, "a Student in the College" (viz. of Dublin), appears. [Reg. Vis.] In 1622 we find him Curate to the Dean and Chapter of Killaloe, described as "a Native, brought up in the College of Dublin, one of good life and learning." [Bishop Ryder.]

Mun.] He appears to have been again presented, on June 23, 1628, and installed on July 24. [Reg. Vis.] He held this dignity in 1641, perhaps longer. In the Rebellion of that year he was plundered of property amounting to £1510, besides his living, worth £140 per annum. [MS. T.C.D. F. 2. 14.]

1661. RICHARD BURGH, D. D. collated April 5. [FF.]
1662. ULYSSES BURGH, M. A. a Scholar of Trinity College, Dublin; admitted September 27. He was likewise a Prebendary of Cashel. We find him collated again, on October 7, 1663. [Ibid.] In 1667 he obtained a prebend in the church of Limerick; in 1685 he became Dean of Emly; and in 1692 Bishop of Ardagh.
1685. RICHARD BURGH, Jun. M. A. (who was ordained Deacon, May 3, 1685; Priest, May 10); collated May 20; installed May 29. He was elected Proctor for the Chapter to the Convocation of 1704. 1661. JOHN CRIPPS, M. A. collated March 27. [FF.]
- He held the dignity in 1679, and possibly to a much later period. John Cripps appears in the Chapter Books as Chancellor in 1707 and 1718; and Massey, who was collated in 1727, is said, in his titles, to have succeeded "on the death of Cripps." TREASURERS.

It is evident that, in ancient times, this Dignitary formed a part of the Chapter of Emly. (See above, p. 91.) I do not find at what period the office went into disuse, nor the names of any persons who held it. In the year 1615 the Royal Visitors describe it as “Deserta, vasta, et ignota, nullius valoris,” or, as in another book (transcribed on a roll in Cashel Registry), “Deserta Dignitas, vastata, nullius valoris.” One Regal Visitation Book, without date, but of the time of Archbishop Magrath, states Theodosius Mac Brien to be Treasurer; but the Cashel Roll calls him Archdeacon.

[Reg. Kilmore.] In January 1802, he became Curate of Mogorban, in the diocese of Cashel. In July 1805, he was appointed Rector of Kiltinan. In June 1810, he became Rector of Abington in this diocese, and Preacher of Cashel cathedral. He was collated to this archdeaconry on January 19. In 1823 he was promoted to the bishopric of Limerick, where see a further account of him.

PREBENDARIES.

1. DISERT LAURENCE, OR DESERT LOWRAN (NOW CALLED ISERT LAURENCE).

This prebend, from the earliest times, had been annexed to the bishopric; except during one disastrous period, when the unscrupulous Miler Magrath alienated it from the see to his son Mark, as he had conferred the other archiepiscopal prebend, Glankeen, upon another of his sons, Redmond. [See Regal Vis. Book of 1615.] “Dotata est cum Vicario.” [Reg. Vis. of 1633.] But on the death of Archbishop Laurence in 1838, it was severed from the see, under the Church Temporalities Act, 3 & 4 Will. IV. c. 37, and the revenues of it were appropriated by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. The Dean and Chapter now elect a fit and proper person to execute the duties of the Prebendary, without emolument of any kind.

(ELECTED.)

1841. MATTHEW MOORE, Vicar of Cahirconlish; elected May 20.

2. DOLLARDSTOWN, OR BAILINCLOGHER.

This prebend has always been annexed to the archdeaconry.

1629. LEWIS JONES, Dean of Cashel (and afterwards Bishop of Killaloe), was presented by the Crown, sede vacante, on May 13 [Lib. Mun.]; and was instituted by the Primate on May 29; and installed on June 16. [Reg. Vis.] He continued to hold this prebend, with his bishopric, till the year 1637.

1637 $\frac{1}{2}$. AMBROSE JONES, D. D. (son of the foregoing) presented by the Crown, on February 17; installed March 16. In 1641 he was made Præcentor of Limerick. 156 $\frac{1}{2}$. CONSTANTIUS AYLWARD, presented by the Crown, on January 9. [Rot. Pat.] He was presented again, on August 24, 1563. [Lib. Mun.]

1607(?) Vacant. [Reg. Vis.]

1608. ANDREW DONELLAN, B. A. (ordained Deacon and Priest, March 23, 1602) was instituted by Sir Ambrose Forth and Charles Dunn, Justices of the King's Bench, to the rectory of Dounaleske, alias Doonegonogh, on December 13, on the King's presentation by patent dated December 4; and was inducted December 30. [Reg. Vis. Prerog. Office, and Pat. Roll, 6 James I.]

1615. "It belongs to the Archbishop's mensal, but is usurped by Andrew Donellan the Curate, Vicar of Pallis Grean, a man able to teach in Irish." [Roll in Cashel Reg.] Donellan appears to have retained it till his death, in 1639.

1813. CHARLES PHILIP COOTE, M. A. collated May 10; installed May 15. He died in 1838. During the insurrectionary movement against tithes, which prevailed in the years 1831, &c. Mr. Coote was exposed to extreme difficulties and great personal danger; but his firmness and courage eventually overcame the opposition, and vindicated the supremacy of the law. There is, however, little doubt that his life was shortened by the incessant fatigue and anxiety which he underwent.

1838. THOMAS ATKINSON, M. A. a Vicar Choral of Cashel; collated December 1; installed December 11. He is the present Prebendary.

Rector of Fartagh (or Johnstown), in the diocese of Ossory; collated March 6; installed next day. At his death, in 1841, the appointment was suspended, by an order of the Privy Council, dated July 31, 1841; and the revenues were appropriated by the Ecclesiastical Commissioners.

(ELECTED.)

1841. ALFRED THOMAS ARMSTRONG, B. A. (son of Rev. William Armstrong, Chancellor of Cashel), Rector of Cullen, was elected by the Dean and Chapter, pursuant to the Act of Parliament 4 & 5 Will. IV. c. 90, on October 15.

7. KILNEGENY, KILMAGENY, OR KILNEGARY.

These designations occur in ancient records: it does not appear exactly what this prebend was; perhaps Ballingary, which is now part of the union forming the corps of the prebend of Killencllick; but a Regal Visitation Book of 163 $\frac{3}{4}$, speaks of it as "united to the præcentorship." [Prerog. Office.] In the Regal Visitation Book of 1615, it is described as "Deserta, vasta, vacua."

VICARS CHORAL.

Although we have no direct proof that this cathedral ever possessed a college of Vicars Choral, yet something like presumptive evidence of such a fact appears in a document of the year 1380. This curious record, which is preserved in the Ormonde Muniment Room at Kilkenny Castle, is a letter from William, Bishop of Emly, and Vicar-General of Philip, Archbishop of Cashel, notifying to all faithful people the fact of the excommunication of Richard, Bishop of Cloyne.

The instrument purports to be “Datum et actum in ecclesiâ cathedrali Imelacensi octavo die mensis februarii anno dni millesimo ccclxxx°. Præsentibus Dominis Johanne Hayr et Henrico Edde Vicariis ecclesiæ cathedralis Imelacensis, et aliis testibus,” &c. [J. Graves.]

END OF EMLY DIOCESE.

THIS see is called the see of “Port-lairge” by some of the Irish Annalists; that being their name for the town and harbour of Waterford.

It is believed to owe its erection to the Ostmen, who invaded and possessed themselves of the town, in the latter part of the eleventh century. Those foreigners, having been induced to embrace Christianity, deemed it advisable to place a Bishop over their place of residence; and they selected Malchus, a Benedictine monk of Winchester, “virum natalibus et moribus nobilem,” and sent him to receive consecration from Anselm, Archbishop of Canterbury.

The diocese of Waterford is of very limited extent. Its prelates early began to long for possession of the neighbouring lands and benefices of Lismore. Very serious disputes arose between the two Bishops during the thirteenth century. King Henry III. entertained an intention of uniting the two bishopries: and though his design was frustrated at that time, the union was effected in the year 1363.

By the Church Temporalities Act of 1834, the sees of Waterford and Lismore were annexed to those of Cashel and Emly; and those four dioceses are now committed to the charge of a single Bishop.

ARMS OF THE SEE.

IN Harris's edition of Sir James Ware's History of the Bishops, is an engraving of the seal of Walter Fulburn, Bishop of this see, dated 1289; and another, of Bishop Milles, dated 1708. It is observable that the arms of the see differ totally in these two.

SUCCESSION OF BISHOPS.

A. D. 1096. MALCHUS was chosen by the Ostmen, the founders of the city, to be its first Bishop. He had been for some time a Benedictine monk of Winchester. Having been elected at a Council which was attended by the King of Ireland and many Bishops, he was sent by them into England, to be consecrated by Anselm, Archbishop of Canterbury; who performed this ceremony for him at Canterbury, on the 28th of December, 1096. Under the auspices of Malchus the cathedral was built. We find him still holding the see in 1110, but the year of his death is not on record.

1135. MAELISA (i.e. Maol-Iosa, servant of Jesus) O'HAMIRE occurs as Bishop of Waterford in 1135; and is believed to have died in the following year.

1152. TUISTIUS, or TOSTIUS (probably an Ostman or Dane) attended the Synod of Kells, as Bishop of Waterford.

1175. AUGUSTIN, an Irishman, was appointed Bishop by King Henry II. [in 1175]; and instead of being consecrated by the Archbishop of Canterbury, as had been usual, he was sent over by the King to Ireland, to receive consecration from his own Metropolitan. It is observed that this is the earliest instance of an Irish bishopric being conferred by a King of England. There may be some mistake about the date of his appointment; for in A° 14 Henry II. viz. 1168, he was witness to a grant of land, in conjunction with Roger, Bishop of Worcester. [Nash's Worcestershire, vol. i. p. 24.] It is unknown how long Augustin sat. We do not hear of him after 1179, when he attended the Lateran Council.

1200. ROBERT (I.) is found as Bishop in the year 1200: but we know not when he obtained, nor when he vacated, the see.

1204. DAVID, surnamed "Breathnach," i.e. "The Welshman," a kinsman of Miler Fitzhenry, Justice of Ireland, was consecrated Bishop in 1204. Having a dispute with the Bishop of Lismore, respecting some property belonging to that see, he was murdered by O'Foylan of the Deeties [Four Masters, and Magheogegan's Hist.], before it was brought to a settlement, in the year 1207 or 1209.

1210. ROBERT (II.) was consecrated by the Archbishop of Cashel, in 1210. He was a man of violent passions and overbearing disposition; and voluntarily engaged in vehement disputes with the Bishop of Lismore, the particulars of which are given (from Pope Innocent the Third's Epistles) in Harris's edition of Ware. He died (it is said of grief, but more probably of irritation) in the year 1222.

1223. WILLIAM WACE, Dean of Waterford, succeeded; and was confirmed by the royal assent, on April 7, 1223.

1227. WALTER, a Benedictine monk, Prior of St. John's Abbey, at Waterford, was elected Bishop; and obtained the King's assent on August 20, 1227. It appears from a roll of the 16th of Henry III. (1231), that for some reason or other the temporalities of the see were in the King's hands at that time. Possibly Walter was then dead.

1238. (quære 1231?) STEPHEN appears as Bishop in 1238, and again in 1246. But neither the time of his consecration nor that of his death is now known.

1249. HENRY, Archdeacon of Waterford, being elected Bishop, was confirmed by the King, on March 11, 1249. He sat but a very short time; for a royal license for a new election was issued to the Dean and Chapter on August 20, 1251.
1251. PHILIP, Dean of Waterford, succeeded; he was restored to his temporalities in June, 1252. Like his predecessor, he held the see for a very few years.
1255. WALTER (II.) was elected by the Dean and Chapter, upon the King's license, dated March 28, 1254; and was consecrated in 1255. He died about the close of the year 1272.
1273. STEPHEN FULBURN, a native of Fulburn in Cambridgeshire, a Hospitaller, was consecrated Bishop in 1273. He appears to have been a man of parts and learning; since we find him, soon after his consecration, appointed Treasurer of Ireland, and subsequently obtaining the high dignity of Lord Justice. While he held that office, he introduced some improvements into the Irish coinage. In 1278 he assisted at the consecration of the new Cathedral of Norwich. [Colc.] In 1286 he was translated to the archbishopric of Tuam.
1286. WALTER of FULBURN, Dean of Waterford, the brother of the preceding Bishop, succeeded him in this year. He was a Franciscan friar, and probably a man of considerable talent, since we find that he was Chancellor of Ireland. He sat twenty-one years, and died in 1307. A drawing of his Episcopal Seal is in the Archives of Christ Church, Dublin.
1308. MATTHEW, Chancellor of Waterford, was, by license from the King, elected Bishop on Feb. 7, 1307 $\frac{7}{8}$. He died on Dec. 18, 1322, and was buried in his own church.

1323. NICHOLAS WELIFED, Dean of Waterford, was consecrated Bishop on Palm Sunday in this year. He died in June, 1337.
1337. RICHARD FRANCIS succeeded to the bishopric, and was restored to his temporalities in the early part of 1338. He sat ten years.
1349. ROBERT ELYOT was elected Bishop, and was consecrated in 1349: but in the following year he was deprived of his see by the Pope, for some cause now unknown. He died on March 24, anno 5^o Edw. III. [MS. T. C. D. F. I, 18.]
1350. ROGER CRADOCK, a Franciscan friar, succeeded Bishop Elyot, by the Pope's provision, in Feb. 1350; but was not restored to his temporalities by the King till May 10, 1352. Ware gives an account of a high dispute between this prelate and Ralph Kelly, Archbishop of Cashel, his metropolitan, attended with the personal violence not unusual in those barbarous times. It is believed that Cradock was the person who petitioned the Pope to unite the two sees of Waterford and Lismore. He sat twelve years, and then was translated to Llandaff, in Wales.

WATERFORD AND LISMORE.

1363. THOMAS LE REVE, a Canon of Lismore, and afterwards, viz., in 1358, Bishop of that see, became Bishop of Waterford also in the year 1363, the two sees having been then consolidated, by the Pope's authority, confirmed by the King, Edward III. Our prelate filled the high office of Chancellor of Ireland; and died at a very advanced age, in 1393.
1394. ROBERT READE, M. A. a Dominican friar, succeeded, by a Bull from the Pope, dated September 9, 1394. Two years afterwards he was translated to Carlisle, and thence to Chichester: at which latter place he is reputed to have been at the charges of erecting the beautiful stone Cross, which still forms one of the chief ornaments of that city. He died and was buried in Chichester.

1396. THOMAS SPARKFORD, an Englishman, a secular priest of the diocese of Bath and Wells, filled these sees, but only for a single year, dying in June, 1397. Ware notices a statement of John Leland the antiquary, that Thomas Colby, S. T. P., a Carmelite friar of Norwich, was appointed Bishop of Lismore and Waterford, by King Richard II. But perhaps this was erroneous, as Bishop Deping was appointed in the very same year, 1397, "the see being vacant by the death of Thomas Sparkford." It appears from the Chancery Rolls, that Colby was Bishop of Elphin (though he is omitted by Ware); and that he endeavoured to dispossess Bishop Gees of this see, some years later.

1397. JOHN DEPING, or DE PING, a Dominican friar, was appointed by the Pope, by a Bull dated July 11, 1397, and was consecrated Bishop in the same year; but he only lived till February 4, 1399–1400.

[If Thomas Colby(a), sat at all as Bishop of Waterford, it must have been at this period: but we speedily find another prelate in possession, viz.]

1399 or 1400. THOMAS SNELI, Archdeacon of Glendaloch, was elected, agreeably to the King's license, dated Feb. 24. He held this see from 1400 to 1405, and then was translated to Ossory.

1405. His successor was named ROGER APPYLBY; of whom we only know that he died in 1409. [Rot. Pat. 2 Hen. VI.]

1409. JOHN GEES or GEEST, a Carmelite friar, D. D. of Ox-

(a) Colby is said to have written many pieces, the titles of which are given by Ware in his "Writers of Ireland." See these noticed among the Bishops of Elphin.

ford, was appointed Bishop by the Pope, on August 23, 1409. He is reported to have been a man of great piety and learning, and to have composed a work relating to his order, entitled "Gloria Carmelitarum," with other pieces, all of which are now lost. During his incumbency he was long opposed by a rival, Thomas Colby, Bishop of Elphin, who professed to have a Papal Bull appointing him to these sees: however, he gave up his claim in 1421, and Geest was left in peaceable possession, so that on his petition to the King, his temporalities were at length restored to him, on April 16, 1424. He died abroad on Dec. 22, 1425, or perhaps a year earlier. [Rot. Pat. 9° Hen. V. and 2° Henry VI.]

1426. RICHARD, then Archdeacon of Lismore, succeeded to the sees, by provision of the Pope, in 1426(a). Having governed them during twenty years, he died on May 7, 1446, and was buried in the cathedral of Waterford. A report of his death having been circulated in 1438, King Henry wrote to the Pope, recommending Thomas Brid, D. D., a Dominican friar, as his successor. But this, of course, took no effect.

1446. ROBERT POER, supposed by Ware to have been Dean of Limerick, succeeded. He died about the year 1471, leaving behind him a high character for charity and hospitality.

1472. RICHARD MARTIN, D. D., a Franciscan friar, was appointed Bishop by the Pope, on March 9, 1472.

1475 or 1476. JOHN BOLCOMP (possibly Beleamp or Beauchamp), was consecrated to these sees in 1475 or 1476, and died in 1478 or 1479(b).

(a) Quære, earlier? See Rot. Pat. 9° Hen. V.

(b) In a return of some Irish sees then in the King's hands (A°. 8°. Edw. IV. 1478), the value of the see of Lismore, including the salmon fishery, is set down at £438 2s. 0½d. [MS. in T. C. D. F. I. 18.]

1480. NICHOLAS O'HENISA, a Cistercian monk, Abbat of St. Mary's at Fermoy, succeeded, by provision of the Pope, on May 20, 1480. He sat but a short time.
1482. JOHN, who had been Rector of Baudrip, in the diocese of Bath and Wells, appears, from the registry of that diocese, as cited by Anthony à Wood, to have been Bishop of Waterford in January, 1482.
1486. THOMAS PURSELL obtained the sees in 1486. He distinguished himself by taking care to have the ancient charters and other records of the church of Lismore transcribed into a register. This curious and valuable document, which was called the Black Book(a), and contained also a rent-roll of all the possessions of the see at that time, amounting to £1540, besides £197 in annual chief-rents, is not now known to exist. It is said to have been lost about the year 1617 (a disastrous period to church documents and church property at Lismore): but Archbishop Ussher appears to have seen it at a subsequent date. [See "Nieolson's Historical Library," 8°, 1724, p. 111.] Another account, given by Joshua Boyle, Registrar to the Dean and Chapter in 1663, states that it was burned during the late wars; at all events, it is not now in possession of the see. Bishop Pursell died about 1517.
- 1518 or 1519. NICHOLAS COMYN (a native of Limerick), Bishop of Ferns, was translated to these sees in 1518 or

(a) In order to show the nature and contents of this ancient register, the following copy of its commencement is taken from a manuscript in the British Museum. [MS. Clarendon, 55.]

" Initium Libri Nigri Ecclesiæ Lismorensis.

" In Dei nomine Amen. Ad futuram rei memoriam Incipit Registrum Ecclesiæ Lismorensis per Reverendum in Christo patrem Thomam Pursell Lismor. et Waterford. Episcopum extractum ex Rotulis, Literis, et Munimentis et Archivis publicis ejusdem Ecclesiæ Lismorensis, et Scriptis aliis et Libris authenticis. Scriptumque per Joh. Russell Burgensem ejusdem villæ de Lismore ac ejusdem ecclesiæ Ieonumum, publicum Notarium, de anno Dom. 1487."

1519. He repaired and beautified his cathedral church of Waterford. In 1544, this Bishop forwarded to the Government a rental of his see: he complains that his manors have been alienated and plundered from him, and even their names changed, so that he cannot make out or recover them, notwithstanding his list of them in his register.—N. B. At this time Lismore contained a Prior and a convent, and a “house of lepers.” [MS. Cotton. Titus B. xi.] “Worn out with age and infirmities,” says Ware, he resigned his charge in July, 1551(a), having obtained, by writ of privy seal, a pension of eighty marks, to be paid out of the revenues of his see.

1551. PATRICK WALSH, a native of Ireland (a graduate of Brazen-nose College, Oxford), Dean of Waterford, was promoted to these sees by letter dated July 24, directing the Dean and Chapter to elect a fit man. The mandate for his consecration (and restitution of his temporalities) bears date August 12. It is directed to Dominick, Bishop of Cork and Cloyne; John, Bishop of Ross; Robert, Bishop of Leighlin; Nicholas, late Bishop of Lismore and Waterford; and John Moore, suffragan Bishop of Enachdune. [Cod. Clar. 36. Lib. Mun. Hib.] He was consecrated on Oct. 23. He held his deanery in commendam till the year 1566, when he resigned it on the score of age and infirmity. He died in 1578.

1579. MARMADUKE MIDDLETON, who held preferment in the dioceses of Dublin and of Meath, was appointed Bishop by letters patent from Queen Elizabeth, dated May 31, 1579. He did not sit long here, being translated to St. David's,

(a) Among the Lambeth MSS. is an original letter addressed by him to King Henry VIII., offering to resign his bishopric, and recommending Sir Balthasar Butler, Priest, M. A. of Oxford, for his successor: so that he must have contemplated this step for some years before he put it into execution. [Cod. Lamb. 602.]

in Wales, in 1582: but during his incumbency he made several wasteful leases of the see lands. Joshua Boyle observes of him, that being both Bishop and Dean of Waterford, and having in his keeping the Chapter seal of Lismore, he first began to make long leases of all the manors and lands belonging to his bishopric. [Reg. Waterford.]

1582 $\frac{2}{3}$. MILER MAGRATH, Archbishop of Cashel, was appointed to hold these sees in commendam during the pleasure of Queen Elizabeth; he had previously had a letter of privy seal, authorizing him to receive the revenues to his own use, dated Nov. 11, 1582 [Rot. Pat.]; and so held them from Jan. 7, 1582 $\frac{2}{3}$, to July 20, 1589, when the Queen appointed a Bishop. "He confirmed what his predecessors had done; and (so much as he could) alienated the rest." [J. Boyle, ibid.]

During this period that improper transaction took place, by which Archbishop Magrath, in combination with the Dean and Chapter, alienated for ever the manor and see lands of Lismore, together with the castle, which was the Bishop's residence, to Sir Walter Raleigh, for the nominal annual rent of £13 6s. 8d. This church property soon afterwards, viz. in December, 1602, fell into the hands of Sir Richard Boyle, afterwards the first Earl of Cork; from whom the greater part of it is inherited by the Duke of Devonshire at this day.

1589. THOMAS WETHERHEAD, D. D. Archdeacon of Cork, and of Cloyne, and Warden of the College of Youghal, was appointed Bishop, by patent dated July 20, 1589; and was consecrated by Archbishop Magrath. He followed too closely in the steps of his predecessors, in the matter of leasing and alienating the lands of his church. [J. Boyle.] He only lived until the middle of 1592.

1592. MILER MAGRATH again obtained these sees in commendam, by patent dated Dec. 19; and kept possession till Feb. 22, 1607 $\frac{7}{8}$, when he finally resigned them.

1608. JOHN LANCASTER, chaplain to King James I. was appointed Bishop, by patent dated Feb. 26, 1607 $\frac{7}{8}$. In consequence of the great spoliations of his see(a) he had a grant from the crown, dated October 26, 1610, to hold in commendam, for life, the prebend of Fennor, in the diocese of Cashel; the vicarages of Dunquit and Jerpoint, in the diocese of Ossory; the rectory of Kilquillan, and prebend of Donoghmore, in the diocese of Cloyne; the prebends of Effin and St. Munchin's, diocese of Limerick; the treasurership of Lismore; the prebends of Outragh, Kilgobinet, Tullaghorton, Mora, Kilrossanty, and Modeligo, diocese of Lismore; the vicarages of Shanrahan, Ardmore, and Stradbally, in the same diocese; and the prebend of Corbally, in the diocese of Waterford:—King James having specially directed, that besides his bishopric, he should have “other livings to the value of £150, according to the rates of the First Fruits' Office, for his establishment, to keep hospitality.” In 1607 the King had given him a letter under privy seal, dated August 7, to have the bishopric of Ossory, if vacant, or as soon as it should become so, or any other bishopric which should be void at his coming, meet for him, and other livings to the value of £150 a year. [Rot. Pat. 5 Jac. I.] Notwithstanding the above large grant, he petitioned for, and obtained from King James, the vicarage of Mothel, in Lismore diocese, on account of the poverty of his see. [Id.] This vicarage he afterwards resigned in favour of his son. [Rot. Pat. 5 Jac. I.] He died at Waterford in 1619, and was buried in his cathedral church.

1619. MICHAEL BOYLE, D. D. (cousin-german of Richard, first Earl of Cork, brother of Richard, Archbishop of Tuam, and uncle of Michael, Archbishop of Dublin), was a native of London. He was educated at Merchant Tailors' School, and became a Fellow of St. John's College, Oxford. Coming to Ireland, he was made Dean of Lismore, in 1614: and soon afterwards, through the Earl's interest(a), was advanced to this bishopric, by King's letter, dated July 7, 1619, and patent dated March 7, 16 $\frac{1}{2}$ $\frac{9}{10}$. He was also Archdeacon of Cork and of Cloyne, Chancellor of Lismore, and Treasurer of Waterford; and appears to have possessed several other

(a) The following brief statement will give some idea of the amount of Church patronage which this active and far-sighted Peer obtained for members of his family, whom he invited over to Ireland; besides the immense property of all kinds which he acquired for himself; so that, according to his own admission, having come to Dublin with only £27 in his pocket, he at length made himself able to spend £50 a day. See a list of his estates and manors, bequeathed to his sons, in Smith's History of Cork, book i. ch. 1.

Thaddæus Boyle was Vicar of Kilpatrick, in the diocese of Meath; and dying in 1595, was succeeded by Nicholas Boyle. [Lib. Mun.]

Roger Boyle (I.), of Herefordshire, had four sons, 1. Michael Boyle, a merchant of London; 2. Roger (II.); John; and Hugh.

Michael (I.) had one son named Richard, who became successively Warden of the College of Youghal, in 1603; Dean of Waterford, in 1603; Archdeacon of Limerick, in 1605; Bishop of Cork, in 1620; and Archbishop of Tuam, in 1638.

Michael (I.) had another son, named Michael (II.), who was made Dean of Lismore, in 1614; and Bishop of Waterford, in 1619.

Richard, the son of the first-named Michael (of London), had a son named Michael (III.); who became a Prebendary of Cork, and Dean of Cloyne, in 1637; Rector of Clonpriest, in the same year; Rector of Aherne; Chaplain-General to the Forces, during the Rebellion of 1641, &c.; Bishop of Cork in 1669; Archbishop of Dublin, in 1669; and Primate, in 1678.

Roger (II.), son of the first above-mentioned Roger, had an eldest son, named John, who became Bishop of Cork in 1618. His second son was Richard, after-pieces of preferment, in various dioceses, at the same time, and this by the permission and grant of the King himself, dated March 23, 1619-20. He was esteemed a man of excellent parts. He was twice married: first, to Dorothy, daughter of — Fyshe, Esq. of Bedfordshire; second, to Christian, daughter of — Bellot, Esq. of Cheshire. He endeavoured, like his predecessor, to recover his see-property; “but being made incapable of action by his indisposed body, he died without effecting much.” [J. Boyle.] Dying at Waterford on Dec. 27, 1635, he was there interred, in his cathedral church.

1636. JOHN ATHERTON, D. D. (son of Rev. John Atherton, a Prebendary of St. Paul’s, London), was a native of Somersetshire, and a member of Pembroke and Lincoln wards Earl of Cork, whose abilities laid the foundation of all the fortunes of his family.

Laurence Boyle was Vicar of Kilfedane and Killofin, in the diocese of Killaloe, in 1618.

In 1618, Roger Boyle is a Prebendary of Cloyne; and in 1623, a Prebendary of Lismore.

John Boyle was Chancellor of Down, and a Prebendary of Ferns, in 1629; and also held a benefice of five parishes in the diocese of Aghonry.

Robert Boyle was Prebendary of Tullyeorbet, in the diocese of Clogher, in 1629.

Another Robert Boyle was Prebendary of Clonmethan, in St. Patrick’s, Dublin, in 1642, &c.

Thomas Boyle was Vicar of Timoleague, in the diocese of Cork, in 1630; and also held preferment in the diocese of Ross, in 1641.

In 1641 Richard Boyle was Rector of Aghaballogue, and of Aghinagh, both in the diocese of Cloyne.

At a somewhat later period we find two brothers of this family (whose sons they were, I have not ascertained):

1. Richard, Dean of Limerick in 1661; Treasurer of Lismore, in 1664; Bishop of Ferns, in 1666.

2. Roger, Rector of Carrigaline, county of Cork, in 1661; a Prebendary of Cork, in 1662; Dean of Cork, in 1663; Præcentor of Ross in one month afterwards, which last preferment he exchanged within the same year for the treasurership of Cloyne; Bishop of Down, in 1667; of Clogher, in 1672.

Colleges in Oxford. Having come over to this country, he became a Prebendary, and afterwards Chancellor, of Christ Church, Dublin. In 1634 he was made Chancellor of Killaloe. On account of his great knowledge of canon law and ecclesiastical affairs, he was promoted to these sees by the Earl of Strafford, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, by patent dated May 4, 1636; and was consecrated in Christ Church, Dublin, on Saturday, May 28, by Lancelot, Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Cork, Ardagh, and Killaloe. [Chapt. B. of Ch. Ch. Dublin.] He, like his two immediate predecessors, had royal grants to hold other preferments, in aid of his sees, which had been grievously impoverished under Archbishop Miler Magrath. He improved, or rather rebuilt, the see-house of Waterford; and repeatedly endeavoured to recover some of the church property, which had been alienated from the sees of Waterford and Lismore, by different prelates during the previous century, and had fallen into lay hands; but he met with determined opposition from the powerful families then in possession, and his efforts were attended with only partial success. See a private Act of Parliament, dated 1640, in the Rolls' Office, Dublin, reciting the particulars of an arbitration between the Earl of Cork and the Bishop, on this subject; and see many other particulars respecting his labours in this way, in Joshua Boyle's "View of the Temporalities and Spiritualities of the united Bishoprics of Waterford and Lismore," a manuscript preserved in the Diocesan Registry of Waterford. His crime and sad end are too well known. He was buried at St. John's, Dublin.

1641. ARCHIBALD ADAIR, D. D., a Scotchman, Dean of Raphoe, and formerly Bishop of Killala (of which he had been deprived, for some expressions thought too favourable to the Scotch rebels), was advanced to these sees, by patent dated July 13, 1641. He only had time to hold his primary visitation; for, the rebellion breaking out soon afterwards, he was forced to fly into England. He died at Bristol, about the year 1647.

1660 $\frac{9}{1}$. GEORGE BAKER, B. D. The see having been left vacant during the time of the Commonwealth, was filled on Jan. 19, 1660 $\frac{9}{1}$, by George Baker, a native of Dublin, and a Fellow of Trinity College. He was consecrated on January 27, at St. Patrick's, Dublin, in company with eleven other prelates, by the Archbishop of Armagh, assisted by the Bishops of Raphoe, Kilmore, and Ossory. The Bishop of Clogher (Jones) was also present at these consecrations; but he only held the Bible for the Primate, and did not assist in the laying on of hands. [Elrington.] He died at Waterford, on Nov. 13, 1665, and was buried in his cathedral.

1666. HUGH GORE, B. D. a native of Maiden-Newton, Dorsetshire, was educated at the school of Lismore. He afterwards went to Trinity College, Oxford, and thence to Trinity College, Dublin, where he graduated. His first preferment was in Wales; but being disturbed in those parts by the abettors of demoeracy in Church and State, he came once more to Ireland. In 1641 he held the prebend of Tullaghorton, in the cathedral of Lismore. He obtained from the Crown the dignity of Chancellor of Cashel, together with the vicarage of Cahir, in 1661; and the deanery of Lismore, with the vicarage of Clonmel, and the rectory of Inislaughtnacht, in 1664; was appointed Bishop, by patent dated February 21, 1665 $\frac{2}{6}$; and was consecrated on March 25, 1666, either in Clonmel or Cashel, by the Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Cork, Ossory, and Killaloe.

He was a considerable benefactor to his cathedral of

Waterford; and his memory is still holden in honour throughout his diocese, for many acts of liberality and public spirit; among others, the foundation of the Alms-houses for clergymen's widows in the city of Waterford. In 1679 he gave £200 towards the restoration of Lismore cathedral. The Earl of Cork and Burlington contributed an equal sum. By his will the Bishop bequeathed £200 additional, for beautifying the cathedral. [Chap. Book.] Having met with excessive personal violence from "some Irish ruffians" in 1689(a), the Bishop retired to Wales, where he died in 1690 or 1691, at the age of eighty years. See in Harris' Ware an account of the exertions successfully made by his executor to carry out the beneficent provisions of his will.

1691. NATHANAEL FOY, D. D. the son of Dr. John Foy, a physician of Dublin, was born at York. He became a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin. He was ordained Priest, on May 29, 1670 [Consist. Off. Dublin]; and in October of that year was appointed a Canon of Kildare. He distinguished himself by fearlessly defending the doctrines of Protestantism, from the pulpit of St. Brigid's, Dublin, at the time when Popery was openly encouraged there by King James II. and when his firmness exposed him to continual danger of imprisonment and personal violence. For this good service he was promoted by King William III. to these sees, by patent dated July 13, 1691, and was consecrated in St. Bride's Church, Dublin, on August 9, by his Metropolitan, the Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Meath, Raphoe, and Killaloe. He died in Dublin, on Wednesday, December 31, 1707; and was buried in his cathedral of Waterford, at the west end, in St. Saviour's Chapel, where the Consistorial Court was kept. [Parish Reg.]

During his lifetime he spent large sums on the improvement of the palace at Waterford; and by will bequeathed to the city a noble benefaction, in the free school erected at Grantstown; the particulars of which foundation, as well as of his other charities, may be seen at length in Harris' edition of Ware.

1708. THOMAS MILLES, D.D. (son of the Rev. Isaac Milles, Rector of High Clere, in the diocese of Winchester, or of the Rev. Joseph Milles, Vicar of Chipping Wycombe, in Buckinghamshire [according to Harris]), was a native of Hampshire, and became a member of Wadham College, Oxford; and afterwards was Vice-Principal of St. Edmund's Hall, in that University. After proceeding to the degree of B. D. he was appointed Regius Professor of the Greek language, in the year 1704; but three years afterwards he resigned that office, and came to Ireland as Chaplain to the Earl of Pembroke, Lord Lieutenant; by whose interest he was advanced to these sees, by patent dated March 11, 1707. He was consecrated in St. Patrick's, Dublin, on April 18, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Down and Cork.

He was a man of considerable learning; published several pieces, noticed below (a), and is well known for his valuable edition of St. Cyril of Jerusalem, printed at Oxford in 1703, in folio. He died at Waterford, on May 13, 1740, and was buried in the cathedral.

He was translated to the sees of Waterford and Lismore, by patent dated October 4. [Lib. Mun. Hib.] He died on November 29, 1745, and was buried in St. Michan's, Dublin. A portrait of him is preserved in the Hall of Christ Church, Oxford.

1746. RICHARD CHENEVIX, D. D. who had been Bishop of Killaloe for a few months only, was translated to these sees, by patent dated January 15, 1745.

He was a prelate of great singleness of heart and benevolence; by his will, dated August 13, 1779, he left to the diocese of Waterford £1000, the interest to be given to clergymen's widows; and to the diocese of Lismore a similar sum, the interest of which was to be expended for the benefit of the diocese, at the discretion of the Bishop. [Bishop Mant's History.] He died at Waterford, on September 11, 1779; and was buried in St. Mary's Church, Dublin. His only daughter and heiress, Melesina, married Richard Trench, Barrister, brother of the first Lord Ashtown.

1779. WILLIAM NEWCOME, D. D. an Englishman, Bishop of Dromore, and afterwards of Ossory, was translated to these sees on the death of Dr. Chenevix. His patent bears date November 5, 1779. [Lib. Bishop Newcome was a man of considerable erudition; his valuable theological publications are enumerated below(a).

Stuart, in his History of Armagh, p. 461, says of Bishop Newcome:—"It is said that there is extant an interesting manuscript memoir of the Archbishop, written by himself, in which he details at some length the progress of his studies, and points out the sources from which he had derived his theological opinions."

Also, that "he had bestowed much time and attention on an attempt towards revising our English translation of the Hebrew Scriptures. The result of his labours on this curious subject was noted down in an interleaved Bible in four volumes, which he bequeathed to the library at Lambeth palace."

See the "Catalogue of the Archiepiscopal Manuscripts at Lambeth" [Cod. 1174], where this last work is described as being in that collection.

He was an accomplished scholar, and of most engaging manners. [Mant's History.] He died at Celbridge, near Dublin, on July 1, 1802.

1802. HON. POWER LE POER TRENCH, D. D. (fourth son of William, first Earl of Clancarty), Vicar of Ballinasloe, was appointed Bishop, by patent dated September 27, 1802 [Lib. Mun. Hib.]; and was consecrated at Tuam (by commission from the Archbishop of Cashel), on November 21, by the Archbishop of Tuam, assisted by the Bishops of Kilmore and Clonfert. [Reg. Tuam.] He was translated to Elphin in 1810, and subsequently to the archbishopric of Tuam.

1810. JOSEPH STOCK, D. D. a Scholar and Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, afterwards a Prebendary of Lismore, and then Bishop of Killala, was translated, by patent dated May 1, 1810. [Lib. Mun. Hib.] Dr. Stock was a distinguished scholar. Some of his published works are enumerated below(a). He died at Waterford, on August 13, 1813, and was buried in his cathedral.

1813. HON. RICHARD BOURKE, M. A. (second son of Joseph, third Earl of Mayo), Dean of Ardagh, was raised to these sees, by patent dated September 18, 1813 [Lib. Mun. Hib.]; and was consecrated at Cashel, on October 10, by the Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Clonfert and Limerick. He died in 1833, and was interred in the burying ground of his family at Kill, near Naas, in the county of Kildare. After his death the sees of Waterford and Lismore were united to that of Cashel, by Act of Parliament (3 & 4 Will. IV. chap. 37), and from that period Archbishop Laurence became also Bishop of Waterford and Lismore.

DEAN AND CHAPTER.

SEAL.

AN ancient seal of the Chapter is engraved in Ware's History; it has no date. A lease from the Dean and Chapter, dated 1557, now in Trinity College library, Dublin (Chart. Hib. No. 231), has an impression of the Chapter seal, but much defaced.

The Chapter of Waterford is noticed so early as A. D. 1210. It was founded by King John, and was endowed with lands for the support of twelve Canons and twelve Vicars. Subsequently it appears to have consisted of a Dean, Præcentor, Chancellor, Treasurer, Archdeacon, and four (or six) Prebendaries. Considerable changes have since taken place in its constitution. The Royal Commissioners of King James I. found, in 1615, that the cathedral body consisted of four dignitaries, four prebendaries, four chaplains, with an organist and beadle. Those twelve clergymen served by turns the eight churches in the city, viz. the Cathedral, St. Olave's, St. Peter's, St. Patrick's, St. Stephen's, St. John's, St. Michael's, and the Church of the Holy Ghost. [Reg. Vis.] The prebends, having become nearly valueless, possibly owing to the Rebellion of 1641, and the confusion which followed until the Restoration of King Charles II. have remained vacant for many years; and the Prebendaries have ceased to be members of the Chapter. The Archdeacon likewise is not now a member, though he formerly was so in his capacity of Prebendary of St. Patrick's. The Chapter at present consists only of the four chief dignitaries.

“The Mayor and Corporation of Waterford are to support and keep in good repair the body of the cathedral church. There are seven chapels within the walls of the said cathedral church, which are to be kept in repair as followeth, viz.: 1. Our Lady's Chapel, by the corporation of Waterford; 2. St. Saviour's, by the six chaplains; 3. St. James's, or Rice's chapel, by the heirs of Nicholas Maddan of Whitfieldstown; 4. St. John the Evangelist's, by the heirs of Nicholas Maddan and John Walsh Fitz-Robert; 5. St. Nicholas', by the heirs of John Sherlock of Grace Dieu, and Peter Butler; 6. St. Katherine's, by the heirs of William Lincoll and Andrew Lee; 7. St. Anne's, by the heirs of Thomas White fitz Thomas, and Peter Barron. Upon the foundation of these chapels the proprietors of them severally were to maintain their chaplain, to attend Divine Service.” [Joshua Boyle's MS.]

“The Lord Bishop, the Dignitaries and Præbends,

The following interesting particulars, relating to the family and the earlier years of this esteemed Prelate, have been most kindly communicated to me by his daughter (by his first marriage), partly from her own personal knowledge, and partly from a memoir composed by the Bishop himself. [See p. 133.]

William Newcome was the second of three sons of the Rev. Joseph Newcome, vicar of St. Helen's, in Abingdon, Berkshire, and Rector of Barton le Clay, in Bedfordshire. He was born on April 19, 1729. He received his early education at the Grammar-School of Abingdon, and in 1745 was elected a Scholar of Pembroke College, Oxford.

Here he soon manifested a remarkable love of literature; and not only read largely, but, with a strict spirit of order and precision, divided his reading into distinct branches; by which means he managed to acquire a vast extent of sound and solid knowledge. In 1753, he was chosen one of the Fellows of Hertford College, and became its Vice-Principal and Tutor; and in the same year proceeded to the degree of M. A. He was admitted into Holy Orders by Archbishop Secker, then Bishop of Oxford, in 1753 and 1754; shortly after which, he held the curacy of West Wickham, in Kent, for a few years; but returned to live in Oxford.

In 1759 he was appointed Chaplain to the Duke of Marlborough. In June, 1760, he was appointed one of the Oxford Preachers at Whitehall; and in October of that year was intrusted with the education of the Hon. H. Seymour Conway, second son of the Earl of Hertford. In 1764, the celebrated statesman, Charles James Fox, became one of his pupils. In 1765, he took the degrees of B. D. and D. D. And on the Earl of Hertford becoming Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, that nobleman nominated Dr. Newcome his second chaplain; carried him over to Ireland; and within twelve months, unsolicited, promoted him to the bishopric of Dromore.

In 1767, Dr. Newcome married the daughter of Sir Thomas D'Oyly; and that lady dying in 1769, the Bishop, in 1772, married Anna Maria, daughter of Edward Smyth, of the County Fermanagh, Esq., son of William Smyth, Archbishop of Meath, and grandson of Dr. William Smyth, who was successively Bishop of Killala, of Raphoe, and of Kilmore.

In 1775, Dr. Newcome was translated from Dromore to the see of Ossory; and in 1779, to that of Waterford and Lismore. In 1788 he received from the Marquess of Buckingham, then Lord Lieutenant, the flattering intelligence that he had been recommended as a most fit person to succeed to the Primacy, by no less personages than Mr. Pitt, the Archbishop of Canterbury, and King George III. himself. It fell to the lot of Lord Fitzwilliam to be the instrument of giving effect to that recommendation, in the year 1795.

The Memoir of the Bishop's habits and literary pursuits, referred to above, contains an enumeration of the various books which he read with his pupils at Oxford, whose improvement he appears to have studied with deep solicitude. He likewise found time to pursue his own studies with advantage, and to compose several valuable works; and this he effected, not by sitting up very late, nor by rising particularly early, but by arranging his time skilfully, and not suffering any portion of it to be wasted.

In addition to those printed pieces which I have enumerated (at p. 133), I now learn that the Bishop published some single Sermons, in 1767, and following years. One of those was preached in 1767, before the Irish House of Lords; the subject of it being a Comparison between the Doctrines of Christianity and those of Popery. Another, preached at Christ Church, Dublin, was entitled “The Opposition between Popery and Holy Scripture briefly stated.” He published some others, singly, upon various subjects; and reprinted Archbishop Seeker’s Five Sermons on Popery, with a Preface; adding to them Jortin’s “Brief View of the Errors of Popery.”

In 1789, our Bishop was mainly instrumental in carrying into execution one of his favourite plans, namely, the institution of a Society for promoting Christian knowledge and practice in Ireland, by printing and distributing the Holy Scriptures, and religious and moral books and tracts. This afterwards was enlarged into the Association for Discountenancing Vice, &c. &c., which obtained a royal charter of incorporation in 1800, and continues its edifying labours to this day.

With respect to Bishop Newcome’s design of revising the authorized English version of the Old Testament, the following memorandum has been left by Bishop Stock, of Killala, who had married his wife’s sister, and was executor of his will:—“Though in the midst of trouble from the dangerous state of the country, the Primate persevered in his purpose of going through the whole of the Old Testament in the original, and of correcting our English version after the manner of his corrected version of the New. His advanced age precluded the hope that he should be able to execute this last work as completely as the former; but he declared his wish to be only to furnish materials to others who should come after him. In this view he went on, encouraged by the laudable example of that excellent prelate, Archbishop Seeker; and like him he dedicated his corrections and notes on the Old Testament, in three interleaved folio volumes of the English received version, as a present to the Lambeth Library; and with great satisfaction he saw the conclusion of this enterprize about February, 1799."

Those three volumes, being the English Bible of the Oxford edition, folio, 1772, are now safely deposited in the Archbishopal Library at Lambeth, by the side of the manuscript collections of his friend, Archbishop Secker. And it may interest some portion of the public to be informed, that four more volumes (viz. an interleaved Hebrew Bible), containing notes supplemental to those before-mentioned, which had been borrowed by a clergyman many years ago, have been recently restored to the Primate's family, and by them have been deposited in the same safe resting-place as the others, pursuant to the learned author's desire, expressed by his own hand in the books themselves.

Many of the foregoing particulars have been already given to the public, in Chalmers' Biographical Dictionary, but with less fulness and accuracy of detail. The biographer omitted to notice two or three of the Bishop's printed works, and is not correct in stating, that his Attempt at a revised translation of the New Testament was published after the author's death. For, in fact, he lived four years after the publication of that work; but died eight years before the appearance of another, very different translation, which the Unitarians unscrupulously set forth in 1808, as "An improved version, upon the basis of Archbishop Newcome's new Translation." This performance was ably reviewed in 1810, by Dr. E. Nares, in his "Remarks, &c. &c.;" and was afterwards critically dissected by Archbishop Laurence, in his "Critical Reflections upon some important Misrepresentations contained in the Unitarian Version of the New Testament." 8vo. 1811.

with their tennants, families, and followers, and all other the inhabitants within the precinets of the Church, have been, from the primary foundation of the same, ever exempted from the Corporation of the city, and any the Regency thereof: and have had, and ought to have, a peculiar Liberty and Prison within themselves, ordered and used by the Bishop of this See and his Seneschall, with all such privileges and immunities as appertain to any other Bishop or Cathedral Church." 1566. PETER WHITE, M. A. a native of Waterford, and a Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford, a Prebendary of Kilkenny, was promoted, at the warm recommendation of his predecessor, Bishop Walsh, who spoke of him as being "a man very well learned, and of virtuous sober conversation, by whose industry and travail a great part of the youth, both of this county (Waterford), and of the County of Dublin, have greatly profited in learning and virtuous education." His appointment took place on June 22, by election of the Chapter. It appears that the Lord

Deputy, Sir Henry Sidney, wished to appoint him, and wrote to the Bishop on the subject. The Bishop in his reply stated that the deanery was elective. [Cooper.] The Deputy upon this addressed a letter to the Dean and Chapter, urging them to elect him, which was complied with. He resigned, or rather was dispossessed for non-conformity, in 1570; and from that time till his death kept an excellent school, at which many eminent scholars were educated. [See the Diocese of Ossory, p. 414.] He wrote some small pieces, which are enumerated by Ware, in his History of the Writers of Ireland.

PRÆCENTORS.

Though this dignity was founded so early as the thirteenth century, I have scarcely been able to recover the name of any Præcentor until a comparatively recent period.

(About 1450 to 1455). THOMAS FRAYNE, having been presented to the rectory of Kilbarrymeaden [Kilbarrymeaden is part of the corps of the præcentorship] by the Bishop, and admitted and inducted, continued in quiet possession for eight years; until William Winchester pretended a Papal provision to that church. "The said Winchester is ordered into custody of the Marshal, until he prove his right." [MS. Statute, 3 Edw. IV. in Turr. Berm.]

the Crown, on May 13; admitted August 17. [Lib. Mun. Hib.] From his death (after the year 1641) it remained vacant till 1662.

1662. GEORGE BAKER, M. A. (a son of the Bishop of Waterford) collated April 29. [FF.] I find that he was likewise presented by the Crown, on February 1, 1667-8; and admitted February 22. [Ibid.] In the Diocesan Registry of Cashel his title is dated December 23, 1669. Possibly his earlier titles may have been deemed informal. [Vis. Book.]

1669. EZECHIEL HOPKINS, D. D. a native of Devonshire, came to Ireland as Chaplain to Lord Truro, Lord Lieutenant. He was presented by the Crown, on November 22. [Ibid.] By the same grant he obtained a prebend in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin; and in 1670 was made Dean of Raphoe. In 1671 he was raised to the bishopric of Raphoe; and in 1681 was translated to Derry. See some account of his writings, under Raphoe.

1679⁹/₈₀. ROBERT HAWORTH, M. A. admitted January 21.

1684. BARZILLAI JONES, M. A. Dean of Lismore; collated October 23. [FF.] In 1686 he resigned this dignity, for the Chancellorship.

1686⁶/₇. THOMAS DEANE, M. A. a Prebendary of Kilkeenny; collated January 20. In 1704 he was a Proctor for the clergy, in Convocation; and (I believe) was made Dean of Cloyne. He died in 1714.

1714. ISAAC MILLES, M. A. educated at Sidney Sussex College, Cambridge; quære, ordained Deacon at Bandon, on March 16, 1709⁹/₁, by Bishop Downes of Cork? [Bp. Downes' Journal, MS.] Collated May 21. In 1716 he held a prebend in the church of Lismore. He resigned in 1727.

1727. HUGH WALLINGTON, M. A. educated at Caius College, Cambridge, succeeded Milles, on August 29, in this dignity, and in his prebend of Lismore. He died in 1742, and was buried in the cathedral of Waterford.

1742. JOHN FELL, M. A. a Prebendary of Lismore; collated November 30. He died in August, 1754, and was buried in the cathedral of Waterford.

1754. JOSEPH MOORE, M. A. (D. D. in 1784), a Prebendary of Lismore. He died in 1794, at Clonmel, of which he had been Rector fifty-seven years, and was buried there.

1795. RICHARD RYLAND, D. D. collated January 16. He was also a Prebendary of Lismore. He died in January, 1800, and was buried at Dungarvan.

1800. WILLIAM BUSHE, B. A. a Prebendary of Lismore; collated April 9. He was likewise Rector of St. George's, in Dublin. He resigned in 1808.

1808. JOHN HUGHES, B. A. collated January 9; installed the same day. He died in July, 1831; and was buried in St. John's churchyard, Waterford.

1831. RICHARD JONES HOBSON, M. A. Archdeacon of Waterford, and Vicar-General of both dioceses, was collated July 19; installed July 20. In 1830 he obtained a prebend in Lismore. He is the present Treasurer.

ARCHDEACONS.

1200 (about). BARTHOLOMEW appears. [MS. T. C. D. F. i. 18.]

1220. HENRY was Archdeacon. [Ibid.]

1249. HENRY, Archdeacon, was elected Bishop by the Chapter, and was confirmed by the King. [Ware.]

1300. WALTER, Archdeacon, appears as witness to a grant of King Edward I. [Rot. plac. 28 Edw. I. printed in "Chartæ et Priv." p. 39.]

1339. WILLIAM, Archdeacon, was witness to a grant (made by the monks of the Hospital of St. John, Waterford), which was enrolled in this year. [King's Collections.] (1582?) THOMAS PEACOCKE. He died, or resigned, in 1585. [MS. T. C. D. E. 3. 14.]

1588. Vacant, and had been so for the last three years. [Ibid.]

1615. ROBERT HUSTLER, "a Deacon," was sequestrator. [Reg. Vis.]

162 $\frac{2}{3}$. NATHANAEL LYNCH, M. A. a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, was presented by the Crown, on March 16; admitted March 28; on the same day (16th) he was also made a Prebendary of Kilkenny. [Lib. Mun. Hib.] He was again presented, to both preferments, on September 3, 1629. [Rolls Office.]

In 1634 the Regal Visitors return, "Archdeacon, Nathanael Lynch, vacant." In 1661, it is stated, that "there hath been no Archdeacon for a long time, the tythes having been passed away to others; so that the dignity, which ancient records assert was worth 100 marks, in privie tythes and offerings, is now worth only twenty shillings." [Vis. Book, and Boyle's MS.]

166 $\frac{2}{3}$. RICHARD DEANE, B. D. collated January 8; installed the same day. He was also a Prebendary of Lismore. [FF.] He resigned in 1667.

N. B. In 1669, the archdeaconry is stated to be vacant; and it so continued under sequestrators until 1773.

1773. GEORGE LOUIS FLEURY, B. A. (M. A. in 1790), a Scholar of Trinity College, Dublin, descended from an ancient and honorable family in France, whom the bigotry of Louis XIV. compelled to quit their country, was presented by the Crown, by lapse, vice Moore (sequestrator), who surrendered. [Lib. Mun.] His patent is dated July 15; he was admitted July 20. He was a Prebendary of Lismore at this time ; but exchanged his prebend for the treasurership in 1785. After holding his archdeaconry fifty-two years, he died, at Waterford, in 1825.

1825. RICHARD JONES HOBSON, M. A. (ordained Deacon, by the Bishop of Clonfert, on February 17, 1811) collated November 7 ; installed November 12. In May 1823, he was appointed Vicar-General of the dioceses of Waterford and Lismore. On July 18, 1831, he resigned, and was made Treasurer.

1831. JAMES KENNEDY, M. A. collated September 1 ; installed September 3. In August 1845 he resigned, and became Rector of Abington, in the diocese of Emly.

1845. ROBERT BELL, M. A. (son of Dr. Robert Bell, Præcentor of Emly) collated November 1.

PREBENDARIES.

It is to be regretted that the account of these is so meagre and imperfect.

1291. In the Taxation of Pope Nicholas IV. three prebends are mentioned, besides those of the Præcentor, Chancellor, Treasurer, and Archdeacon. These three, which are not named, were then held by Adam de Fullebourn, M. A.

Adam de Hanedone, M. A.

William Wermemse, D. D.

1535. In the Taxation of King Henry VIII. six are named, viz.,

Kilronan.

Corbally.

Rossduff.

Ballynakill.

St. Patrick's in Waterford.

Ballygunner.

1615. The Royal Commissioners sent forth by King James, in this year, found that there were four (alias six) Prebendaries belonging to the cathedral, in addition to the four Dignitaries.

1634. The Royal Commissioners return, "Four Prebends, all vacant." And they are classed among the "lapsed livings and impropriations." [Prerog. Office.]

1. KILRONAN.

1551. MELCHIOR BUTLER was presented by the Crown, July 7. [Lib. Mun. Hib.]

1588. JOHN MIDDLETON appears. [MS. T. C. D. E. 3. 14.]

About 1591. WILLIAM HOLMES, a layman, was deprived by the Royal Visitors, for lack of orders. [Ibid.]

1615. Vacant ("for how long, we know not"), no person being willing to accept it, because that Archbishop Magrath had leased it (in fee-farm?) to Paul Sherlock, reserving only ten shillings annual rent. [Reg. Vis.] Another copy states, that Mr. Clavell was the person who leased it. Joshua Boyle, in 1661, affirmed that it was well worth twenty pounds yearly, but that it was leased to Sherlock at 7s. 6d. per annum.

1663. JOHN DALTON, M. A. appears in the Visitation Book of this year, and until 1675; at which time, and from thenceforward, this prebend has been declared vacant. In 1682 John Dalton was appointed Præcentor, and in 1692 became Dean(a).

(a) It may be observed of these prebends, in answer to the assertion made in Harris' Edition of Ware's Bishops, p. 547, viz. "it is certain, that since the Restoration in 1660, there have been no such members belonging to that Chapter;"

2. CORBALLY.

- 135^g. HENRY LEYCESTRE, presented by the Crown, with a mandate to instal, &c. Jan. 20. [Rot. Pat. 32 Edw. III.]
1588. BRIAN FLOYD appears. [MS. T. C. D. E. 3. 14.]
- 1591? LANCELOT LUKAR, a layman, is deprived by the Royal Visitors, for want of Orders. [Ibid.]
- 159— MAURICE QUOAN is said to have leased its revenues away, (at some period not then known) in the Regal Visitation Book of 1615. In 1591 he was a Prebendary of Lismore.
1615. This prebend is void, “we know not how long, being leased away by Archbishop Magrath,” to Peter Walsh, “at eight shillings a year,” and under sequestration; R. Hustler, the Archdeacon, being sequestrator. [Reg. Vis.]
1636. HENRY BOLTON was collated, December 14. [FF.]
- 163⁷. JOHN GORE, M. A. Archdeacon of Lismore; collated February 22. For some reason not known, he appears to have been a second time collated, on December 15, 1640, and installed the same day. [FF.]
- Joshua Boyle, in 1661, says: “It belongs to my friend, Mr. Henry Bolton: the tythes appropriated to it are worth £20 yearly.”
1663. ARTHUR STANHOPE, LL. D. Archdeacon of Lismore, collated October 10; installed same day. [FF.] He appears in the Visitation Book until 1678, in which year he was promoted to be Dean; when this prebend is declared vacant, and has so continued to this day.

that in the Archbishop of Cashel's triennial Visitation Book of 1663, all the prebends are pronounced full, and the Prebendaries appear. In 1669 and 1672, two of the four appear as members of the Chapter; the two other prebends are vacant. In 1678, three are vacant. In 1681, all are vacant. In 1699, the same; (yet proxies were still charged for each, two of which were then payable by the Rev. Thomas France, Vicar of Kilmeaden, Kilbride, &c.) In the Visitation Book of 1730, they are under sequestration to the Rev. John Fell. They continued to appear in the Visitation Books till the year 17—.

3. ROSSDUFF.

1588. PATRICK LINCOLN appears. [MS. T. C. D. E. 3. 14.]

1615. This prebend is vacant, "no one will take it;" because Archbishop Miler Magrath had leased away its revenues to Richard Curwin, reserving only a rent of 6s. 8d. to the Prebendary. [Reg. Vis.]

1663. DANIEL BURSTON, B. D. appears in the Visitation Book of this year. It would seem that he was "minister of the cathedral" (perhaps reader and preacher), in the year 1661. [See a note below(a), from the Register of Baptisms, &c. &c. in Waterford cathedral.] He was also Præcentor of Lismore. In 1670 he became Dean.

Mr. Burston published a work, which he entitled "ΕΥΑΓΓΕΛΙΣΤΗΣ ΕΥΑΓΓΕΛΙΖΟΜΕΝΟΣ, or The Evangelist yet evangelizing; submitted to the Judgment of the Churches of England and Ireland." 4to. Dublin, 1662 (pp. 286). The object of this treatise is to defend the Episcopal Church against the exceptions of the Presbyterians. It is dedicated to the Duke of Ormonde; and has a long preface, addressed to the Presbyterian Dissenters. The Irish Convocation, assembled in December, 1662, approved this work, and returned their solemn thanks to the author. [MS. Lambeth, 684.]

In 1669 this prebend is declared vacant; and has continued so to this day.

4. ST. PATRICK'S.

1615. "This prebend has been united to the archdeaconry, by the late Archbishop Miler Magrath; but the union

"Margaret Burston, daughter of Mr. Daniel Burston, Minister of this cathedral church, was born at Tallough, in the County of Waterford, the 24th of February, 1655, and was baptized by Mr. Francis Bernard, in the parish church of Tallough, aforesaid, the eleventh day of March next following: which, at the request of the said Daniel Burston, was registered in this book, because the times wherein she was born and baptized were very disorderly, and few or no Register Books, unless after a new fashion, were kept in any parish of this kingdom."

has not been confirmed by the Dean and Chapter." [Reg. Vis. in Berm. Tower.] "Robert Hustler (the Archdeacon) is Sequestrator." [Reg. Vis. in Prerog. Office.]

1661. "There is a house belonging to this Prebend, now ruined. It was worth heretofore in offerings and pryvie tythes £20 yearly : but now de ejusdem valore quære." [J. Boyle.]

1663. NATHANAEL SPENSER, or SPENCER; a prebendary of Lismore, appears in the Visitation Books of this year. He resigned in, or before, April 1667. In 1669 this prebend was declared vacant, and has remained so to this day.

5. BALLYGUNNER OR BALLYGONE.

1582 (circa). It is called "Parcel of the Dean and Chapter." In fact, the Dean and Chapter hold it to this day.

6. KILCARAGH.

1615. This, which now forms part of the deanery, is named as a separate prebend, in a book of Regal Visitation of this date. [Berm. Tower.]

7. BALLYNAKILL.

This now forms part of the common estate of the Dean and Chapter.

VICARS CHORAL.

"The dignitaries of the Cathedral Church of Waterford and the Mayor and Corporation of the city, especially divers of the citizens, have, in former time, maintained six Vicars Choral, and six choristers, an organist, clerk, and sexton, to attend Divine Service. There were also maintained by the chappels in the said Cathedral six Chaplains, to say and attend Divine Service in the Quire." [MS. of Joshua Boyle.]

There is no trace of these Vicars Choral, choristers, &c. &c. remaining at the present day.

DIOCESE OF LISMORE.

THE see of Lismore claims a very high antiquity, having been founded in the earlier part of the seventh century, by St. Carthagh, a native of Kerry, Abbat of Ratheny, in the county of Westmeath; where it is said that he governed a very large number of monks, under a religious rule of extraordinary strictness. Having been compelled to quit his abbey in the year 631, he established himself at Lismore, founded a church, and became its first Bishop. Soon after the arrival of the English invaders, the small but ancient diocese of Ardmore was incorporated with that of Lismore. In the beginning of the thirteenth century some attempts were made to unite the dioceses of Lismore and Waterford: those were renewed in 1225; and again in 1326. At length a real union of the two was made by Pope Urban I. in the year 1363, and his bull was confirmed by King Edward III. on October 7 in that year.

SUCCESSION OF BISHOPS.

Between A.D. 631 and 636. St. CARTHAGH (familiarily called by the peasantry Mo-ehuddy, i. e. my dear Carthagh), Abbat of Ratheny, in the county of Westmeath. About the year 631, he was driven from his abbey by the petty princee of that district; and, travelling southward, obtained a refuge and some land at the place which thenceforward was called Lismore; here he founded a cathedral, of which he himself became the first Bishop. It is also believed that Carthagh was the founder of a school at Lismore, which afterwards rose to great celebrity. He died on May 14, 637 or 638, and was interred in his own cathedral. He wrote a "Rule for Monks," in the Irish language; a copy of which is in the Bodleian Library, at Oxford [MS. Laud. F. 92.]; and another was,

(in 1820), in the possession of Mr. Edward O'Reilly, Assistant Secretary to the Celtic Society of Ireland.

Lanigan conjectures, that perhaps St. Cuanna, who had been governor of a monastery or church in the County of Galway, and was a maternal brother of St. Carthagh, succeeded him in the see. [Eecl. Hist. vol. iii. p. 357.]

698. The next Bishop whom we find noticed (for Sir James Ware observes that but few memoirs remain of the successors of Carthagh for about five centuries), was HIEROLOGUS, or JARLAITH; who is styled, as not unusual at those times, both Bishop and Abbat. He died on January 16, 698.

698. COLMAN (or Mo-CHOLMOC) succeeded Hierologus, both as Bishop and Abbat. In his time the school of Lismore enjoyed a higher degree of reputation than any other seminary in Ireland. He died on January 22, 702.

702. CRONAN, a man of noble birth, and for his learning called "the wise." He died on February 9, 717.

725. COLMAN O-LIATHAIN, "a learned doctor," died about 725.

746. MAC-OGE died.

763. RONAN died.

908. CORMAC MAC-CULENAN, Prince of Desies (of the same name with a King and Bishop of Cashel, then living, but said to be a different person; however, upon this point see Lanigan's Eecl. Hist. vol. iii. p. 349), died in 908 or 918. Mageoghegan asserts that he was killed by some of his own family, in 916.

1025. O-MAEL-SLUAIG died.

1034. MORIERTACH O-SELBACH died.

1091. MAEL DUIN O-REBACAIN died.

1113? MAC-MIC-ÆDUCAN died, in 1113, or 1119, or 1123.

See Lanigan's Ecclesiastical History, vol. iv. p. 74.

1129. GILLA MOCHUDA (i. e. the servant of Carthagh) O-RE-BACAIN died.
- 1134 (circa). MALCHUS, an Irishman by birth, but educated in England, and a monk of Winchester, was made Bishop. He was then an old man, of exemplary life and great learning. Malachy O'Morgair, Archbishop of Armagh, had been his pupil. Ware doubts whether or not he were the same person as Maelmonechus O'Lonsec, whom the Irish Annals call Bishop of Lismore, who died in 1150.
1150. CHRISTIAN O'CONARCHY, who was born at Taughonarchie, a village between Lismore and Dungarvan [John Hartry], and had been a pupil, and afterwards Archdeacon to Malachy O'Morgair, either in the diocese of Armagh or Down, was sent by him to St. Bernard at Clairvaux, to be instructed in the rules of the Cistercian Order. St. Bernard having sent him back to Ireland, he became first Abbat of Mellifont; about A. D. 1150, he was consecrated Bishop of Lismore, and was appointed the Pope's Legate for Ireland(a). In this capacity he presided at the Synod of Kells in 1152, when the palls were first given to the four Archbishops of Armagh, Dublin, Cashel, and Tuam. Having become weary of the cares of his office, he resigned the see about 1175; and, dying eleven years afterwards, was buried in the Cistercian abbey of O'Dorney, in the county of Kerry.
1175. There is some uncertainty about the immediate successor of Bishop Christian. A prelate named FELIX is recorded to have been present, as Bishop of Lismore, at the Council of Lateran, in 1179; and it is thought that he is the Prelate called, in the Annals of Inisfallen, (a) In Prynne's Records, vol. i. p. 564, Gislebert, Bishop of Lismore (tempore Malachiæ Archiep. Armac. i. e. 1134 to 1137), is said to have been the first Papal Legate in Ireland.

O'Heda, and by P. Seguin (a Cistercian annalist), O'Danus (O'Hedanus); who died in the year 1206.

1206. The name of the next Bishop is not known; which is not a little remarkable; seeing that he was engaged in a long and serious dispute with a very violent brother prelate, the Bishop of Waterford, who even went so far as to seize and imprison him, and afterwards encouraged a murderous attempt upon his life, which had nearly succeeded. [See Harris' Ware, p. 528-9.] It appears that he held the see from the year 1206 to 1218.
1218. ROBERT, of Bedford (a native or a monk of that town), in England, was elected by the Canons of Lismore, on December 12, 1218; and they having afterwards obtained the King's license, he was confirmed, consecrated, and had his temporalities restored. It appears that the Bishop of Waterford attempted to deprive him of his see, which the Pope had wished to unite to that of Waterford: but that scheme failed for the time; and Robert retained possession until his death, in 1222.
1223. GRIFFIN CHRISTOPHER, Chancellor of Lismore, was elected Bishop in 1223; and received confirmation from the King in November of that year: but, for some unknown reason, he was not consecrated until 1227; indeed we find his temporalities again in the King's hands in 1231. He instituted Vicars Choral in his cathedral. He died in 1246.
1248. ALAN O'SULLIVAN, a Dominican friar, was translated to this see from that of Cloyne, in 1248. He died in 1252 or 1253.
1253. THOMAS, Treasurer of Lismore, was elected Bishop by the Dean and Chapter, on April 27, 1253; and was confirmed by the King, on July 27 following. He died in 1270, and was buried in his own cathedral.
1270. JOHN DE RUPE, or ROCHE, a person of high family, Præcentor of Lismore, was elected Bishop. He died about Whitsuntide, in 1279.

1279. RICHARD CORR, Chancellor of Lismore, was elected to this see; and was confirmed by the King on October 24, 1279. His temporalities were restored to him about November 18 (anno regni 8°). [MS. T. C. D. F. I. 18.] He was engaged in some disputes with the Bishop of Waterford, which were happily composed in 1288. He recovered some lands which had been improperly alienated from the see. He died in October, 1308, and was buried in his own cathedral. A drawing of his episcopal seal is in the Archives of Christ Church, Dublin.

1309. WILLIAM LE FLEMING, Archdeacon of Lismore, succeeded Bishop Corr. He died about November, 1321.

1323. JOHN LEYNAGH, or LAUNAGHT, a secular priest, was consecrated Bishop of Lismore, at Waterford, on Palm Sunday, 1323. Ware observes, that "he was a prelate who merited greatly of his successors for recovering the possessions of his see." He died a little before Christmas, 1354.

1358. THOMAS LE REVE, a Canon of Lismore, was appointed to that see in 1358 (some say in 1362), after a vacancy of at least four years, although, in the year 1355, the Dean and Chapter had paid ten marks to the King for license to elect a Bishop. [Rot. Pat. 29 Edw. III.] It is probable that he was a man of parts and learning; for we find him holding the high office of Chancellor of Ireland in 1367. During his incumbency the see of Lismore was united to that of Waterford by the Pope; which union was confirmed by King Edward III. on October 2, 1363.

From this period, the series of Bishops of the united sees is carried on under the Diocese of Waterford.

DEAN AND CHAPTER.

The precise period of the foundation of this, as well as most other Irish Chapters, does not appear to be known. Probably the Capitular body was established during the latter part of the twelfth century. It formerly consisted of a Dean, four Dignitaries, and eleven Prebendaries. Two of these prebends, viz. Oughteragh and Morestown-kirk, called also Morris-town, and Ballymonekerick [but I have suspicions that these three are only different names for Mora (sometimes called Moor-town) one of the prebends still existing], have ceased to be such for a very long period. In the year 1210, on June 26, Pope Innocent III. confirmed the possessions of the Dean and Canons. Macrobius and David, "Canons of Lismore," are mentioned at the year 1218, at the election of Bishop Robert de Bedeford; and one of the Dignitaries, the Chancellor, in 1223. [Ware; and Prynne's Records, vol. iii. p. 373.]

CHAPTER SEAL.

Joshua Boyle, Registrar of the diocese in 1660, and Chapter Clerk, relates the following anecdote of the chapter seal:—Upon the cession of Miler Magrath "there was some vacaney of the sees; in which the chapter seal of Lismore was by order intrusted to the custody of Richard Osburne, Esq., then High Sheriff of the County of Waterford, with whom it rested two or three years; after which it was took from him by order from the Lord Chichester, then Lord Deputy, and committed to the custody of the Mayor of Clonmel, who locked itt upp in the box for the Poore which was in the Abby Church there. It there remayned about fower yeares, to the great prejudice of the Church: for that there was a publique access to the said box, and it might (with ease) be opened with a nayle; whereby many estates of the church revenues were counterfeited, antedated, forged." [Reg. Waterf.]

In June, 1663, the Chapter, having then no Seal of their own, agree to make use of the Seal of the Dean's peculiar jurisdiction, and declare that it shall be taken for the seal of the Dean and Chapter, in all acts, instruments, &c. emanating from their body. [Chap. Book.]

DEAN.

The Dean of Lismore possesses, from ancient times, a peculiar Jurisdiction; by which he exercises all kinds of ordinary ecclesiastical discipline within the three parishes of Lismore, Tallogh, and Macollop, during eleven months in the year, until he is inhibited by the Bishop, one month before his visitation. He has a court and a registrar; grants marriage licenses, probates of wills, and letters of administration. He has a peculiar seal of his own; which is engraved in Ware's History of the Bishops, p. 425.

SUCCESSION OF DEANS.

In 1210, Pope Innocent confirmed, by a Bull, the possessions of the Dean and Canons of Lismore. I have not found the name of this early Dean.

1549. EDWARD POWER was presented by the Crown, on December 18. [Lib. Mun. Hib. and Patent Roll.]
1551. DENIS MORRIS was presented on October 20. [Ibid.] He died in 1559. [Cod. Clar. 46.]
1559. PETER LEWIS succeeded. He resigned his deanery in 1564. Quære, whether he was the person who was Præcentor of Christ Church, Dublin, at this time(a).
1564. GERALD FITZ-JAMES FITZ-GERALD was presented, on the resignation of Lewis, on June 17. He was deprived, for some unknown cause. [MS. in Christ Church, Dublin.]
- 1583(b). JOHN PRENDERGAST was presented, on the deprivation of Fitz-Gerald; the fiat of his letters patent bears date September 12. He resigned in 1610, and accepted the prebend of Newchapel in the church of Cashel, to-pledge and chief debtor. He was Rector of Callan: quære, whether he was Dean? [Rot. Canc. 29 & 30 Edw. III.]

(a) It appears from the Chapter Books, that in 1560 the Dean and Chapter had granted a lease of the tithes belonging to the deanery, in fee-farm, at a rent of forty shillings. This lease, having subsequently come into possession of the Earl of Cork, was surrendered by him upon an arbitration, and a new lease was granted to him by the Dean and Chapter, for sixty years, at the rent of £40, being half the certified value of the said tithes, in the year 1663.

(b) By an Act of Parliament, passed in 1569 (not printed), all dignities and prebends in all the cathedrals of Munster and Connaught, except those of Cashel, Waterford, Cork, and Limerick, were ordered to be filled up by the Lord Deputy of Ireland alone (Sir Henry Sidney), during the next ten years. And it was enacted that none was to be admitted a Dean but by presentment of the Deputy, and who should be in orders, of full age, able to read and speak English, and should be bound to reside on his deanery. 161 $\frac{9}{1}$. THOMAS WILSON, Chancellor of Cashel. Patent dated February 15. He resigned on December 1, 1614. [Rot. Pat.] In 1621 we find him presented to the deanery of Dromore; but holding it only one year.

1614. MICHAEL BOYLE, D. D. of Oxford (whom see among the Bishops of Waterford), was presented by patent dated December 6. For more than three years he held this deanery with his bishopric; but in 1621 he resigned it, and obtained other preferment, to hold in commendam. [Ware.] He was at the same time Archdeacon of Cork, a Vicar Choral of that cathedral, and a Prebendary of Cloyne(a).

1621. EDWARD BOUNCKER. (Quære, of Wadham College, Oxford? See Parr's Letters of Archbishop Ussher.) His patent is dated April 30. He appears to have holden his dignity not more than five or six weeks. [Lib. Mun.]

1621. ROBERT DABORNE, Prebendary of Disert, and Chancellor of Waterford. He was also a Fellow of the College of Youghal. His patent, dated June 14, contained a clause uniting the prebend of Disert and Kilmoleran to the deanery, pro hac vice. [Lib. Mun. Hib.] He died on March 23, 162 $\frac{7}{8}$.

1628. JOHN GREG was presented on April 3. [FF.] He was the first Vicar of Trim. He died on January 21, 16 $\frac{29}{30}$;

(a) A Regal Visitation Book of 1615 observes, "The deanery hath been for the value thereof in a manner brought to nothing, by a demise for forty-one years made by the late Dean, and by the consent of the Archbishop of Cashel" [another book says, "persuaded by the Archbishop of Cashel, who received a profit by the transaction"], "reserving only five pounds Irish per annum.—Valoris £10 Irish." This Archbishop, as might be expected, was Miler Magrath.

and was buried in Trim churchyard, where his tombstone still is to be seen.

16 $\frac{29}{30}$. ROBERT NAYLOR, M. A. a relative of Richard, first Earl of Cork, was ordained Deacon, September 25, 1625; Priest, December 18, 1625. He was made a Prebendary of Cloyne in 1628; and was presented to this deanery, with the prebend of Disert annexed, on January 26, 16 $\frac{29}{30}$; admitted March 20; installed March 24. He resigned the deanery (but not the prebend) on March 4, 16 $\frac{29}{30}$; and in April of that year was made Dean of Limerick.

1640. EDWARD PARRY, D. D. (of whom see more among the Bishops of Killaloe), formerly a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, Dean of Waterford, Prebendary of Stagonyl in the Cathedral of St. Patrick, and Treasurer of Christ Church, Dublin, succeeded. His patent bears date April 28. He was installed on May 11. He attempted, but without success, to recover his deanery lands, which had been seized on by the first Earl of Cork, and continued for near a century in possession of his family; also the townlands of Ballysagartmore and Ballysagartbeg, belonging to the Vicars Choral, which have never been recovered. In 1647 he was advanced to the bishopric of Killaloe.

1647. ROBERT PARRY, M. A. succeeded. He was a near kinsman of his predecessor; and was a Prebendary [and afterwards Chancellor?] of St. Patrick's, Dublin, till the year 1651. His patent is dated May 17. [Lib. Mun. Hib.] The place was vacant by his death in 1660.

1661. RICHARD UNDERWOOD, D. D. His patent is dated February 5. In 1662 we find him Præcentor of Ferns; and in 1664 the Crown presented him to the vicarage of Shanrahan in this diocese. He died in 1664, or the beginning of 1665.

1666 $\frac{1}{2}$. HUGH GORE, D. D. Treasurer, Chancellor of Cashel, and Præcentor of Waterford (for account of whom see the Bishops of Waterford), succeeded, by patent dated March 26 (or April 6); admitted April 7. In 1666 he became Bishop of the diocese.

1666. RICHARD LINGARD, D. D. was educated partly at Cambridge; but afterwards became a Fellow and Regius Professor of Divinity in the University of Dublin. Ordained Deacon, October 22, 1621; Priest, October 28, 1622. [Reg. Vis. Meath.] His patent is dated March 2. He was admitted April 19. He died in 1670, and was buried in the College chapel of Dublin. He published:

1. A Sermon, preached before the King, in defence of the Liturgy. 4to. London, 1668.

2. A Letter of Advice to a young Gentleman leaving the University. 12mo. London, 1670, 1673.

1670. MICHAEL WARD, B. D. a native of England, a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, and afterwards Regius Professor of Divinity, and Provost, succeeded, by patent dated November 29. In 1672 $\frac{2}{3}$, he became Archdeacon of Armagh. In 1678 he was advanced to the See of Ossory; under which diocese see a further account of him.

1682 $\frac{2}{3}$. BARZILLAI JONES, M. A. admitted March 5. In the next year he was made Treasurer of Waterford. In 1689 he was attainted by King James II. I believe that he resigned, or was deprived, on objecting to take the oaths to King William and Queen Mary; and retired to England.

1690^o₁. WILLIAM JEPHSON, M. A. His patent is dated January 6: and it gave him at the same time the rectory of Inislounaght. He presented a silver Communion Cup, Patin, and two Flags, to the cathedral, in 1705. After many years of fruitless attempts to obtain a bishopric, for which high office he was not judged suitable [see Mant's Hist.], he died on April 11, 1720; and was buried in his cathedral. His tombstone is under the western tower(a).

1720. WILLIAM CROSSE, M. A. Dean of Ferns, succeeded Jephson. [See Mant's Church Hist. vol. ii. p. 638.] His patent is dated May 28. In 1723 he resigned, and became Dean of Leighlin.

1723. JOHN FRANCIS, M. A. Dean of Leighlin, exchanged with Price. His patent bears date August 2. He died in the following year.

[1724. Quære, whether upon the death of Francis (after April 16, 1724), Dr. William Burscough, first Chaplain to the Lord Lieutenant, was appointed Dean, but soon resigned the dignity on being advanced to the see of Limerick, in June, 1725? See Mant's Church History, vol. ii. p. 425, and the History of Limerick, as there quoted(b).]

(a) 1719. The Liber Mun. Hib. names ARTHUR PRICE as Dean in this year. In 1720 he was made Dean of Ferns; possibly he may have been presented and have holden this deanery for a year; but there was no Chapter holden during his incumbency (if he was Dean), so that his name does not occur in the Chapter Book, nor do I find any record of his appointment.

(b) In Bishop Nicolson's Letters, it is stated, under the year 1725: "Mr. Cotterell is to be Dean of Lismore, which was long kept in petto for the first Chaplain" (i. e. Dr. Burscough). Mr. Cotterell, however, was made Dean of Raphoe, instead of Lismore.

1725. ALEXANDER ALCOCK, M. A. Præcentor of Lismore, and Chancellor of Waterford, was made Dean, by patent dated July 22. Primate Boulter thought so well of him, that he recommended him for a bishopric. He recovered the deanery lands of Ballydecane; which had been usurped, with other church lands, by the first Earl of Cork, and had continued to that time in possession of his descendants. He died in 1747.
1747. WASHINGTON COTES, LL. D. who had been educated at Oriel College, Oxford, succeeded. His patent bears date December 26. He died at Bath, on March 7, 1762.
1762. JOHN RYDER, LL. D. (eldest son of Archbishop Ryder of Tuam), a Prebendary of Tuam, and Rector of Templemichael in the diocese of Ardagh. His patent is dated May 22. He was installed on September 6, 1780. He died at London, on April 18, 1791.
1791. JOHN WHETHAM, M. A. (D. D. in 1793), succeeded. His patent is dated September 3. He was installed on September 14. In 1793 he was made Archdeacon of Cork. He died at Clifton, near Bristol, on May 1, 1796.
1796. JOHN SCOTT, M. A. Archdeacon of Clonfert. His patent is dated June 11. He was installed the same month. He died at Bath in 1828; and was buried at Kilfane, in the county of Kilkenny.
1828. JOHN BAYLY, D. D. Dean of Killaloe, became first Chaplain to the Marquess of Anglesey, Lord Lieutenant; and Dean of the Castle Chapel, Dublin. His patent for the deanery of Lismore bears date May 11. He was admitted and installed July 12. He died in Dublin, in June, 1831, and was buried in St. Peter's churchyard.
1831. Sir GEORGE WILLIAM BISSHOPP, Bart. M. A. an Englishman, educated at Queen's College, Oxford, came to Ireland as domestic Chaplain to Earl Whitworth, Lord Lieutenant, and for several years was sub-Dean of the Castle Chapel, Dublin. His patent is dated July 19; he was admitted July 26; installed July 30. He died at Cheltenham, to which place he had gone for recovery of his health, in 1834.

After his death, the revenues of the deanery were transferred to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners for Ireland, and the appointment was suspended by an order of the Privy Council, dated November 17, 1834.

(ELECTED.)

1834. HENRY COTTON, D. C. L. Archdeacon of Cashel, and Treasurer of Christ Church, Dublin, was elected by the Chapter, as a fit and proper person to execute the duties of the deanery, pursuant to the provisions(a) of the Act 4 & 5 Will. IV. c. 90, the temporalities of the deanery having been transferred to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. Date of his appointment, under seal of the Chapter, December 16, 1834.

1849. The suspension was removed by the Lord Lieutenant and Privy Council, by an order dated March 15.

ROYAL PRESENTATIONS REVIVED.

THOMAS STEWART TOWNSEND, D. D. Vicar of Burnchurch in the diocese of Ossory, was presented by patent

(c) As this was the first instance of this Act being brought into operation, it may be well to state these Provisions, which are found in the first section.

“ Provided always, that in the case of any such suspension as aforesaid, it shall and may be lawful for the Chapter of any diocese or cathedral church, or members thereof, to nominate and appoint some fit and proper person to perform and exercise all such acts and duties in relation to the property of any such Chapter or cathedral church, or otherwise, as might or ought to have been, or be performed or exercised by any successor in such dignity or office so suspended, if such successor had been appointed; and such person so nominated and appointed shall have all such powers and authorities, and be subject to all such liabilities, in relation to the performance of such acts and powers, spiritual or other duties, as any such successor, if duly appointed, would have had or been subject to; and all the acts of the persons so appointed shall be of equal force and validity as the acts of any such successor, if so appointed.”

1270. JOHN ROCHE, a person of a noble family, was Præcentor; and in this year was elected to the bishopric of Lismore, which he held during nine years. [Ware.]

1609. THOMAS WINTER, M. A. was presented by the Crown to this dignity, and also to the præcentorship of Waterford, on May 2. [Rot. Pat. 6 Jac. I.] He resigned or died, in 1615. [Reg. Vis.]

1616. JOHN LANCASTER appears(a). He was also Præcentor

(a) In the churchyard of Kinsalebeg, near Ardmore, lies a large monumental stone, with a coat of arms, and an inscription, partly defaced, stating it to be placed of Waterford, and held the prebend of Disert, and was likewise a Fellow of the College of Youghal. In 1617 he obtained the vicarage of Mothel, from the Crown.

1630. RALEIGH BELLOT, M. A. a Prebendary of Cloyne (ordained Deacon, August 28, 1627; Priest, August 7, 1628); collated January 14 (or February 20) [FF.]; installed January 27. [Reg. Vis.]

1663. DANIEL BURSTON, B. D. Prebendary of Rossduff, in the Cathedral of Waterford, and afterwards Dean of the same, appears. [C. B.] In 1655 he was receiving from Oliver Cromwell's government a salary of £120, as minister at Tallow. [Reid's Hist. Presbyt.]
1667. JOHN STEPHENS, M. A. appears in the Chapter Book of this year; but another authority states, that he was collated on June 15, 1670. [FF.] Both may be correct.
1683. EDWARD BAINBRIGGE, or BAINBRIDGE, M. A. Prebendary of Kilrossanty, and a Prebendary of Cashel, succeeded. Collated July 25. [Ibid.]

in memory of "ELIZA, conjux * * * * STER, armigeri, Præcentor. Lismor." I find, by a private Act of Parliament in the Rolls Office, that this person, the daughter of Sir Edmund Harris, Justice of the Common Pleas, was married to John Lancaster. Harris had property at Ardmore, where Lancaster, as Præcentor, held the rectorial tithes.

It is somewhat difficult now to say for what reason a Clergyman should cause himself to be described as an Esquire. It is stated that the burial of the venerated George Herbert is thus entered in the Register of his parish of Bemerton near Salisbury; "Mr. George Herbert, Esquire, Parson, was buried, May 2^d, 1632."

In the year 1615, Maurice Griffith is designated "Armiger, Præbendarius Elphin." See Mason's Parochial Survey [Killuken Parish, vol. ii.]

1692. ALEXANDER ALCOCK, M. A. succeeded. In 1699 he was appointed Chaneellor of Waterford. In 1725 he resigned, and became Dean. [C. B.]

1725. RICHARD POCOCKE, B. A. (afterwards LL. D. and a Fellow of the Royal Society), collated September 22. In 1727 the Chapter elected him their Proctor to Convocation. [Ch. B.]

This eminent man was an Englishman, educated at Corpus Christi College, Oxford. In 1745 he became Præcentor of Waterford; and in 174 $\frac{5}{6}$ Archdeacon of Dublin; in 1756, he was advanced to the bishoprie of Ossory (under which dioeese see a more full aecount of him); and in 1765 was translated to that of Meath. Bishop Pocoeke is well known by his valuable Travels in the East, published in two volumes, folio, in 1743, 1745; and his "Inscriptiones Antiquæ, Gr. et Lat." folio, 1752. Some smaller picees by him are printed in the "Philosophical Transactions," and in the "Archæologia;" and several, yet in manuscript, are preserved in the British Museum.

Upon his death the appointment to the Præcentorship was suspended by the Privy Council, by an order dated January 28, 1848, and the revenues were transferred to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners; but in July, 1849, upon an investigation of the smallness of the Vicar's income, all the rectorial revenue, arising within the parish of Ardmore, was annexed to the vicarage; and the suspension of the præcentorship was removed.

1850. ARTHUR WYNNE, M.A. Præcentor of Waterford, was collated to the unendowed dignity, on January 31.

1665. JOHN DALTON, M. A. Prebendary of Clashmore, and a Prebendary of Waterford; collated October 17. He was chaplain to the Earl of Burlington, Lord High Treasurer of Ireland; he became Præcentor of Waterford in 1682; and Dean of the same in 1690; but held his chancellorship by a faculty till 1699. ARCHDEACONS.

SEAL.

This engraving is taken from an ancient seal of the archdeaconry, now remaining in the custody of the Dean of Lismore.

It is well known, that formerly both Deans and Archdeacons exercised spiritual jurisdiction in Ireland; held courts and visitations; received procurations and other dues. In the Taxation of spiritual revenues made by order of Pope Nicholas IV. in the year 1291, the profits of these jurisdictions were taxed, equally with the other revenues belonging to these dignitaries; an instance of which may be seen under the diocese of Waterford, at p. 115 above. The initials A. S. at the end of the inscription on this seal, probably stand for Arthur Stanhope; who was Archdeacon in 1663, a period at which many new ecclesiastical Seals were provided, the former ones having been either lost or destroyed during the troubles of 1641 and following years.

In the lower part of the seal is a (very rude) representation of the crest of the Stanhope family.

But this complaint was made (in 1642) by Joshua Boyle, a cousin of the said Earl, to whom, as well as to the Parliament, the clergy of Lismore owed little obligation.

[168-. MATTHEW JONES, M. A. (son, or younger brother, of Edward Jones, Bishop of Cloyne?) I only know of his having been Archdeacon, from a monument erected to his son in the church of Youghal, which states this fact, but mentions no date(a). Edward Jones was Bishop of Cloyne from the year 1682 to 1692. Matthew, his son, or brother, was a Prebendary, and afterwards Præcentor, of Cloyne in 1683, and again a Prebendary in 1687, continuing so till his death in 1717. - 16 $\frac{29}{30}$. ROBERT NAYLOR, M. A. a Prebendary of Cloyne, was presented to the deanery of Lismore on January 26; and his patent gave him this prebend in commendam. There appears to have been some misconception about this stall at this period; as though, because it had recently been holden in union with the deanery, the right of presentation were in the Crown. Thus the Book of Regal Visitation in 1634 states, that at that time there were no less than three claimants of this prebend, viz. Roper, Proctor, and Naylor. It would seem that the last person actually held possession. In fact he took a fresh collation on April 2, 1640, and was again installed on May 11. [FF.] He died in 1661.

1588. JAMES BUTLER (FITZTHOMAS) appears [MS. T.C.D. E. 3. 14.] Another manuscript, bound up in the same volume, calls him James Bather (probably the former is correct). He was deprived about 1591, for lack of Orders.

- 1607 and 1615. This prebend was holden in commendam by the bishop, JOHN LANCASTER. Another book, of 1607, says that a part of it, Kiltigan, was then in the hands of the Archbishop of Cashel. [Reg. Vis.]

In the Rebellion he was plundered of his goods, to the amount of £287; and lost his prebend, worth £40 a year. [MS. T. C. D. F. 2. 18.] The prebend is returned in 1662 as vacant by his resignation. [FF.]
1662. LANCELOT SMYTH, M. A. a Prebendary of Cloyne; collated October 22. [Ibid.] He died in 1667 or 1669.
- 1667 or 1669. CHARLES PRINCE, M. A. Præcentor of Cashel, and Chancellor of Waterford; collated December 17. [Ib.] In 1641 he had been Vicar of Tubrid and of Derrygrath, both in this diocese. 1805. RICHARD CAREY, M. A. (of Carey's-ville, County of Cork, originally from Castle Carey in Somersetshire), collated August 16; installed August 24. He resigned in April 1820. Mr. Carey conducted the endowed school in Clonmel about forty years. He died in 1820, and was buried in Kiltigan churchyard, near Clonmel.

1591. GERALD OF GARRET FITZJAMES, a layman, is found in possession: he is deprived by the Royal Commissioners, for lack of Orders. [MS. T. C. D. E. 3. 14.] Quære, could this be the person who had been Dean, and was deprived in 1583?

[Reg. Vis.]
1610. The Bishop, JOHN LANCASTER, obtained a grant to hold it in commendam. [Rot. Canc.]
- 163²/₃. THOMAS LEDISHAM, Jun. B. A. (afterwards D. D. ordained Deacon and Priest July 14, 1629) was collated on January 16. I find that, for some unknown reason, he received a fresh collation on October 7, 1637. [FF.] In December 1633, he became Chancellor of Waterford; in 16³³/₄₀ Prebendary of Doon, in the diocese of Emly; in 1661 Dean of Kilkenny; and in 1666 Dean of Waterford. He died in 1670 or 1671.

In 1678 he was made Dean of Kildare; and in the following year was raised to the bishopric of Limerick.

1707. ROBERT GIBBON, or GIBTON, M. A. collated November 13. [FF.] I believe he also held the prebend of Subulter in the church of Cloyne.
1724. Honorable CHARLES CAULFIELD, M. A. (son of William Viscount Charlemont), appears ; probably he was collated in 1722. He held this prebend at least forty-four years, and died in 1768. [C. B.]

10. KILBARRYMEADEN.

This prebend has been, for several centuries, attached to the Dean and Chapter (or, more properly speaking, to the dignity of Præcentor) of Waterford. The Regal Visitation Book of 1633-4 says of it: "Speetat Decano et Capit. Waterford: unde Decanus et Capit. Waterford. habent vocem in Capitulo Lismorensi." At present the Præcentor is Rector, and receives the rectorial tithes: and the parish has lost all connexion with the Chapter of Lismore.

 ANCIENT PREBEND.

DOUGHTERATH.

I do not now find any other evidence of this having been one of the prebendal churches, than the following:

1590. It is named as such, in the Taxation for First Fruits made by authority of Queen Elizabeth.

[Rot. Cane.]
- 162 $\frac{8}{9}$. ESAIAS OSBORNE (ordained Priest August 29, 1620), was collated to the "prebend or rectory." [Reg. Vis.] But the Returns to the Office of First Fruits state that he was admitted to this prebend on January 30, 162 $\frac{8}{9}$; and a Regal Visitation Book in the Prerogative Office dates his admission on December 19, 1629.
- 162 $\frac{2}{3}$. BARTHOLOMEW PRICE was presented by the Crown to the "prebend or rectory" of Outragh [Lib. Mun. Hib.] by patent dated January 29; he was instituted by the Primate on April 13; and installed on May 26 following.
[Reg. Vis.]

VICARS CHORAL.

There are five Vicars Choral belonging to this cathedral.

It is believed that they were first instituted by Bishop Griffin Christopher, who filled the see from the year 1223 to 1246. Like those of Cashel and other cathedrals, they possess a common Seal. In their corporate capacity they have cure of souls in the parishes of Lismore and Macollop, which contain two other churches besides the cathedral. The Archbishop's Triennial Visitation Book of 1730 has this note: "Constitution, to read prayers week about in the cathedral. The Dean appoints the five."

I have not been able to recover the names of any very early Vicars.

(1607, " 'There are Vicars Choral also, to the number of or five: and the undernamed persons are elected by the 1609.) Deane, to serve there when they are resident.

1825. RICHARD BERMINGHAM, B. A. Prebendary of Mora (v. Lovett), admitted March 15. He died in 1841.

1825. AMBROSE POWER, B. A. (v. Langrishe), admitted July 15. In 1828 he became Archdeacon, still retaining his office of Vicar Choral.

1828. EDWARD BAYLY (v. Ryan), admitted July 16.

— EDMUND NUGENT, M. A. (v. Tuekey). He resigned on May 28, 1832.

1832. OLIVER GRACE, B. A. (v. Nugent), admitted June 9. He died in 1839.

1839. THOMAS PARKS, B. A. Curate of Lismore (v. Sullivan), admitted June 3; installed July 18. He resigned in six months.

— HANS BUTLER, B. A. Preacher of the cathedral (v. Grace), admitted June 3; installed July 18. He resigned in April 1850, and took out a new appointment. He was installed on July 8.

— JAMES MOCKLER, B. A. Curate of Macollop (v. Parks), admitted December 31; installed January 2, 1840. He resigned in 1850, and was re-appointed on April 22; and installed on September 16.

1841. RICHARD WOODS, Curate of Tallogh (v. Birmingham), admitted November 10; installed November 14. On April 20, 1850, he resigned; and was re-appointed on April 23; and installed on May 1.

BISHOPS OF ARDMORE.

THIS ancient see, situate in the southern part of the county of Waterford was founded in the fifth century, by St. Declan. St. Patrick afterwards acknowledged and confirmed it. Declan died in the year 4—, and was buried at Ardmore, where the place of his interment is still shown, and where his feast has usually been observed, with much solemnity, on July 24.

None of his successors in the see have been handed down to us by historians, except St. ULTAN, who flourished A. D. 550; EUGENE, in 1174; and MOEL ETTRIM O'DUIBHE-RATHA, who died in 1203. "These were Abbats, and may have had episcopal authority." [See Archdall's Monasticon.]

About the latter end of the twelfth century this bishopric was incorporated with that of Lismore.

END OF LISMORE DIOCESE.

THE see of Cork is believed to have been founded in the early part of the seventh century, by St. Barr, or Finbarr, who is said to have been a native of Connaught, and preeceptor to Colman, the founder of the see of Cloyne.

At various times this bishoprie has been holden in conjunction with Cloyne, or Ross, or both.

The see of Ross has been united to it since the year 1583; and, by the Church Temporalities Act of 1834, that of Cloyne has been permanently annexed to the other two.

ARMS OF THE SEE.

The seal of Robert Clayton, Bishop of Cork and Ross, dated 1735, is engraved in Harris's edition of Ware's Bishops.

SUCCESSION OF BISHOPS.

A. D. 606 to 623 (?).—ST. BARR or FINBARR, a native of Connaught, who had been preceptor to Colman, the founder and first Bishop of Cloyne, is said, by a tradition current among the country people, to have been a hermit dwelling in a cell at Gougane Barry, near Inehigee-lagh, and to have been taken from thence to fill the first episcopal chair at Cork. [MS. of Bishop Downes.] It is uncertain how long St. Barr presided over his see: some historians say seventeen years, others only seven: nor is the year of his death known. Dying peaceably at Cloyne, on September 25, his body was conveyed to Cork, and buried in his cathedral. September 25 was generally observed in his honour, as a festival, throughout the diocese of Cork. Dempster ascribes to his pen an epistle “On the Ceremonies of Baptism,” but this is generally attributed to Aleuin.

Of St. Barr's early successors we have but few traces. The following names are mentioned by historians.

ST. NESSAN; who had been educated by St. Barr at his own school or monastery, founded near Lough Eire (which Harris interprets to mean the hollow, or basin, in which great part of the city of Cork is built), at Cork. The time of his death is not known. Lanigan will not admit him to have been a Bishop.

685. RUSSIN, the son of Lappain, is mentioned as a successor of St. Barr (i. e. Bishop of Cork), in the Annals of the Four Masters, which place his death on April 7 of this year.

773. SELBACH died.

961. CATHMOGAN died.

976. COLUMBA MAC CIARUCAIN. He died in 990.

1026. CELLACH O'SELBACH, called by the Four Masters "the chief among the wise men of Munster," died, on a pilgrimage.

1027. NEIL O'MAELDUIBH died.

1028. AIRTRI SAIRT died.

1034. CATHAL died.

1057. MUGRON O'MUTAN was murdered, either by his own people, or by robbers of Cork.

1085. CLERECH O'SELBAIC, called "Ard eomorban of Barr," died in this or the following year.

1107. MACLOTHOD O'HAILGENEN died.

†111. PATRICK O'SELBACH died.

1140. The see being vacant about this year, a foreigner of sanctity and learning, whose name has not come down to us, was nominated Bishop by Malachy, Archbishop of Armagh, with consent of the clergy and people.

1152. GILLA ÆDA O'MUGIN (or O'HEYN), a native of Connaught, Abbat of the Augustinian monastery at St. Finbarr's cave (commonly called from him Gille Abbey), was present, as Bishop of Cork, at the Synod holden by Cardinal Paparo in 1152. He is highly celebrated by the Irish historians, and is reckoned among the greatest benefactors of the church of Cork. He died in 1172.

1172. GREGORY was his sueeessor ; who governed the see about fourteen years. He granted the ehureh of St. Nicholas (or St. Nesson) to the monks of St. Thomas in Dublin, together with lands, tithes, and other offerings, upon payment of a cask of wine annually ; and if any person should steal any of the wine, the Bishop devotes him to perdition. [King's Colleections.] This grant was confirmed by the Archdeaeon, under his seal.
- 118—. REGINALD sueeeded Gregory : I think that he had been Archdeaeon of Cork under his predeeessor in the see. We know not the time either of his eonseeration or his death. Probably, as Ware observes, he is the same person as Bishop O'Selbaie, whose death is mentioned by the annalists under the year 1205.
1215. The see being vaeant, King Henry III. endeavoured to appoint GEOFFRY WHITE, whom he regarded as a prudent and learned man. But it does not appear whether he was conseerated to this see or not.
- 12—. MARIAN (OR MAURICE) O'BRIEN was made Bishop by the Pope's provision. In the year 1224 he was translated to Cashel.
1225. GILBERT, Arehdeaeon of Cork, was raised to the see, with the royal assent dated June 15 ; and was eonseerated in the same year. He died about the year 1238.
1238. LAURENCE, his sueeessor, died in 1264 ; and on Mareh 27, 1265, King Henry III. granted a license to the Dean and Chapter to elect a Bishop.
1266. WILLIAM OF JERPOINT, OR WILLIAM OF KILKENNY, a Cistercian monk of Jerpoint Abbey, having been elected, was confirmed as Bishop by the Pope, and aeepted by the King. But his eonseeration is matter of doubt ; at all events, the next year saw a new prelate in the see.
1267. REGINALD, Treasurer of Cashel, being made Bishop, MUNSTER.] 2 F obtained restitution of the temporalities on August 5, 1267. He died at Cork, in December, 1276, and was buried in his cathedral.

1277. ROBERT or RICHARD MAC DONOGH, a Cistereian monk of great learning, was appointed Bishop; and had the temporalities restored to him on January 11, 1277. He died on March 7, 130 $\frac{1}{2}$.

1302. JOHN M'CARWELL (or O'CARROLL), Dean of Cork, was elected Bishop by the Chapter; and obtained the royal assent on June 12, 1302, and the confirmation of his metropolitan, the archbishop of Cashel, in July. The Pope translated him to Meath, in 1320 or 1321; and subsequently to the Archbishopric of Cashel.

1321. PHILIP OF SLANE, a Dominican friar, born at Slane, in the County of Meath, succeeded by Papal provision; and received his temporalities on July 17. He was a person of great talents for business; and was sent on important embassies touching matters of Church and State to the Pope, by King Edward II. who was so well pleased with his address, that he admitted him of the Privy Council. One of the matters settled under his auspices by a Council of Bishops, after his return into Ireland, was, "that the small and poor bishoprics not exceeding £20, £40, or £60 a year, which were governed by the mere Irish, should be united to the more eminent sees." When this was communicated to the Pope, he immediately began to interfere in the business, and commanded that the sees of Enagh-dune, Aghonry, and Kilmaeduaigh should be forthwith united to Tuam. But this piece of assumption was kept secret from the King. Philip died in 1326.

1326. JOHN LE BLONDE, Dean of Cork, was elected Bishop; he received his temporalities from the King, on March 22 [Rot. Canc. 20 Edward II.]; but the fact of his consecration is not certain: at all events a successor to him is found in the next year. [Ware.]

1327. WALTER LE REDE (or RUFUS), a Canon of Cork, obtained the see by Papal provision; and had his temporalities restored on October 18. He was translated to Cashel in 1330.

1330. JOHN DE BALLYCONINGHAM, incumbent, or possibly a native, of Ballieonyngham in the diocese of Down, who had been elected Bishop of that see by the Dean and Chapter, and confirmed by the King on August 21, 1328, was displaced by the Pope; who, however, appointed him to the see of Cork in 1330. Having sat here about seventeen years, during which time he had done good service by keeping the public peace, he died on May 29, 1347.

1347. JOHN ROCHE (or DE RUPE), descended from a noble family in this county, and a Canon (probably Dean) of Cork, was elected Bishop by the Chapter; and was consecrated about Christmas. He died on July 4, 1358.

1359. GERALD DE BARRY, of a noble and ancient family (probably Dean of Cork), was raised to the see in 1359. In 1381 he stated to the Lord Justice and Council, that he was above eighty years old, and often visited by sickness, so that he desired to be excused from personal attendance in Parliament. The King granted his request, upon his paying a fine of two marks, and sending a sufficient proxy. [Rot. Pat.] Having sat upwards of thirty-four years, he died, aged upwards of ninety, on January 4, 1393-4; and was buried in his cathedral.

1396. ROGER ELLESMERE, a friar, succeeded by Papal provision; and received his temporalities from the King on March 31, 1396. He died in 1406.

1406. GERALD succeeded Roger, according to Sir J. Ware, but we know no particulars concerning him. Query, was he Bishop of Cloyne, not Cork? For the temporalities of the see of Cork at this time were committed to the custody of Gerald, Bishop of Cloyne. [Rot. Pat.]

1407. One RICHARD died in 1407. In November or December of that year, the King granted to the Dean and Chapter leave to elect a successor, on the death of "Richard the late Bishop." [Rot. Pat. 9 Hen. IV.]

141 $\frac{1}{2}$. PATRICK RAGGED was Bishop in January of this year. [Rot. Pat. 2 Henry V.] He assisted at the Council of Constance in 1415 and 1416, as Bishop of Cork, and afterwards wrote a work on "The Acts of that Council." [Ware.] He is reported to have been a man of piety, great learning, and zeal. He was translated to Ossory in 1417.

Query? 1418. "The Bishop O'Driscoll, and Mac Con O'Driscoll, his brother, Lord of Corca Laigh (in Cork), died." [Four Masters.]

1418. MILO FITZJOHN, Dean of Cork, was consecrated Bishop in 1418. During his incumbency, great exertion was made to unite the two sees of Cork and Cloyne. He died in 1430.

BISHOPS OF CORK AND CLOYNE.

1431. JORDAN. The sees of Cork and Cloyne, being vacant together at this period, were canonically united by the Pope; and Jordan, Chancellor of Limerick, was consecrated to them both, in 1430 or 1431. He continued in possession above thirty years, notwithstanding some discreditable attempts to deprive him, on the grounds of age and infirmities (which are related in Harris's Ware). He was sitting as Bishop on Dec. 27, 1464; but the time of his death is not known. He wrote an epistle, still extant, to King Henry VI. in defence of the Earl of Ormonde, Lord Lieutenant, against whom a party had been formed.

- 14— GERALD FITZ-RICHARD, one of the Geraldine family, a clergyman of the diocese of Cloyne, who had been unenviably active in endeavouring to eject his predecessor Jordan, eventually succeeded him in the see, but we do not know in what year. He died in 1479.
1479. WILLIAM ROCHE, Archdeacon of Cloyne, formerly Coadjutor to Bishop Jordan, and also one of his accusers to the Pope, succeeded to these sees; but resigned them in the year 1490.
1490. THADY M'CARTHY, or THADDÆUS MACHAIR, was made Bishop by Papal provision. He died at the town of "Eporedia," in Piedmont, on Oct. 4, 1492. [Todd's MSS.]
1499. GERALD, a Bishop of Cork and Cloyne, is said to have resigned those sees in 1499.
1499. JOHN FITZ-EDMUND, a branch of the Geraldine family, succeeded, by Papal provision, on June 26. It is not known how long he governed the sees: he was alive in the year 1520; but probably died before the end of the year. See a letter about him and a proposed successor to him, in the State Papers, vol. iii. p. 42. [Todd's MSS.]
- 152—. JOHN BENNET, or FERRET, died in 1526, or 1536(a).
- 1526 or 1536. DOMINICK TYRRE, or TIRREY, a chaplain of the King in the city of Cork, was elected Bishop by virtue of a mandate from King Henry VIII. dated June 11,

(a) King Henry VIII. on May 21, in the twenty-seventh year of his reign (i. e. 1535), issued a warrant, directing the Archbishop of Cashel, and the Bishops of Ross and Limerick, to consecrate Master Edmund, the nephew of James Fitzwilliam, Dean of Cloyne, and invest him with the bishopric of Cloyne and Cork, as soon as he shall be thereunto elected by the Chapters of Cloyne and Cork, and shall have done his fealty. Cat. MSS. Harl. [Cole.]

This nomination does not appear to have been acted on.

and a patent dated September 20; and was consecrated in 1536 by the Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Ross, Lismore, and Emly. [Consist. Reg.] The Pope opposed this appointment, and named two other persons successively to these sees. But Tirrey kept possession, and held them twenty years. It is stated that in 1526, the eighteenth year of King Henry VIII. he had a King's letter uniting the vicarage of Cork and Shandon to his bishopric. [See Patent Roll of 1 Philip and Mary.] He gave certain rents to the Vicars Choral in 1554.

1557. ROGER SKIDDY, B.A. Dean of Limerick, was appointed Bishop by Queen Mary, by patent dated Oct. 29, 1557: the Queen dying before his actual investiture, he was again appointed, as from the above-named day, by Elizabeth, by letter of cong   d'  lire directed to the Dean and Chapter, dated July 31, 1562. He resigned the sees on March (or July) 18, 1566; and they remained vacant nearly four years(a).

1570. RICHARD DIXON, Prebendary of Rathmichael in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, was appointed Bishop by patent dated June 6, and was consecrated within the year. He was deprived in the following year, for some cause now unknown.

1572. MATTHEW SHEYN, or SEAINE, who is believed to have been educated at Oxford and Paris, succeeded, by letter of Privy Seal dated January 2, 157 $\frac{1}{2}$, and patent dated May 29, 1572. He was very active in correcting the gross superstitions of the lower orders, especially with regard to the worship of images. He died on June 13,

(a) Before the appointment of Skiddy, the clergy and inhabitants of Kinsale addressed a letter to Queen Mary, recommending Patrick Roche for these bishoprics. The original letter still remains in the British Museum. MSS. Cotton. Titus B. xi. 252.

1582 (or in August, 1583). Ware doubts whether or not he was the author of a treatise "De Republicâ," written by a person of his name about this period. [See his Writers of Ireland.]

CORK, CLOYNE, AND ROSS.

1583. WILLIAM LYON, a native of Chester, educated at Oxford, became Chaplain to Arthur Lord Gray, Lord Deputy of Ireland; and obtained preferment in this country, namely, the vicarage of Naas, in 1573. He was consecrated Bishop of Ross in 1582, by patent dated May 12; and, on November 11 in the next year, the sees of Cork and Cloyne were given to him in commendam, to hold during the Queen's pleasure. Afterwards, by a patent dated May 17, 1586, the three sees of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross were united in his favour. He appears to have been a prelate of an active and liberal spirit: he built the palace of Cork in 1588, and another at Ross, which soon afterwards was burned by the rebels; and greatly exerted himself in behalf of the property of his sees, which had been sadly wasted. In 1615 the Bishop stated to the Royal Commissioners, that the best of his bishoprics, namely Cloyne, was withholden from him, having been made away in fee-farm by his predecessor, reserving only five marks annual rent. The other two, Cork and Ross, when he first came to them, were worth only £70 per annum; but he had improved them to the annual value of £200. He died at Cork, at a very advanced age, on October 4, 1617; and was buried there, in the cathedral, as was generally supposed; but in March 1849, some workmen digging in a part of the palace grounds, at a spot where formerly the private chapel of the Bishops of Cork had stood, discovered a plain tomb, covered with a flagstone imperfectly chiselled, which bore the following inscription in raised letters:

I . do . beleve . oneli . to . be . saved . be . the . merites
Ihs of . Ihs . Chrst . our . Savioure.

John the III.

So . God . loved . the . worlde . that . he . gave . his . onli . be . gotten . sonn . to

In the tomb were human bones, which, in all probability, were those of the Bishop; who appears to have prepared this resting-place for his body several years before his death.

A square stone was affixed to the wall above this tomb, and several years ago was removed to another part of the grounds. It is inscribed as follows, and doubtless was erected by the same prelate:

DEVS . IVD

The remains of the Bishop, and his tombstone, were carefully removed to the porch of the cathedral, where they are now deposited.

An interesting portrait of Bishop Lyon is preserved in the sec-house of Cork.

1618. JOHN BOYLE, a native of Kent, D. D. of Oxford (elder brother of Richard, first Earl of Cork), was made Dean of Lichfield in February, 1610, and was appointed Bishop of Cork, by patent dated August 25; and by another patent, dated April 10, 1619, was permitted to hold the sees of Ross and Cloyne in commendam. He died at Bishops court, near Cork, on July 10, 1620, aged 57; and was buried in the chapel erected by his brother in the church of Youghal. There is extant a curious letter from this Bishop to his brother, Lord Cork, dated November 7, 1617, in which he details his method of obtaining the promise of these sees, and the "gratuity" demanded of him as a sine quâ non by the King or his ministers. [Lismore MSS.]

1620. RICHARD BOYLE, M. A. (a cousin-german of his predecessor, and brother of Michael, Bishop of Waterford and Lismore), was Dean of Waterford and Archdeacon of Limerick, when he was advanced to the sees of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross, by patent dated October 24(a), and was consecrated in the following month. He was allowed to hold in commendam all his former benefices, except the deanery of Waterford. He is honoured for his diligence in repairing ancient churches, and erecting new ones, in his dioceses. In 1621 he petitioned the King that the see of Cloyne, which he had received in commendam, "might be so united to Cork as to be deemed one bishopric." The King grants this: and directs that he be entitled Bishop of Cork and Cloyne; that the cathedrals of Cork and Cloyne shall be his cathedrals; and that he have leave to reside in whatever part of the diocese he may find most convenient. Dated October 14. [Rot. Pat.] On May 30, 1638, he was translated to the see of Tuam; and on June 21, Cloyne was separated from the other two dioceses, by a King's letter under privy seal.

(a) There was a King's letter, dated January 18, anno 18th Jac. I. directing letters patent of "perinde valere" to Dr. Richard Boyle, to stand titular Bishop of Cork and Cloyne, and commendatory Bishop of Rosscarbery, as if he had been so collated and consecrated. [Rot. Pat. Jac. I.]

CORK AND ROSS.

1638. WILLIAM CHAPPEL, B. D. was born at Lexington, in Nottinghamshire, on December 10, 1582; and was baptized by immersion, which (he tells us), was the custom in his native parish. Having entered himself at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, he became a Scholar, and afterwards a Fellow, of that Society, where the celebrated John Milton was one of his pupils. At the earnest request of Bishop Laud, he accepted the deanery of Cashel, in August, 1633; and, four months afterwards, was prevailed on to become Provost of Trinity College, Dublin. He was appointed to that office in August, 1634; but was not allowed to exercise his authority until the 9th of the following February. He endeavoured to compose the religious animosities of the time; but was vehemently opposed, he says, "both by Rome and Geneva." In June, 1636, the Crown presented him to the treasurership of St. Patrick's, Dublin. In 1638 he was appointed Bishop of Cork and Ross, by patent dated October 23; and was consecrated on November 11, in St. Patrick's, Dublin. At the express desire of King Charles, he retained his provostship for some time; but gladly resigned it on July 20, 1640. He appears to have raised up enemies against himself "through his activity in enforcing uniformity and strict Church discipline in the College, in opposition to the schism and fanaticism of the times." Amongst these, unfortunately, were Primate Ussher, the Bishop of Meath, Sir William Parsons, and others; who he said, represented him as "an Irish Canterbury." I have seen a severe letter by him to Richard, the first Earl of Cork, charging him with having stripped the Vicars Choral, and left the chancel of Youghal, the revenues of which college the Earl had gotten into his hands, in a state of ruin. This letter, as Lord Strafford's trial may well assure us, was not likely to be forgotten or forgiven. The Bishop was summoned before Parliament, and was only liberated on finding heavy securities for his good behaviour in future. In July, 1641, he went back to Cork; but returned to Dublin in October, when the Rebellion broke out. He asked leave to retire to England, but was refused a pass; however, in December he contrived to escape, and landed at Milford Haven in Wales. After being detained some time at Tenby, from the want of a pass, he obtained his liberty, and repaired to his native place. He died at Derby, on Whitsunday, 1649; and was buried (near his mother) at Bilsthorpe in Nottinghamshire; where a long inscription was placed over his tomb, which is copied in Harris's Ware.

He appears to have been a prelate of great talents, theological learning, and discretion, and had the character of being a close and subtle disputant. He left the following pieces, which were printed after his death:

1. Methodus Concionandi. 8vo. London, 1648.
2. The Same in English. London, 1656.
3. The use of Holy Scripture (in Sermon-notes on 2 Timothy, iii. 16). 8vo. London, 1653.
4. His own Life, written in about 320 Latin Iambics; full of pious thoughts and interesting details. This was published by the antiquary Thomas Hearne, in the fifth volume of Leland's Collectanea, 8vo. Oxford, 1716; and afterwards by Peck, in his "Desiderata Curiosa." Fol.

Bishop Chappel is one of the persons who were conjectured to be authors of "The Whole Duty of Man."

CORK, CLOYNE, AND ROSS.

1660. MICHAEL BOYLE, D. D. The sees being left vacant during the time of the Commonwealth, MICHAEL BOYLE (son of Richard Archbishop of Tuam), being then Dean of Cloyne, was made Bishop of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross, by patent dated January 22; and was consecrated, together with eleven other Prelates, at St. Patrick's, Dublin, on January 27, by the Archbishop of Armagh, assisted by the Bishops of Raphoe, Kilmore, and Ossory. Harris relates, that he retained six benefices of his diocese in his own possession, under colour that he could not find fit Clerks to hold them; until the Earl of Orrery, Lord President of Munster, compelled him to provide those parishes with incumbents. On November 27, 1663, he was translated to Dublin; and subsequently became Primate.
1663. EDWARD SYNGE, alias MILLINGTON(a), D. D. was a native of Bridgnorth in Shropshire, but was educated in Ireland, at Drogheda School and at Trinity College, under the care of his brother, George, Bishop of Cloyne. He was a minor Canon of St. Patrick's, Dublin, in 1647; and then joined others of his brethren in remonstrating against "the Directory," and petitioning to be allowed the use of the "Book of Common Prayer." About the year 1648 or 1649 he was made Dean of Elphin, and in 1660-1 Bishop of Limerick: and was translated to Cork, Cloyne, and Ross, by patent dated December 21. He held the wardenship of Youghal, from March 25, 166 $\frac{3}{4}$ to November 4, 1678. [FF.] He was a learned, pious, and most effective preacher; and a liberal benefactor to the poor, and to the diocese of Cloyne, as may be seen in Ware's History. He died on December 22, 1678, and was buried in his cathedral of Cork.

(a) Harris, in Ware's Bishops, mentions the fact that originally the name of the Bishop's family was Millington; but that it had been changed to Synge on account of a remarkable sweetness of voice and skill in vocal music exhibited by some members of the family. See more particulars of this, in a note on Bishop George Synge of Cloyne.

CORK AND ROSS.

1678-9. EDWARD WETENHALL, D. D. a native of Lichfield, in Staffordshire, was educated at Westminster School, under the famous Dr. Busby, and was elected thence to Trinity College, Cambridge, in the year 1653; but, preferring the other University, he entered himself at Lincoln College, Oxford, where he took the degree of M. A. in 1661, and B. D. in 1669. In 1667 he was a Canon residentiary of Exeter; and appears to have come to Ireland about 1672, for he dedicates to the Archbishop of Dublin his Sermon entitled "Collyrium, &c." which was preached in Christ Church, Dublin, on August 4th of that year; and speaks of it as being his "first appearance in Ireland." He subsequently became a Prebendary of St. Patrick's, Dublin; afterwards Præcentor of Christ Church, Dublin; and was advanced to the sees of Cork and Ross by patent dated Feb. 14. He was consecrated in Christ Church, Dublin, on March 23, by the Primate, assisted by the Archbishop of Dublin, and the Bishops of Meath, Kildare, Raphoe, Ossory, and Killala. [Reg. Armagh.] He suffered much annoyance from the Papists during King James II.'s time. Having governed these dioceses more than twenty years, on April 18, 1699, he was translated to Kilmore and Ardagh. He liberally repaired the see-houses both of Cork and of Kilmore; and he rebuilt the ruined cathedral of Ardagh. He died on November 12, 1713, aged 77. See a list of his numerous publications in Ware's Writers of Ireland; to which may be added;

1. A Visitation Sermon, on 1 Kings, xviii. 21. 4to. London, 1663.

2. An Assize Sermon, on Jeremiah, xv. 10. 4to. London, 1668.

3. A Sermon, on Psalm lxxvi. 10. 8vo. Cork, 1691.

4. The Case of the Irish Protestants, in relation to recognising or swearing allegiance to, or praying for, King William and Queen Mary, stated and resolved. 4to. London, 1691. [This is anonymous, but is believed to be by him.]

5. "Be Ye also Ready;" a Method and Order of Practice to be always prepared for Death and Judgment. (Anonymous.) 8vo. London, 1694.

6. A Sermon, preached at the funeral of James Bonnell, Esq. in April, 1699. 8vo. London, 1707.

7. A View of our Lord's Passion; with Meditations. 8vo. London, 1710.

1699. DIVE DOWNES, D. D. (ancestor of the present Lord Downes), was a native of Thornby, in Northamptonshire. He became a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin; and was ordained Deacon, on February 24, 1677, and Priest, on May 5 in the same year. [Consist. Dubl.] In 1684 he became a Prebendary of St. Patrick's; in 1690 he was made Archdeacon of Dublin; and was raised to these sees by patent dated April 18. He was consecrated at Cashel, on June 4, by William Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by Nathanael Bishop of Waterford, and Thomas Bishop of Limerick [Reg. Cashel]; and was enthroned at Cork, on June 7, and at Ross on June 20. [D. R.] Bishop King, of Derry, described him as a man considerable for gravity, prudence, and learning, both in divinity, ecclesiastical law, and other sciences. He died at Dublin, on November 13, 1709; and was buried at St. Andrew's. See an interesting Journal of a "Tour through the Dioeceses of Cork and Ross," by the Bishop, preserved in the manuscript room of Trinity College Library.

1710. PETER BROWNE, D. D. a Fellow, and afterwards Provost, of Trinity College, Dublin, was Leeturer of St. Bridget's, in Dublin, and afterwards Rector of St. Mary's, in that city; when he was appointed Bishop of Cork and Ross, by patent dated January 11; he was consecrated in the College Chapel on the 8th of April following, by William Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Meath, Kildare, and Clogher. A very high character of him is given in Ware's Bishops, where also his generous charitable donations and bequests are mentioned: and a catalogue of his numerous Works may be seen in the same author's "Writers of Ireland;" to which we may add, that his "Sermons on various Subjects" were published after his death, in two vols. 8vo. London, 1749. He died at Cork, on August 25, 1735; and was buried in the chapel of Ballinaspie, or Bishopstown, near Cork, a country seat which he had built at his own expense, for the benefit of his successors; as is testified by the following inscription on a tablet placed above the entrance:

Hoc Sacellum ædificavit
Petrus
Corcagensis et Rossensis Episcopus
Anno Domini MDCCLXXX, Idemque
Solemniter consecravit die Septembris XXIX.

A monument, which was erected here to his memory, has been suffered to fall into ruins. The chapel having fallen into Lay hands, and being converted to secular uses, the vault which contained the remains of Bishops Browne and Mann has been closed up, and the tablets have been removed to the porch of the Cathedral. A portrait of Bishop Browne is preserved in the see-house of Cork.

1735. ROBERT CLAYTON, D.D. Bishop of Killalla, was translated to Cork and Ross by the King's letter, dated Nov. 22, and patent dated December 19. In August 1745, he was again translated, to Clogher.

He was born in Dublin, but was descended from an English family, and educated at Westminster school; after which he returned to Ireland and became a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin. His character is well known, as that of a munificent, learned, high-spirited man; but deficient in judgment and unsound in his religious principles. His published works are numerous; one of these, which is unnoticed by Chalmers in his Biographical Dictionary, is an "Assize Sermon," preached at Cork, on April 15, 1739. 4to. Cork. The most celebrated among them are his "Essay on Spirit" (1751 and 1752), and his "Vindication of the Histories of the Old and New Testament" (three parts, 1753, 1754, 1758). The Arian tenets avowed in these writings were so palpable and offensive, that an Ecclesiastical Commission was formed to bring the Bishop to trial; but, before any examination took place, he died of a fever occasioned by his alarm, on February 26, 1758. There is a portrait of him in the palace of Cork.

1745. JEMMET BROWNE, D.D. successively Dean of Ross, and Bishop of Killaloe, and of Dromore, was translated to Cork, by patent dated August 26. He was enthroned on September 6. In 1772 he was again moved, to Elphin; and lastly, in 1775, to the archbishopric of Tuam. He died in June, 1782, and was buried in the cathedral of Cork. While holding this see, he published a "Fast Sermon," preached in Christ Church, Dublin, on Dec. 18, 1745. 4to. Dublin, 1746.

1772. ISAAC MANN, D. D. Archdeacon of Dublin, succeeded.

He was born at Norwich, in 1710, but was educated at Trinity College, Dublin, having been brought over to Ireland when very young, and being supported by Lord Chancellor Jocelyn. [Todd's MSS.] His patent is dated March 7, 1772. He was consecrated in the Castle Chapel, Dublin, on March 15, by the Primate, assisted by the Bishops of Waterford and Limerick. The Bishop published a very useful work, entitled, "The Four Gospels and the Acts of the Apostles, with Notes explanatory and practical, for the Use of Schools." 12mo. Dublin, 1781. Also, "A familiar Exposition of the Church Catechism;" which has been frequently reprinted by the Society for promoting Christian Knowledge. He rebuilt the see-house of Cork.

He died at Bath on December 10, 1788; his corpse was conveyed to Ireland, and was buried in the chapel of Ballinaspic.

The following is the inscription formerly placed over his tomb; but the tablet was removed to the porch of the Cathedral in 1849, for reasons given above, at p. 231.

The Remains of ISAAC MANN, D. D.

Bishop of Cork and Ross,

Are deposited in a vault underneath.

He died at Bath, 10th December, 1788,

Aged 77.

Through respect to the memory of his beloved and much honoured uncle, and as a small mark of gratitude for his goodness towards him, Samuel Mann has caused this little monument to be placed here.

A portrait of the Bishop is preserved in the see-house of Cork.

1789. EUSEBY CLEAVER, D. D. son of the Rev. William Cleaver, was born at the rectory of Twyford, near Buckingham, on Sept. 8, 1745. He was younger brother of Dr. William Cleaver, Bishop of Chester, and afterwards of St. Asaph). In 1759 he was admitted a King's Scholar at Westminster; from whence he was elected a Student of Christ Church, Oxford, in 1763. M. A. in 1770; B. D. and D. D. in 1783. In 1774 he became Rector of Spoforth in Yorkshire; in 1783 Rector of Petworth in Sussex; and in 1787 a Prebendary of Chichester. In 1789, being then Chaplain to the Marquess of Buckingham, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, he was promoted to the sees of Cork and Ross. His patent bears date March 28. He was consecrated on the same day (Saturday), at the Castle Chapel, Dublin, by Charles Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Waterford and Cloyne. He remained here only a very few months; being translated to Leighlin and Ferns in the following June; and again, to Dublin, in 1809. [Family Papers.]

1789. WILLIAM FOSTER, M. A. (son of Anthony Foster, Chief Baron of the Irish Exchequer), was Chaplain to the House of Commons. In 1781 he was Rector of Lowth, and also was Rector of Urney, in the diocese of Derry. His patent for this see is dated June 13; and he was consecrated the next day, in St. Peter's Church at Dublin, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Dromore and Ossory. In 1790 he was translated to Kilmore; and in 1796 to Clogher, where he died in 1797.

1790. WILLIAM BENNETT, D. D. (a Fellow of Emmanuel College, Cambridge; B. A. in 1767; M. A. in 1770; B. D. in 1777; D. D. in 1790); became Chaplain to his uncle, the Earl of Westmoreland, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. He was raised to these sees on June 12, and was consecrated in the Chapel of Dublin Castle, on June 13, by the Archbishop of Cashel [quære Dublin?] assisted by the Bishops of Killaloe and Killala. In 1794 he was translated to Cloyne. He was reckoned an elegant and profound scholar, an able preacher, and a good man.

1794. Honorable THOMAS STOPFORD, D. D. (third son of James first Earl of Courtown). He became Dean of Killaloe, and afterwards of Ferns: and from thence was promoted to these sees on June 28; and was consecrated in St. Anne's Church, Dublin, on the following day, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Ossory and Killala. His death took place in Dublin, on January 24, 1805. He was interred in his family burying place, at Courtown, in the county of Wexford.

1805. Right Honorable Lord JOHN GEORGE BERESFORD, D. D. (third son of George first Marquess of Waterford), was educated at Eton, and afterwards at Christ Church, Oxford. He was ordained Deacon in St. Kevin's, Dublin, by the Archbishop of Tuam, on April 2, 1795; and Priest, by the same, at the same place, on December 17, 1797. His first benefice was the rectory of Clonegam, in the diocese of Lismore. In 1799 he became Dean of Clogher; and was raised to these sees by patent dated February 20. He was consecrated at St. Patrick's, Dublin, on March 24, by Charles Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Derry and Clogher. In 1807 he was translated to Raphoe; afterwards to Clogher; thence to Dublin; and eventually to the Primacy; which, happily for the Church, he still holds.

1807. Honorable THOMAS ST. LAWRENCE, D. D. (second son of Thomas first Earl of Howth), Dean of Cork, succeeded, by patent dated September 10; and was consecrated on September 27, in St. Patrick's, Dublin, by the Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Kildare and Kilmore. He retained these sees till his death, which took place at the palace, Cork, on February 10, 1831. He was buried in his cathedral.

1831. SAMUEL KYLE, D. D. a Scholar, Fellow, and Provost of Trinity College, Dublin (who had been ordained Priest, by the Bishop of Killala, on May 18, 1800), was appointed Bishop of Cork and Ross, by patent dated March 11. He was consecrated in the College Chapel, on March 27, by the Primate, assisted by the Bishops of Ferns and Cloyne; and was enthroned at Cork, by the Dean, on April 15. Under the Act 3 & 4 Will. IV. c. 37, the see of Cloyne became united to those of Cork and Ross, at the death of Bishop Brinkley, in 1835.

Bishop Kyle was a good scholar, a man of generous feelings, and active habits of business; most diligent in superintending the concerns of his important dioceses, which he conducted in such a manner as to gain general respect and esteem. During the last two or three years of his life he was incapacitated from attending to his episcopal duties, by severe illness. He died in Dublin, on May 18, 1848, aged seventy-eight years, and was buried in the Chapel of Trinity College, where a tablet has been erected to his memory bearing the following inscription:

JUXTA . HOC . MARMOR
SEPULTUS . EST

In the Cathedral of Cork there is also a tablet inscribed as follows:

“Erected by the Clergy of the united diocese of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross, to the memory of their late beloved Bishop, the Right Rev. Samuel Kyle, D. D. In affectionate remembrance of whose paternal care and many virtues, they have also endowed an Irish Scholarship in the University of Dublin. Consecrated March 27, 1831. Died May 18, 1848, aged 78.”

CORK, CLOYNE, AND ROSS.

1848. JAMES WILSON, D. D. a native of Newry, and edueated in that town, became a Scholar of Trinity College, Dublin. In 1830 he was appointed Rector of Killinane, in the diocese of Leighlin. In 1835 he became Præcentor of St. Patrick's, Dublin; and was advanced to these sees by patent dated July 17. He was consecrated on July 30, at St. Patrick's, Dublin, by Richard Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Meath and Ossory; and was enthroned, by the Dean, at Cork, on August 2, and at Cloyne, on August 3.

DEAN AND CHAPTER.

I do not find any account of the foundation of the Chapter of Cork. It is mentioned in the year 1238, under the prelaey of Bishop Gilbert. It appears that the prebends were constituted at different periods. The order of precedence among the members is now the same as in the other cathedrals of this province; but it appears that until the time of Queen Elizabeth, the Archdeacon took rank next after the Dean, as is the case in some of the more modern capitular bodies in the province of Ar-magh. [Reg. Vis.]

SEAL.

A seal of the Dean and Chapter, without date, but apparently ancient, is engraved in Harris's Ware, p. 555. In the oldest Chapter Book remaining, there is an impression of the seal of the Deans of Cork.

DEANS.

1288. PHILIP is Dean. [Cod. Clarend. 46.]

At the Restoration he was raised to the bishopric of Killala; but it appears that he had resigned his deanery many years previously.
1645. EDWARD WORTH, D. D. a native of the county of Cork (ordained Priest at Dublin on June 20, 1641), was made Dean, by patent dated May 1. In 1661 he was advanced to the see of Killaloe. Reid, in his "History of the Presbyterian Church" (vol. ii. p. 260) asserts that, during the times of the Commonwealth, Dr. Worth renounced the tenets of the Established Church, and joined the Sectaries [i. e. the Independents]; and that, at the King's Restoration, he once more conformed to Episcopacy. He was a munificent benefactor to the city of Cork, by founding and endowing the Blue Coat Hospital for the support and education of poor boys.

He has published,

1. A Sermon at the Funeral of Richard Boyle, Archbishop of Tuam. 4to. Cork, 1644.

In 1661 he became Chaplain to the House of Commons; and in 1662 was made Archdeacon of Armagh, and soon afterwards a Prebendary of Cloyne. He was presented to this deanery on September 3, and was instituted on the 4th of the following November; on which day he was also collated to the treasurership of Cloyne, and to the rectory of Carrigaline (or Beaver), and of Glanbarrohan(?) in the diocese of Ross. In 167 $\frac{2}{3}$ he was advanced to the see of Limerick; and in 1678 was translated to that of Tuam.

DIOCESE OF CLOYNE.

THIS diocese extends over the eastern and northern parts of the county of Cork. The see is believed to have been founded, in the latter part of the sixth century, by St. Colman, a man of piety and learning, who is said to have been a disciple of St. Finbarr, first Bishop of Cork; but there is some uncertainty as to this last point, as Colman is stated to have died between twenty-five and thirty years before his master. He erected a church at Chlain-vamha, and became its first Bishop. In 1431 this see was united to that of Cork, and so continued for a little more than two hundred years; and after the Restoration of King Charles II. it was holden by two Bishops of Cork. The Church Temporalities Act of 1834 united it permanently with the sees of Cork and Ross.

ARMS OF THE SEE.

In Harris' edition of Ware's Bishops are engravings of the seal of Nicholas de Effingham, inscribed

SIG. NICHOLAI EPISCOPI CLONENSIS, A^o. 1289.

SIGIL. GEORGII BERKLY EPISC. CLONENSIS, 1733.

The arms of the see differ completely in these two.

BISHOPS.

SÆC. VI. ST. COLMAN. St. Colman, a pious and learned man, domestic poet to the King of Munster [Vallancey's Coll. p. 440], who, perhaps, had been a scholar of St. Finn Barr, first Bishop of Cork, is considered to be the founder and first Bishop of Cloyne. The memorials of him are scanty. We do not know the exact time of his consecration, nor of the erection of his see. He died on
MUNSTER.] 2 P

November 24, in the year 604. He is said to have written "The Life of St. Senan," in metre. [Ware.]

Very little is now known of the successors of Colman, before the arrival of the English.

1094. O'MALVAIN, Bishop of Cloyne, died.

1140. NEHEMIAH O'MORIERTACH flourished in the year 1140, and died in 1149. He is described by an old writer, the author of "Tyndalus' Vision," as "a plain and modest man, excelling in wisdom and chastity."

1159. O'DUBERY, or O'DUBREIN, called Abbat of Cluain-vamha, died.

1167. O'FLANAGAN died.

1171. MATTHEW (perhaps Matthew O'Mongagh, Legate of Ireland) was Bishop of Cloyne at the time of the arrival of the English under Henry II. He died about 1192.

1192? LAURENCE O'SULLIVAN succeeded. He died at Lismore in 1204 or 1205.

12—. Bishop DANIEL, of Cloyne, died in 1222. The date of his accession to the see is not known.

1224. FLORENCE, Archdeacon of Belegath (whatever place that may designate, quære if Ballyhay, afterwards made a prebend?), "Archidiaconus Belegathensis," [Prynne's Records, ii. p. 393], was elected Bishop, and received the Royal assent on August 25, 1224. He did not sit long; for Ware found that the temporalities of this see were committed to the Metropolitan on the 3rd of the following February.

1226. PATRICK (or rather WILLIAM, see the Patent Roll of 10 Henry III. cited by Harris), a Cistercian monk, Prior of St. Mary's Abbey, at Fermoy, having been duly elected by the Chapter, received the Royal assent as Bishop of Cloyne, in 1226.

1237. DAVID M'KELLY, a Dominican friar, Dean of Cashel, "vir simplex et maturus," succeeded in 1237; and in the following year he was advanced to the archbishopric of Cashel. [Hibernia Dominicana.]

1240. ALAN O'SULLIVAN, a Dominican friar, succeeded. He was consecrated in 1240; and, after sitting eight years, was translated to Lismore.
1249. DANIEL, a Franciscan friar, having been elected by the Chapter, without asking and obtaining the King's assent, was consecrated (probably by the Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Lismore and Killaloe) in 1249. Historians have given a high character of him. He died in the beginning of the year 1264.
1265. REGINALD, Archdeacon, afterwards Bishop, of Down, having been elected by the Chapter, was translated to this see, in 1265. In 1273 he acted as suffragan to the Bishop of Lincoln; and consecrated the church of Stone, near Aylesbury, in Buckinghamshire. [Cole.] He died about the close of the year 1273.
1274. ALAN O'LONERGAN, a Franciscan friar, succeeded in the spring of 1274. The King's assent to his election is dated February 18. He died in 1283 $\frac{1}{2}$.
1284. NICHOLAS DE EFFINGHAM, an English friar, succeeded. He received his temporalities on September 2, 1284. He held this see for thirty-six years, and died at a very advanced age in 1320. His episcopal seal is engraved in Ware's History of the Bishops; and a drawing of it is in the Archives of Christ Church, Dublin.
1321. MAURICE O'SOLEHAN, or O'SOWLEVAN (O'SULLEVAN), Archdeacon (of Cloyne?) succeeded. He was a Canon of Emlly at this time. During his incumbency there was a design to unite the sees of Cork and Cloyne, by reason of the smallness of their revenues; but it was not then carried into effect. He died in the thirteenth year of his episcopate, A. D. 1334.
- 1335 JOHN DE CUMBA, or COOMBE, a Cistercian monk of the abbey of Coombe in Warwickshire, succeeded by Papal provision. He received his temporalities on September 16, 1335(a).

13—. JOHN BRID, Abbat of the Cistercian Abbey of Louth Park, in Lincolnshire, was Bishop of Cloyne about this period; but nothing certain is known respecting the time of his appointment: it is probable that he died in 1351; as the writ of his successor, dated September in that year, declares the see to have become vacant by his death.

1351. JOHN WHITTOCK, Dean of Cloyne, was elected Bishop by the Chapter, and was confirmed by the Pope. Having submitted himself to the King, his temporalities were restored on Sept. 18, 1351. He died on Feb. 7, 1361.

1363. (The see having been vacant two years), JOHN DE SWAFFAM, D. D. of Cambridge, an English Carmelite friar, of Lynn, in the county of Norfolk, was appointed Bishop, by Papal provision, in 1363. In 1376 he was translated to the see of Bangor in North Wales, by the Pope, in reward for his having distinguished himself as an opponent of the followers of Wicliffe. Some of his writings are mentioned by Ware, viz.:

1. Contra Wiclevistas.

2. Conciones.

1376. RICHARD WYE, an English Carmelite friar, succeeded by Papal provision, and received his temporalities from the King, on November 9. Owing to some misconduct he was excommunicated in 1380, and fled to England; and in 1394 was deprived of his see, for speaking disrespectfully of the Pope. [Rot. Claus. 18 Ric. II.]

1394. GERALD CANTON (quære, CANTOK?), an Augustinian

(a) A congé d'elire issued to the Dean and Chapter, dated August 3, to elect a Bishop in the place of LEWIS, the late Bishop. [Rot. Tur. Berm.; Cooper's MS. additions to Ware.]

Eremit, and Vicar-General of that Order in Ireland, was made Bishop by Papal provision, and received his temporalities on November 9. He is found in possession of the see on May 14, 1407; but the time of his death is not known.

- 14—. ADAM PAY (or PYE, or PORY) succeeded. He laboured hard, but in vain, to unite the see of Cork to his own. He died in 1430.

Under the following Bishops the see of Cloyne was united to Cork (and Ross) by the Pope; and it is stated in Archbishop Swayne's Register, at Armagh, that the poverty of the sees was the ground of union, and that the two Chapters were to sit and vote together as one body:

1431. JORDAN.
 14—. GERALD FITZGERALD.
 1479. WILLIAM ROCHE.
 1490. THADY M'CARTHY.
 149—. GERALD.
 1499. JOHN FITZ EDMUND.
 15—. JOHN BENNETT.
 1536. DOMINICK TIRRY.
 1557. ROGER SKIDDY.
 1570. RICHARD DIXON.
 1572. MATTHEW SHEYN.
 1582. WILLIAM LYON.
 1618. JOHN BOYLE.
 1620. RICHARD BOYLE.

For some account of the foregoing fourteen prelates, see among the Bishops of Cork.

The see was disunited from that of Cork by letters patent dated October 8, 1638.

1638. GEORGE SYNGE (or MILLINGTON), D. D.(a), was a

(a) The family of Synge took its rise at Bridgnorth in Shropshire; its name was originally Millington. One Millington, a canon in the Collegiate church of native of Bridgnorth in Shropshire, and was educated at Balliol College, Oxford; coming to Ireland he became Chaplain to Primate Hampton, and was made Rector of Donoghmore in the County Tyrone (which in 1628 he exchanged with the Crown for the rectory of Lough Gilly) [Todd]; also Vicar-General of Armagh, and Dean of Dromore. He was consecrated Bishop of Cloyne at St. Peter's in Drogheda, by Archbishop Ussher, on November 11. He was a man of high character and great learning, especially in polemic divinity, and in Canon and Civil Law; and being such, was appointed a member of the Privy Council in Ireland. He published a learned reply to the Jesuit Malone's answer to Archbishop Ussher, entitled, "A Rejoinder to the Reply published by the Jesuits, under the name of William Malone." 4to. Dublin, 1632. Upon the breaking out of the Rebellion in 1641, the Bishop was plundered of all his goods, cattle, &c., at Cloyne, worth £1250, on October 24; also of property in other parts of Ireland, to the total amount of £3932. He himself fled to Dublin for protection, and soon afterwards retired to England. But

St. Mary Magdalene, in that town, who was distinguished for the excellence of his voice in the choir,* was generally known by the name of Sing or Synge. When the choir was dissolved at the Reformation, he adopted this name, married, and left a son named Thomas. Thomas was father of George, who became an alderman of Bridgnorth, and bailiff in 1564, and died in 1601. Richard, his son, was also an alderman and bailiff in 1598; he died in 1631. Richard was father of George, Bishop of Cloyne (who was born in 1594), and of Edward, Bishop of Limerick, and subsequently of Cork and Ross. Edward had two sons, Nicholas, who became Bishop of Killaloe; and Edward, who was successively Bishop of Clonfert, Cloyne, Ferns and Leighlin, and of Elphin.

[MS. papers of the Synge family, preserved at Bridgnorth; communicated by the Rev. W. K. Marshall, Vicar of St. Mary Magdalene's in that town.]

* We have a somewhat similar instance in a Bishop of Clonfert named Fintan, who flourished in the sixth century. He obtained the surname of Corack, from the sweetness of his voice and his fondness for music. [Harris.]

his family were not so fortunate : for “five of his children, with their mother and grandmother, going by sea to England to save their lives, were all drowned together in the passage.” [See Depositions, MS. T. C. D. F. 2. 17.] He died, in the year 1652, at his native town of Bridgnorth, and was there buried, on the last day of August, in the church of St. Mary Magdalene ; where, in the epitaph placed on his tomb, he is thus characterized : “Vir gravis admodum et doctus, præsertim in polemicâ Theologiâ, et Juris utriusque scientiâ. Procerioris præterea staturæ, formæ decoræ, et generosæ conversationis.” After his death the see continued vacant, until the Restoration of King Charles II.

1660^o. MICHAEL BOYLE was consecrated Bishop of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross, in 1660. [See a further account of him among the Bishops of Cork.]

1663. EDWARD SYNGE, D.D. younger brother of Bishop George Syngé, became Bishop of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross, in 1663. He died in 1678. [See among the Bishops of Cork.]

1679. PATRICK SHERIDAN, D. D. (a son of the Rev. Denis Sheridan, a Romish priest, who had been converted by Bishop Bedell, and brother of William Sheridan, Bishop of Kilmore), was a native of the County of Cavan ; and was educated in the University of Dublin. He was elected a Fellow of Trinity College in 1660 ; became Archdeacon of Dromore in 1664 ; Dean of Connor in 1667 ; and Bishop of Cloyne, by patent dated April 19, 1679. His patent contained a license to hold his archdeaconry and deanery, with the rectory of Island Magee, in commendam, by reason of the smallness of the revenues of his see. [Todd.] He was consecrated on April 27, at Cashel, by Thomas Price, Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Waterford, Cork, and Killaloe. He died at Dublin, on November 22, 1682, and was buried in the College Chapel; but no monument or inscription to him now remains.

1683. EDWARD JONES, B. D. a native of Montgomeryshire, educated at Westminster School, and afterwards a Fellow of Trinity College, Cambridge (B. A. in 1664; M.A. 1668), came over to Ireland as domestic Chaplain to the Duke of Ormonde, who made him Master of the Free School in Kilkenny, where he had the honour of being preceptor to Dean Swift. He became also Prebendary of Aghoure in the diocese of Ossory, and afterwards Dean of Lismore; from whence he was advanced to this see, by patent dated February 26, 1682 $\frac{2}{3}$, and was consecrated at Cashel, on 11th March following, by the Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Waterford, Limerick, and Killaloe. Under Lord Tyreconnell's severe Government, in King James' reign, he retreated to England with his wife and six children. On December 13, 1692, he was translated to the see of St. Asaph in Wales. He died at his house in College Court, near Westminster Abbey, on May 10, 1703; and was buried in the church of St. Margaret, Westminster, under the Communion Table, without any inscription or monument. [Willis' St. Asaph.]

1693. WILLIAM PALLISER, D. D. a native of Yorkshire, was educated first at Northallerton in Yorkshire, and afterwards in Dublin; and was elected a Fellow of Trinity College, and Professor of Divinity in that University. He received Deacon's orders from the Bishop of Ferns, at Wexford, in November, 1669; and Priest's orders on January 28 following, in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin. He was promoted to this see by patent dated February 14, 1692 $\frac{2}{3}$, and was consecrated in Trinity College Chapel, on March 5, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Limerick and Elphin. He was enthroned, by proxy, on March 18(a). He was translated to the archbishopric of Cashel, on June 16, 1694.

1694. TOBIAS PULLEN, or PULLEIN, D. D. (grandson of the Archbishop of Tuam), a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, and afterwards Rector of Tullyaghinish in the diocese of Raphoe, was made Dean of Ferns, Rector of Louth, and Vicar of St. Peter's, Drogheda, in 1682; and on November 13, 1694, obtained this see by patent, upon the warm recommendation of Dr. Tenison, then Bishop of Lincoln, afterwards Archbishop of Canterbury. [MSS. Lambeth.] He was consecrated by Narcissus Marsh, Archbishop of Dublin. [Elrington.] In the next year he was translated to Dromore.

1695. ST. GEORGE ASHE, D. D. (born at Castle Strange, in the County Roscommon, on March 3, 1657), a Fellow, and Provost of Trinity College, Dublin, and a Fellow of the Royal Society, succeeded, by patent dated July 15, and was consecrated at Christ Church, Dublin, on Feb. 15 following, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Meath, Kildare, and Waterford. In 1697 he was translated to Clogher; and from thence, in 1716, to Derry. He has published:

1. A Sermon before the University of Dublin. 4to. Dublin and London, 1694.

2. A Sermon before the Protestants of Ireland in London. 8vo. London and Dublin, 1712.

3. Two Sermons preached at Tunbridge. 4to. 1714.

4. A Sermon before the Society for Propagation of the Gospel. 4to. London, 1715.

(a) In the Primatial Registry of Armagh is preserved a Visitation Book of the diocese of Cloyne, of the year 1693 or 1694; accompanied by very interesting observations, and a letter to the Lords Justices of Ireland, on the state of that diocese, in the handwriting of Bishop Palliser.

5. A Sermon before the Lords Justices, on January 30. 4to. Dublin, 1715.

6. A Sermon before the Society for Reformation of Manners. 4to. London, 1717.

He also published several papers in the Philosophical Transactions.

1697. JOHN POOLEY, D. D. a native of Ipswich in Suffolk, received his education in Dublin, where he became a Fellow of Trinity College. He was appointed Dean of Kilkenny in 1674, and Prebendary of St. Michan's, in the cathedral of Christ Church, Dublin, in 1682. He was raised to the see of Cloyne, by patent dated Nov. 24, 1697; and was consecrated on December 2, by William, Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Ferns and Clonfert, in the church of St. Michan, Dublin; which fabric he had preserved from ruin, by his great diligence and exertions. He used every endeavour to recover some of the alienated possessions of his see, but with small success. In 1702 he was translated to Raphoe. He died on October 16, 1712, in the sixty-seventh year of his age, and was buried in St. Michan's church, Dublin. The inscription on his monument is given at full length in Ware's Bishops, p. 282, where also is an account of his munificent donations and bequests.

1702. CHARLES CROW, D. D. a native of Hawkstead in Lancashire (son of the Rev. Mr. Crow, who held preferment in the Isle of Mann), was educated at the school of St. Bees in Cumberland; and afterwards became a member of Queen's College, in Oxford; but does not appear to have taken any degree in that University. He came to Ireland as amanuensis to Dr. Andrew Sall, a converted Jesuit of piety and talent, who afterwards became Chancellor of Cashel, and a Prebendary of St. Patrik's, Dublin. He was ordained Deacon at Leighlin, on April 13, 1679; and Priest, on March 25 following; when he was appointed Chaplain to the Lord Lieutenant, and obtained the dignity of Provost of Tuam. He succeeded to the see of Cloyne, by patent dated September 15, 1702; and was consecrated on October 18, in Christ Church, Dublin, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Kildare and Derry. By great diligence and expense he recovered a large landed property, which had been alienated from his see; and was, in other ways, a generous benefactor to his diocese, as may be seen in the account given of him in Ware's History of the Bishops. He likewise presented some handsome Communion plate to the cathedral. He had been in possession of some land in the Isle of Mann, then worth ten pounds a year; which he bestowed and settled for ever as a glebe to the parish of Kirk Christ in that island. He died on June 26, 1726, and was buried at Cloyne; but no monument of him now remains.

1726. HENRY MAULE, LL. D. a Prebendary, and afterwards Dean of Cloyne, became Bishop of this see (with license to hold the Provostship of Tuam and the rectory of Ahada in commendam [Todd]), by patent dated September 6; and was consecrated at Dunboyne, in the diocese of Meath, on September 11, by the Primate, assisted by the Bishops of Kildare and Ferns. He was enthroned at Cloyne, on October 25. [See an account of his earlier preferments, in Ware.] He presented a large silver chalice to his cathedral. In 1731 he was translated to the see of Dromore.

1731. EDWARD SYNGE, D. D. (formerly a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin), Bishop of Clonfert, succeeded by patent dated March 21. In 1733 he was translated to the see of Ferns, and afterwards to Elphin.

1733 $\frac{3}{4}$. GEORGE BERKELEY, D. D. was born on March 12, 1684-5, at Killerin, near Thomastown, in the county of Kilkenny. He was first educated at the School of Kilkenny, and afterwards became a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin. He was ordained Deacon in the chapel of Trinity College, on Feb. 19, 1709. [Dublin Consist. Off.] For some years he officiated as Chaplain to the British embassy, at the Court of the King of Sicily; and returning to Ireland as Chaplain to the Duke of Grafton, Lord Lieutenant, was appointed Dean of Dromore in 1721-2; and of Derry, in 1724. He was promoted to the see of Cloyne, by patent dated March 17; and was consecrated in St. Paul's church, Dublin, on May 19 following, by Theophilus, Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Raphoe and Killaloe.

Of his character, abilities, and literary productions, there is no need to speak. He died suddenly, but calmly, at Oxford, in the bosom of his family, on Sunday, January 14, 1753; and was buried in the cathedral of Christ Church, where a marble monument is erected to his memory, bearing the following inscription by the elegant pen of Dr. Markham, Archbishop of York:

Gravissimo Præsuli

 Sen probitatis et beneficentiæ spectemus,

(a) This is a mistake. The Bishop was born on March 12, 1684.

Beneath are his episcopal arms; and on a marble slab the following verse from Pope:

“To Berkeley every virtue under heaven.”

He bequeathed a yearly sum of £200 to be distributed among the poor of Cloyne, Youghal, and Ahada.

His numerous and valuable works were collected and published in 2 vols. 4to. London, 1784; 3 vols. 8vo. Ibid. 1820; and, with a Memoir of his Life by the Rev. G. N. Wright, 2 vols. 8vo. Ibid. 1843.

1753. JAMES STOPFORD, M. A. a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, became Provost of Tuam, Archdeacon of Killaloe, and Dean of Kilmacduagh. He was made Bishop of Cloyne, by patent dated February 28; and was consecrated at St. Anne's church, Dublin, on March 11, by the Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Cork and Killaloe. He held this see till his death, which took place at Dublin, on August 23, 1759. While Bishop of Cloyne, he published a Sermon, preached before the Incorporated Society. 4to. Dublin, 1758.

1759. ROBERT JOHNSON, D. D. Dean of Tuam, succeeded. His patent is dated October 12. He was consecrated in St. Patrick's, Dublin, on October 21, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Cork and Waterford. He died at Cloyne, in January, 1767, and was buried in the chancel of his cathedral. By his will he bequeathed £20 to the poor of Youghal, £10 to those of Cloyne; £5 to those of Ahada; and £10 to the poor of any parish in which he should happen to die.

1767. Hon. FREDERICK AUGUSTUS HERVEY, D. D. (fourth Earl of Bristol), obtained the see of Cloyne, by patent dated March 2. He was educated at Cambridge; but the University of Oxford conferred on him the degree of D. D. by diploma, on April 6, 1770, he being at that time a Member of Brasenose College. He was con-separated in Christ Church, Dublin, on May 31, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Meath and Ferns. In January of the next year he was translated to Derry; under which diocese see some particulars of this very remarkable man.

1768. CHALES AGAR, D. D. (a grandson of Dr. Welbore Ellis Agar, Bishop of Meath), was born at Gowran Castle, County Kilkenny. He was educated at Westminster School, and in 1755 became a student of Christ Church, Oxford. Becoming Chaplain to the Duke of Northumberland, Lord Lieutenant, he obtained the deanery of Kilmore, and afterwards the see of Cloyne, by patent dated February 26. He was consecrated on March 20 following, in St. Patrick's, Dublin, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Kildare and Cork; and was enthroned on April 8. In 1779 he was translated to Cashel; where see a further account of him.
1780. GEORGE CHINNERY, D. D. Bishop of Killaloe, was translated to Cloyne, by patent dated February 15. He soon sank under bodily infirmities, and died at Cloyne, on August 13, in the same year.
1781. RICHARD WOODWARD, D. C. L. a native of Grimsbury, near Bristol, was educated, first, by Dr. Josiah Tucker, Dean of Gloucester; and afterwards at Wadham College, Oxford; B. C. L. 1749; D. C. L. 1759. Coming over to Ireland, he became Dean of Clogher, and in 1772 Chancellor of St. Patrick's, Dublin. He subsequently exchanged his chancellorship for the rectory of Louth, in May, 1778. He was advanced to the see of Cloyne, by patent dated February 3; was consecrated at Christ Church, Dublin, on the next day, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Ossory and Clonfert, and was enthroned, by proxy, on February 8. He continued in this see until his death in the year 1794.

Bishop Woodward was a distinguished scholar, an able preacher, and a zealous and effective friend to the Church, whose cause he defended warmly and successfully in his well-known Tract, "The present State of the Church of Ireland," 8vo. 1787; a publication which was read with the greatest avidity, passed rapidly through several editions, and evinced the force of the author's arguments, by the violent enmity which it excited against him in all the enemies of the Church(a). While Dean of Clogher, Dr. Woodward had exerted himself strenuously towards obtaining a legal provision for the Poor; and with this view published,

1. "An Argument in support of the Right of the Poor in Ireland to a national Provision." 8vo. Dublin, 1772.

2. "An Address to the Public on the Expediency of a regular Plan for the Maintenance and Government of the Poor." 8vo. Dublin, 1775.

He also published a Charge delivered to the Clergy at the Visitation in July, 1793. 4to. Cork, 1793.

He died in 1794, aged 67, and was buried in his cathedral; in the north transept of which is a monument to his memory, bearing the subjoined inscription(b).

(a) The Dean and Chapter of Christ Church, Dublin, presented to him their united thanks, for his seasonable publication in defence of our Constitution in Church and State. [Christ Church Chapter Book.] The Dean and Chapter of St. Patrick's paid him the same compliment.

RICHARD WOODWARD, Bishop of Cloyne,

Aged 67. 1794.

Whose superior talents, enlightened by extensive Learning, and invigorated by an active Intercourse with the World, were devoted to the Discharge of his Duty as a Citizen, Parochial Minister, and Prelate, with the most earnest Zeal, soundest Discretion, and truest Liberality.

He planned and was the principal Institutor of the House of Industry in Dublin in 1773. He was an eloquent and distinguished Advocate in the House of 1794. WILLIAM BENNET, D. D. Bishop of Cork, was translated to this see, by patent dated June 27; and was enthroned, by proxy, on July 1. Here he remained till his death, which took place in London, on July 16, 1820, in the seventy-fifth year of his age. He was buried in the church of Plumstead, in Kent. A monument is erected in his cathedral of Cloyne, bearing the subjoined inscription(a).

It appears, that the Bishop was at one time very anxious to obtain the provostship of Trinity College, Dublin, to be holden in commendam with his bishopric; namely, at the death of Provost Hutchinson, in 1795; but this scheme was frustrated, partly through the indignant remonstrance of Edmund Burke. [See “the Peers for the Repeal of the Roman Catholic Penal Statutes in 1782; and the Author of “the Present State of the Church of Ireland,” published in 1787; and is hence justly to be denominated the Father of the Poor—the friend of Toleration—and the Support and Ornament of the Protestant Established Religion.

In pious Gratitude for the uninterrupted Happiness which she owed to his amiable domestic Character, this Monument is erected by his afflicted Widow, Susanna Woodward.

For 26 years Lord Bishop of the Diocese of Cloyne.

A Man of varied Attainments, refined Literary Taste, singularly modest and courteous in Manners, of great Simplicity of Spirit, and genuine Philanthropy of Heart. Called in the Providence of God to a high and responsible Office in the Church of England, he was anxious that she should maintain that dignified Post in the Defence and Dissemination of the Holy Scriptures, which the Reformation taught her to occupy, and which her Interest and Duty alike forbid her to abandon; he therefore, during a Period of ten Years, was a zealous Vice-President of that noble Institution, the British and Foreign Bible Society; its sacred Cause was near his Heart; its Vindication opened his Lips, and drew from their Concealment Talents of no mean Order; nor was Death permitted to close his Eyes until he had witnessed its unparalleled Success under the manifest Blessing of the Most High.

He resigned his Spirit into the Hands of his Creator, on the 16th day of July, 1820, in the 75th Year of his Age.

Correspondence between E. Burke and Dr. French Laurence," p. 301.]

Bishop Bennet maintained till his death an intimacy and friendship with his old school-fellow, the learned Dr. Samuel Parr, who appears to have entertained for him a high respect. Many letters which passed between them are published in the "Works of Samuel Parr, LL. D. by J. Johnstone," 8vo. London, 1828, in vols. i. vii. and viii. In the fourth volume also appear two Latin epitaphs, written by Dr. Parr at the Bishop's desire; both seemingly intended for the cloisters of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, at which he had received his education, and had long resided. They are as follows:

1820. CHARLES MONGAN WARBURTON, D. D. Bishop of Limerick, was translated to Cloyne, by patent dated September 18; and continued in this see till his death at Cloyne, on August 9, 1826, in the seventy-second year of his age. He was buried in his cathedral. The following testimony is inscribed on his tomb-stone(a):

(a) To the Memory of the
 Lord Bishop of Cloyne,
 Deceased 9th August, A. D. 1826,
 Aged 72 years,

This memorial of affectionate Regret is erected by his disconsolate Widow,

1826. JOHN BRINKLEY, D. D. an Englishman, became a Fellow of Caius College, Cambridge; where he attained the most distinguished honours in Science, being Senior Wrangler of his year; B. A. in 1788; M. A. 1791. In 1792 he was made Professor of Astronomy, in Trinity College, Dublin; and in 1822 was elected President of the Royal Irish Academy. One of his earliest Church preferments in Ireland was the rectory of Derrybrusk, in the diocese of Clogher, to which he was presented on June 5, 1806. He afterwards held the prebend of Kilgoghlin in the diocese of Elphin. On April 5, 1808, he was collated to the vicarage of Laracor, in the diocese of Meath; and in 1808 was appointed Archdeacon of Clogher. His patent for this see is dated September 28; and he was consecrated in the Chapel of Dublin Castle, on October 8, by Richard, Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Meath and Kildare. He died at Dublin, on September 14, 1835, aged 69; and was buried in the Chapel of Trinity College. A marble tablet to his memory is erected in his cathedral, bearing the subjoined inscription(a); and in the year 1846, a Frances Warburton, and Children. He was consecrated Bishop of Limerick 13th July, 1806, and translated to this See 20th September, 1820. To a dignified Deportment in the strict Discharge of his holy Office, he united most engaging Suavity of Manners and unbounded Benevolence.

Late Bishop of Cloyne; previously Professor of Astronomy in Dublin College, and up to his Death President of the Royal Irish Academy. He died in Dublin, September, 1835, aged 69 Years, and his remains were deposited in the Vaults of the University.

Quick in discerning and rewarding Professional Merit, and anxious to rule with Firmness without Severity, he succeeded in maintaining Discipline without provoking Complaint. In General Literature and Natural History, as well as in marble bas-relief, presenting a side view of the Bishop, with his hand extended upon an open book, was erected in the vestibule under the College Library: on its pedestal is the following inscription:

Bishop Brinkley's character, as an Astronomer, is well known to the whole world of science. He was also one of the best Botanists of his age.

Though his great talents were in constant exercise, his published works are not numerous: they consist of "The Elements of Astronomy," for the use of the Students of Trinity College; and several papers preserved in the "Transactions of the Royal Irish Academy."

Science, his Attainments were accurate and diversified, and his Communications interesting and instructive; learned, without Pedantry, and pious without Ostentation; unaffectedly kind to every Member of his Household; liberal in his Charity, and given to Hospitality. His Death was generally deplored, and his Memory is justly revered by those who have raised this humble Record of his Worth.

On his death, the see of Cloyne became united to those of Cork and Ross, by the Act 3 & 4 Will. IV. c. 37. So that henceforward, the Bishops of Cloyne will be found under the diocese of Cork.

DEAN AND CHAPTER.

The Dean and Chapter of Cloyne are mentioned in records, in the year 1225. [Prynne's Records, II. p. 402.]

SEAL.

A chapter seal is engraved in Harris's Ware, bearing the inscription:

SIGILLVM COMMVNE DECANI ET CAPIT. CLONEN. 1700.

DEANS.

1251. GILBERT was Dean. [Cod. Clar. 46; Reg. Decan. Lim.]
1291. PHILIP SEGDA, M. A. [Taxatio Nicolai Papæ.]
1317. CHARLES O'DONCHADA, Dean, died on October 13. [Cod. Clar. 46.] Quære, whether he was not also Prebendary of Subulter? He appears to have been a person of distinguished talents. His death is thus noticed in MS. T. C. D. F. 1. 18: "Hoc anno, 3 id. Oct. D^{ms} Carolus O'Donchada Decanus Clonensis [quievit], qui fuit vir magnæ litteraturæ et magni nominis in totâ Momoniâ, et de ejus morte tota Ecclesia Hibernicana passa est magnum dampnum et jacturam."
1320. JOHN appears. [Ibid.]
- 1324 to 1330. JOHN LE BLOND, BLOUNDE, or BLONDE. [Ibid. and Rot. Cane.] Ware states, that in 1326 he was elected Bishop of Cork; but doubts whether he ever were consecrated. Probably not: at least if this entry be correct, of his continuing Dean in 1330.

1359. JOHN WENT (quære, WEST?). [Cod. Clar. 46.]
1367. JOHN CANTOK. He died in 1376. [Ibid.]
1376. THOMAS STRIKER. [Ibid.]
1402. EUGENIUS. [Ibid.]
1512. THADDEUS O'KEEFFE. [Ibid.]
1529. DAVID FITZJAMES FITZGERALD. [Ibid.]
1535. JAMES FITZWILLIAM is named as being Dean of Cloyne at this time, in a warrant of King Henry VIII. (See note at p. 221 above).
1591. Sir JOHN EDMUNDI (or FITZEDMUND), Knight. [MS. T. C. D. E. 3. 14.] He died in 1612. [Rot. Pat. 10 Jac. I.]
- 161 $\frac{2}{3}$. THOMAS WINTER, M. A. Treasurer of Cashel, and Præcentor of Waterford, and of Lismore. He had likewise been Archdeacon of Derry. He was presented February 14. [Rot. Pat.] He died in 1614 or 1615. "Sir John Fitzgarrett hath usurped both his house and revenues." [Reg. Vis.]
1615. EDWARD CLERKE, M. A. a Prebendary of Cork (ordained Priest, June 24, 1601); admitted August 27; installed September 1. [Ibid.]
1640. MICHAEL BOYLE, D. D. (son of Dr. Boyle, Archbishop of Tuam); presented by the Crown, March 30. [Lib. Mun. Hib.] During the Rebellion he was Chaplain-General to the army. It was deposed, that he lost property by the rebels, to the value of £565. [MS. T. C. D. F. 2. 17.] In 166 $\frac{0}{1}$ he was advanced to the united bishoprics of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross.
- 166 $\frac{0}{1}$. HENRY RUGGE, M. A. a Vicar Choral of Ross; patent dated February 21. [Ibid.] He was licensed to hold the prebend of Kilmaedonagh at the same time. In the next year he was made a Prebendary of Cork. He died in 1671; and was buried in his cathedral, under the south end of the Communion Table.

1671. WILLIAM FITZGERALD, M. A. (son of Dr. John Fitzgerald, Dean of Cork), was born in that city. He was Rector of Clondrohid in this diocese, and a Prebendary of St. Patriek's, Dublin. His patent is dated July 13 [Ibid.]; instituted August 3. [FF.] In 1675 he became Archdeacon of Ross; and in 1691 was raised to the bishoprics of Clonfert and Kilmaeduagh.
1691. HENRY SCARDEVILLE, B. D. a Prebendary of St. Patriek's, Dublin, and Chaplain to Marshal the Duke of Sehomberg, succeeded. His patent is dated September 4 [Ibid.]; but he was not instituted till August 2, 1695. [D. R.] In 1695 he was made Archdeacon of Ross. He died in 1703.
- 170 $\frac{3}{4}$. THOMAS DEANE, M. A. Treasurer of Waterford, and a Prebendary of Kilkenny; patent dated March 6 [Ibid.]; instituted July 20. [FF.] He died in 1714.
1714. ROBERT SESS, or SESSE, D. D. a Vicar Choral, and Prebendary of Subulter; patent dated August 12. [Lib. Mun.] This was a second patent; and it recites that Sess had incautiously omitted to subscribe the Act of Uniformity within the appointed time. The patent itself remains in the Registry of Cashel. After all, it does not appear certain that this appointment was completed. If Sess was instituted and installed to the deanery (of which ceremonies no record remains in the diocesan registry), it is probable that he resigned it in a few days.
1714. THOMAS SIMCOCKS, M. A. Prebendary of Cahirultan; admitted September 9. [Vis. Book.]
1718. JOSIAH HORT, M. A. a native of Gloucestershire, was educated at Clare Hall in Cambridge, but does not appear to have taken any degree in that University. His patent is dated April 3. [Vis. Book.] In 1720 he was moved to the deanery of Ardagh; and subsequently became Bishop of Ferns, and of Kilmore, and Archbishop of Tuam.

1720. HENRY MAULE, LL. D. Prebendary of Laekene; patent dated June 22 [Ibid.]; instituted and installed July 22. [FF.] In 1726 he was raised to the bishopric of Cloyne.
1726. JAMES WARD; patent dated Sept. 24 [Lib. Mun.]; instituted Oct. 26. [FF.] He died on June 15, 1736.
1736. ISAAC GOLDSMITH, M. A. patent dated September 7 [Ibid.]; instituted October 2. In 1741 he was made a Prebendary of Cork. He died in 1769; and was buried at St. Peter's, Drogheda.
1769. WILLIAM PRATT, B. A. presented May 26; instituted and installed August 16. He died in the following year.
1770. EYTON BUTTS, M. A. Præcentor of Lismore, and Chancellor of Ferns; presented April 21; instituted August 31; installed next day. [D. R.] But the Visitation Books of 1772 and 1775 state that the deanery is vacant. In 1778 he was made Præcentor of Waterford. He died in 1779.
1779. Hon. JOHN HEWITT (son of the first Viscount Lifford); presented May 4; instituted May 27. He held it till his death on May 13, 1804.
1804. JAMES ARCHIBALD HAMILTON, D. D. Archdeacon of Ross, and a Prebendary of Armagh; presented September 17; instituted October 9. He was appointed the first astronomer of Armagh, by Primate Robinson, the founder of the Observatory, on July 31, 1790. He died in the Observatory, on November 21, 1815. He has published several valuable papers in the Transactions of the Royal Irish Academy.

1816. ALEXANDER ARBUTHNOT, M. A. Archdeacon of Aghadoe; presented February 22; instituted July 27. In 1823 he was raised to the bishopric of Killaloe.

1845. Right Hon. HERVEY DE MONTMORENCI, fourth Viscount Mountmorres, LL. D. succeeded. His patent is dated October 28. He was instituted and installed on November 1.

PRÆCENTORS. [See Preb. of Kileredan.]

1253. MAURICE, Præcentor, was in this year elected Bishop of Ross. [Ware.]
1291. WILLIAM DE VALLE was Præcentor. His prebendal church was Kilmaedonagh. [Taxatio P. Nicolai.]
1449. JOHN BYSK, or BRIT. He is fined for misconduct, as Proctor of the Clergy. [Rot. Pat. 28 Hen. VI.]

1718. SAMUEL HOLT, M. A. admitted in April. He was a Prebendary of Lismore; and in 1722-3 was made a Prebendary of St. Patrick's, Dublin. He resigned in November of the same year. [FF.]

 ARCHDEACONS.

About the year 1579 the Bishop of Cloyne had two archdeacons, viz. of Cloyne and Telalakath. [Cooper's MS. additions to Ware.]

1179. COLMAN O'SCANNLAIN, Aircinneach (quære Archdeacon?) of Cloyne, died. [Four Masters.]

1201. CHRISTIAN was Archdeacon [MS. T. C. D. F. I. 18.]
1253. M———. [Reg. Decan. Lim.]
1271. MATGUMAN O'DONCHADA, Archdeacon, died. [MS. T. C. D. F. I. 18.]
1291. MAURICE O'SULLEVAN, M. A. [Taxatio P. Nicolai.]
He was a Canon of Emly in 1302; and in 1320 or 1321 was consecrated Bishop of Cloyne. [Ware.]
1322. LUKE O'MURRAY, Archdeacon, died. [Four Masters.]
- 1361 to 1377. ROGER BRAYBROOK. [MS. T. C. D. F. I. 18; Rot. Cane. Hib.; and Cod. Clarendon. 36.]
1463. WILLIAM ROCHE. In this year he contrived to be appointed coadjutor to his Bishop; and eventually succeeded to the sees of Cork and Cloyne in 1479. [Ware.]
1480. JOHN BARRY appears. [D. Reg.]
1585. THOMAS WETHERHEAD was appointed by the Crown. His patent, dated Sept. 9, gave him the archdeaconry of Cork and also of Cloyne. In 1589 he was advanced to the bishopric of Waterford and Lismore. [Ware.]
1591. PHILIP GOLD, or GOULDE, M. A. a Vicar Choral. [MS. T. C. D. E. 3. 14.] Like his predecessor, he was Archdeacon of Cork; and held also the prebend of Glanore.
- 161 $\frac{3}{4}$. MICHAEL BOYLE, D. D. was promoted to this dignity (and likewise to the archdeaconry of Cork), January 7; installed same day. [Reg. Vis.] In the next year he became Dean of Lismore. In 1619 he was made Bishop of Waterford, but retained his archdeaconry in commendam; and in 1621 obtained, by patent from the Crown, the treasurership of Waterford and chancellorship of Lismore.
1625. EDWARD FINCH was presented by the Crown to the archdeaconry of Cork and Cloyne; his patent is dated March 7. [Lib. Mun. Hib.]
1634. MICHAEL BOYLE again appears as Archdeacon. [Reg. Vis.] He died in 1635.

1636. WILLIAM STEERE, D. D. Bishop of Ardferf, was presented by the Crown on April 6 to this archdeaconry and that of Cork, with license to hold them in commendam of his see. [FF.]
1641. PHILIP BISSE, or BYSSE, presented by the Crown, August 13. [Lib. Mun. Hib.] It would appear that he was appointed (together with Dean Gray of Ardferf) a Commissioner to inquire into the losses sustained by the Protestants of Munster in the rebellion of 1641. Cox states that he was murdered by the rebels in the autumn of 1642, on his way homewards, between Cork and Youghal; and that, as he had possession of all the depositions relating to that business, there is no account extant of the murders and losses in Munster. [Cox, Hist. of Ireland, ii. p. 113.] But this is not quite the fact; as may be seen by consulting the manuscript depositions now preserved in the Library of Trinity College, Dublin. [F. 2. 13, F. 2. 19, &c.]
1661. HUGH DUNSTERVILLE, M. A. a Prebendary of Cork, appears. [V. B.]

Cathedral of Cork. He published "A Sermon preached in the Parish Church of Gortroc, on the Occasion of the late Earthquakes," 1756.

This bequest has been made the basis of the present Widows' Fund of the diocese. DIOCESE OF ROSS.

The diocese of Ross is situate in the south-western part of the county of Cork. It is of no great extent. The city appears to have borne the name of "Ross Ailithri, or Ross Elidhir" (Ross of Pilgrims), in ancient times; to distinguish it from several other places in Ireland named Ross.

We have very little information concerning the foundation of the see. It is generally believed that it took its rise in the sixth century, from St. Fachnan, who was Abbat of Dar-inis, or St. Molana, a monastery situate on the river Blackwater, a few miles above its mouth, at Youghal. Fachnan erected a monastery and school at Ross; this obtained episcopal rank, and he became its first Bishop.

From the year 1583 the See of Ross has been holden in connexion with that of Cork; and by the Church Temporalities Act of 1834, it was permanently annexed to those of Cork and Cloyne. "The Cathedral of Ross is counted a parish church as well as a cathedral." [Bishop Downes' Journal.]

ARMS OF THE SEE.

No Seal of a Bishop of Ross is engraved in Harris's edition of Ware's Bishops; but an ancient seal, being the privy seal of Bishop Stephen Browne, who was promoted to this See in 1402, is in possession of the Very Rev. Richard Butler, Dean of Clonmacnois, and Vicar of Trim. [See below, p. 352.]

SUCCESSION OF BISHOPS.

A. D. 550–570(?). ST. FACHNAN, Abbat of the monastery of St. Molana, a man of probity and wisdom. He flourished about the middle of the sixth century, but the time of his death is unknown.

ST. FINCHAD is said to have succeeded Fachnan; but Lani-gan is of opinion that this is a mistake of Sir James Ware. [See Eccl. Hist. ii. 197.] All which is known of him is, that he was educated at the school of St. Finbarr, first Bishop of Cork.

Of the remaining Bishops, until the English conquest, Ware had discovered only the name of one, DONGALM'FOLAGHT; whom Flaherty, in his "Ogygia," styles the twenty-seventh prelate from St. Fachnan.

1172. BENEDICT was Bishop in 1172, and sat for about eighteen years after.

1190. His successor was MAURICE, who died in 1196.

1197. DANLEL, a secular Priest, having presented himself at Rome as Bishop elect of Ross, was consecrated there by the Pope's authority. How long he continued in the see is uncertain, but it appears that he was displaced by the Pope on account of some gross irregularities and falsehoods in the manner of his obtaining the preferment; and the see remained vacant three years. Ware gives an account of the dispute, extracted from the Decretal Epistles of Pope Innocent III.

12—. FLORENCE, one of the monks of Ross, who had been canonically elected by the Chapter, disputed the validity of the election of his predecessor, and, upon furnishing satisfactory proofs of that objection, he was appointed Bishop by authority of the Pope; the date of his appointment is not ascertained. He was consecrated by the Archbishop of Cashel. He was sitting as Bishop in 1210, and died in 1222.

1222. ROBERT (by some writers called Richard) succeeded. He was Bishop in 1225, and how long afterwards is not known.

12—. FLORENCE (or FININ) O'CLOGHENA was Bishop of Ross, and resigned his see in 1252.

1253. MAURICE, Præcentor of Cloyne, was elected Bishop, and was confirmed by the King's letters patent. In 1269 he resigned his see, and entered a Franciscan monastery.

1269. WALTER O'MICTHIAN, a Franciscan friar, became Bishop; and, having governed the diocese five years, died on December 25, 1274. [MS. T. C. D. F. 1. 18.]

1275. PETER O'HULLECAN, or O'HALLACHAN, a Cistercian monk, succeeded. His temporalities were restored to him by the King, on April 13. He died in 1290.

1290. LAURENCE, a Canon of Ross, succeeded Peter. He died in 1309, and was buried in his cathedral.

1310. MATTHEW O'FINN, an Abbat, was elected Bishop by the Dean and Chapter, under a license from King Edward II. on March 8, 13⁰⁰/₁₀. He exerted himself successfully to recover some possessions belonging to his see. He died on October 16, 1330.

1331. LAURENCE O'HOLDECAN (O'HULLECAN, or O'HOULACHAN) was elected Bishop, and was confirmed by the Dean and Chapter of Cashel (the metropolitan see being then vacant), on April 30. He died in 1335.

1336. DENIS was consecrated Bishop; and as it is recorded that Denis, Bishop of Ross, died in 1377, Ware supposes that this prelate held his see forty-one years. In 1358 the King, who had an esteem for him, on account of his diligence in reforming the people of his diocese, restored to him certain lands, of which he had been improperly deprived by the Royal Escheator. [Rot. Claus. 32 Edw. III.]

1378. BERNARD O'CONNOR, a Franciscan friar, succeeded by Papal provision; and, having taken the oath of allegiance, obtained the royal assent on Feb. 3, 1378.

1402. STEPHEN BROWN, a Professor of the Carmelite order, succeeded by the Pope's provision, and, having made the requisite declarations, and renounced all clauses in the Pope's Bull which were prejudicial to the rights of the Crown, was restored to his temporalities on May 6. Mem.—His privy seal is in the possession of the Very Rev. Richard Butler, Dean of Clonmacnois and Vicar of Trim. It is circular, containing, within a double tressure of interlaced trefoils, a shield, bearing quarterly three bars, and a mitre; and is inscribed SECRETVM STEPANI EPISCOPI ROSSENSIS.

14—. MATTHEW, Bishop of Ross, died about the year 1417 or 1418. [Rot. Pat. 7 Hen. V.]

1418. WALTER FORMAY, D. D. a Franciscan friar, succeeded Matthew, by Papal provision, on November 14. He died in 1424.

1426. CORNELIUS MAC ELCHADA, a Franciscan friar, was promoted by Papal provision, in the room of W. Formay, on August 18. The Pope had previously appointed John Bloxvorch; but, as he neglected to perfect the necessary documents, his appointment was cancelled. The Four Masters call this prelate Conor Mac Faolehuda, and state that he died in 1448.

14—. The next Bishop to be found on record is THADY, who held the see on January 29, 1488, and died soon afterwards.

1489. ODO (or HUGH) succeeded in 1489, and died in 1494.

1494. EDMUND COURCEY, D. D. a Franciscan friar, Bishop of Clogher, was translated to Ross, on Sept. 26. He died at a very advanced age, on March 14, 151 $\frac{8}{9}$; and was buried in the monastery of Timoleague, Co. Cork, of which he was formerly a member, and to which he had been a great benefactor.

1519. JOHN O'MURILY, a Cistercian monk, and afterwards Abbat of Maure (or De Fonte vivo), in Myross parish, county of Cork, became Bishop of Ross; and died within a year, namely, on Jan. 9, 15 $\frac{1}{2}$ $\frac{9}{10}$. He was buried, like his predecessor, in the monastery of Timoleague.

1520. BONAVENTURE, a native of Spain, succeeded, probably by the Pope's provision. He was Bishop in 1523; but when he vacated we know not.

15—. DERMOD M'DONNELL (MAC DOMNUIL) was Bishop in 1544. He died in 1552.

1551. JOHN appears, under the title of Bishop of Ross, in 1551; therefore Ware was of opinion that Dermot had resigned his see before his death.

15—. THOMAS O'HERLIHY (or O'HERLATHA) is found attending the Council of Trent, in 1563, as Bishop of Ross. O'Sullivan, in his Compendium of the History of Ireland, remarks, that he was detained prisoner in England for some time, but at length was discharged, as being half-witted. He resigned his see in 1570, but lived until 1579. He was buried in the Observantine Franciscan Abbey of Kilcrea, in the county of Cork.

1582. WILLIAM LYON was consecrated Bishop of Ross, to which he had been appointed by patent dated May 12, 1582; and in the next year obtained the sees of Cork and Cloyne in commendam. Before his appointment, viz. in 1576, the Lord Deputy, Sir Henry Sidney, had recommended Cornelius O'Brien for this bishopric. [Sidney's Letters, vol. i. p. 158.]

From that period the see of Ross has never been holden separately from Cork: and the series of its Bishops will be found under that diocese.

DEAN AND CHAPTER.

There is no record remaining of the first erection of this Chapter. We find a Dean, Archdeacon, Chantor, and Treasurer mentioned in the year 1198 or 1199. [See the Decretal Epistles of Pope Innocent III. Epist. 364. Op. tom. i. p. 213. Edit. Baluzii.] It would seem that the deanery was formerly elective.

CHAPTER SEAL.

In Harris's Ware we have an engraving of a seal of the Dean and Chapter, which is dated 1661, and probably was then copied from an impression of a more ancient one. It bears the figure of St. Fachnan, the founder of the see, standing between a church and a round tower. Around it is the inscription:

SIGILLVM COMMVNE DECANI ET CAPITVLI ROSSENSIS. 1661.

In 1693 he was Vicar-General of the diocese of Cloyne. In 1695 the county of Cork made its acknowledgments to him for his great serviees against the

THE bishopric of Limerick must be reckoned one of the most recent of the Irish sees, if we receive Sir James Ware's account, that it was founded by Donald O'Brien, King of Limerick, about the time of the first arrival of the English in Ireland.

But this is scarcely compatible with the ecclesiastical state of other parts of Ireland in those times; and tradition reports, with appearance of truth, that a cathedral church existed here some centuries earlier than that period; and that its founder and first Bishop was

ST. MUNCHIN, the son of Sedna; a person of whom we now know little more than his name, and that one of the churches in Limerick, not the present Cathedral, but one of the prebendal churches, is called after him. Towards the close of the twelfth century the ancient but small see of Inis Cathay, or Iniscatterry, was united to that of Limerick. A list of the few Bishops of Iniscathay, whose names we can now trace, will be given below.

ARMS OF THE SEE.

A Seal of the Consistorial Court of the Diocese, dated 1723, is engraved in Ware's History of the Bishops.

An ancient Seal, which (very unusually) is engraved on stone, has been recently obtained by the Royal Irish Academy. Probably it is that of Bishop Mothel, who succeeded in the year 1426. See a description of it under that Prelate, p. 380.

The original Seal of Bishop Smyth (1695) is also now in the museum of the Royal Irish Academy.

TAXATION OF THE SEE, AND OF THE CHAPTER.

SUCCESSION OF BISHOPS.

SÆC. V. ST. MUNCHIN, or MANCHENUS, the son of Sedna, is said to have been placed here by St. Patrick, as Bishop over some Christian converts; and tradition affirms, that the parish church which now bears his name was his Cathedral. Very little information can be gathered respecting him, or his successors in the see during several centuries. In the tenth century, the Ostmen, who held possession of Limerick, were converted to Christianity; and it is probable that they supplied the see with prelates, until the establishment of the English power in Ireland.

- A. D. 1106? GILLE, or GILLEBERT, or GISLEBERT (quære, an Ostman or an Irishman?), who is believed to have been Abbat of Bangor, in the County Down, appears as Bishop of Limerick. He was appointed the [first?] Pope's Legate in Ireland; in which capacity, about the year 1118, he convened a Synod at Rath-Breasail, which was attended by twenty-five Bishops, who then fixed the territorial boundaries of the several dioceses of Ireland. He has left behind him some "Epistles to Anselm, Archbishop of Canterbury," and a book entitled "De Statu Ecclesiæ," or "De Usu Ecclesiastico." These have been published by Archbishop Ussher, in his Sylloge Epistolarum Vet. Hib. It is also stated by Pitts, that Gillebert wrote several other pieces, the names of which are given in Ware's History of the Writers of Ireland. But Harris appears to have in some degree confounded this prelate with another of the same name, and a contemporary, who was a scholar and friend of Archbishop Anselm. He was a monk of Bee in Normandy, and afterwards became Abbat of Westminster. [See Anselmi Opera, fol. 1675.]

In 1139 our Bishop, being infirm and aged, resigned the office of Legate, and probably his see also, since we find a successor in possession in the following year.

1140. PATRICK, of whom we know few early particulars, was elected Bishop by the Ostmen, who then were masters of the country. He was consecrated in England, by the Archbishop of Canterbury ; to whom, as the Primate of all Britain, he made a profession of canonical obedience, which is given in Ware's Bishops. The year of his death is not known.

114-. HAROLD, or EROLD, an Ostman, succeeded Patrick. He died in 1151.

1152. TORGESIUS, another Ostman, succeeded. He was present, as Bishop of Limerick, at the Synod of Kells, in 1152. It is not known at what time he vacated the see.

1179. BRICIUS (who probably was an Ostman) was the next Bishop. He assisted at the Council of Lateran in 1179 and 1180 ; and we find him Bishop in 1182. In his time, if not before, St. Mary's appears to have become the cathedral church. During his incumbency, the see received some very important donations and endowments from Donald O'Brien, King of Limerick.

11—. DONAT O'BRIEN, a person related to the royal family of Limerick, succeeded. He was a prelate in high repute for learning, wisdom, and liberality ; and was an especial favourite of King John of England. He proved himself a great benefactor to his church : he established the Dean and chapter, enlarged the cathedral, introduced Secular Canons into it, and is said to have assigned distinct prebends for their maintenance. See [in Cod. Clarend. 36] an ordinance of Bishop Donat, establishing the churches and lands which shall belong to the Dean and to the several members of the Chapter. About this period the ancient see of Iniscathay was united to that of Limerick. Donat died in the year 1207.

1207. GEOFFRY, Rector of Dungarvan, was strongly recommended by King John to the Dean and Chapter to be elected their Bishop. The King sent his recommendation through Miler Fitzhenry, Lord Justice of Ireland ; and by the wording of his letter it would seem that he had assumed the right of nomination to himself: "concessimus Magistro Galfrido, &c. Episcopatum Limericensem," &c. &c. It is most probable, that the royal wish was immediately complied with. We find Geoffry in possession in 1217.

12— EDMUND, his successor, sat but a very short time. We do not know the exact year of his appointment; but he died in 1222.

122 $\frac{2}{3}$. HUBERT DE BURGH, a man of noble extraction, was Prior of Athassel, in the County of Tipperary, when he was advanced to this see. He had his temporalities restored by the King on March 11. He was a man of talent; and was a great benefactor to the Canons and Vicars Choral of his cathedral. He died on September 14, 1250; and was buried in the Dominican Monastery at Limerick.

1251. ROBERT [NEIL], of Emly, was elected by the Dean and Chapter, upon the King's license; and was confirmed by the royal letters patent, dated January 2. He died on September 8, 1272.

127 $\frac{2}{3}$. GERALD LE MARESCAL (a branch of the family of Le Mareschal, Lords of Leinster), Archdeacon of Limerick, succeeded, receiving the King's assent to his election, together with a mandate to the Archbishop of Cashel to consecrate him, on January 11. The "Annals of the Four Masters" call this prelate "Miles, grandson of the Earl of Leinster." He recovered some possessions of his see, which had been usurped, or had been alienated without consent of the Dean and Chapter. Some diocesan Constitutions made by him are still extant. Having governed the diocese twenty-nine years, he died on February 10, 130 $\frac{1}{2}$.

1302. ROBERT OF DONDOMHNAL (DUNDOVENALD, or DUNDONALD), a Canon of Limerick, was elected Bishop; and was confirmed by the King on July 30. Having ruled the see nine years, he died on May 3, 1311, and was buried in his cathedral.

1311. EUSTACE DE L'EAU, or WATERS, Dean of Limerick, succeeded; and was consecrated before the close of the year. He greatly repaired and beautified his cathedral. After a session of twenty-four years, he died on May 3, 1336, and was interred in his own church.
1337. MAURICE ROCHFORD was consecrated at Limerick, on April 6 of this year. He was for some time deputy to the Lord Justice of Ireland, and is said to have been "a man of good life and honest conversation." King Edward III. obliged him to pay a fine of twenty-one marks, because one of his predecessors (Gerald) had purchased some lands for his see, without having previously obtained a license of mortmain. [Lib. Mun.] The Bishop died on June 9 (or April 14), 1353.
1353. STEPHEN LAWLESS, Chancellor of Limerick, succeeded. He received his temporalities from the King on May 13, 1354. He died on December 28, 1359.
1360. STEPHEN DE VALLE (or WALE), Dean of Limerick, succeeded by provision of the Pope, and was consecrated in this year. Probably he was a man of talent; for we find him filling the high office of Treasurer of Ireland. After governing this see nine years, he was translated to Meath in 1369.
1369. PETER CREAGH (or CURRAGH), a native of the County of Dublin, was elected Bishop. He took the oath of fealty to King Edward, before William of Wykeham, Bishop of Winchester, on February 10. From a statement given in Harris's Warc, our Bishop appears to have had no special liking for the Franciscan friars in his diocese; on whose account he seems to have involved himself in a quarrel both with the Pope and with the Archbishop of Cashel, who, being himself a Franciscan, took the part of his Order. After sitting thirty years, he resigned his see in 1400.

1400. CORNELIUS O'DEA, Archdeacon of Killaloe, succeeded Creagh(a). He is reported to have been a liberal benefactor to the cathedral; upon which, besides other gifts, he bestowed a mitre and a crozier of admirable workmanship. [Mae Gregor's History of Limerick, vol. ii. p. 409.] He, like his predecessor, resigned his bishopric in 1426. He died on July 27, 1434, and was interred in his cathedral; where an inscription to his memory (printed in Ware's History) may still be seen.

1426. JOHN MOTHELL, an Augustinian Canon of Kells, in the County of Kilkenny, succeeded by Papal provision, and had his temporalities restored on January 23 following. After governing the see nearly thirty-two years, he resigned it in 1458, and died ten years afterwards. The Royal Irish Academy has recently (1849) become possessed of an ancient seal, on stone, which probably was that of this Bishop. It bears a rude figure of a Bishop, under the usual canopy, beneath which is another figure of a Prelate with his pastoral staff. The workmanship of these is coarse. It is inscribed:

SIGILLŪ · DNI · JOHIS · EPI · LYMRENCIS.

1459. WILLIAM CREAGH, a native of Limerick, was provided to this see by the Pope. He was consecrated in 1459, and sat about thirteen years; during which time he recovered some possessions which had been alienated from the bishopric.

(a) According to "The Book of the Mulconrys," Donat, son of Connor, who resigned the sovereignty of Thomond in the year 1414, was Bishop of Limerick. [Vallancey's Collectanea, vol. i. p. 624.]

1472. THOMAS ARTHUR, another native of Limerick, succeeded. He died in that city on July 19, 1486.
1486. RICHARD was appointed his successor by Pope Innocent VIII. but he died in Rome before his appointment was formally completed.
1486. JOHN DUNOW, or DUMOW, LL. D. a Canon of Exeter, was nominated to this see by the Pope, on November 13, 1486. He had been sent as ambassador to the Court of Rome by King Henry VII. and died in that city in the third year after his consecration, without having once visited his see.
1489. JOHN FOLAN, a Canon of Ferns, who at this time was proxy for the Archbishop of Armagh at the Court of Rome, was promoted by the Pope on May 13. He held the rectory of Clonmore, in the diocese of Armagh. He died on January 30, in the year 1521.
- 152 $\frac{1}{2}$. JOHN QUIN (or COYN), a Dominican friar (a brother of the direct ancestor of the present Earl of Dunraven), succeeded to this bishopric, through the influence of the Pope; although King Henry VIII. endeavoured to substitute another person for the office. Having become blind and disabled by infirmities, he resigned the see on April 9, 1551.
1551. WILLIAM CASEY, Rector of Kilcormnan, in the diocese of Limerick, was advanced to this see by King Edward VI. by a mandate dated October 23. Among the Patent Rolls of the fourth year of Edward VI. is a letter of the Lord Protector and Council, on behalf of the Earl of Desmond, for conferring the bishopric, when it shall be void, to "such a man as shall for his literature and life be meet for the same." In pursuance of the terms of this letter, the bishopric is granted to Wm. Casey, anno 5°.

He was consecrated at Dublin, on October 25 [Rot.

Pat.] by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Kildare, Leighlin, and Ferns. Queen Mary deprived him, by a Commission issued in 1556; but he was afterwards restored by Queen Elizabeth, in 1571. When he became aged and infirm, Denis Campbell, the Dean of Limerick, was appointed his coadjutor in 1588; and in February 1591 he died, having been a Bishop forty years.

1556. HUGH LACY, or LEES, a Canon of Limerick, was appointed by the Pope, at the recommendation of Queen Mary, after she had deprived Bishop Casey. The Queen's letter for his patent is dated December 6 [Rot. Cane.]; and, after taking an oath of fealty to her (which is given in Ware) he was restored to his temporalities on April 13, 1557; but he resigned the post, under Queen Elizabeth, in 1571.

159 $\frac{2}{3}$. JOHN THORNBURGH, D.D. a native of Salisbury, educated at Magdalene College, Oxford, became Chaplain to the Earl of Pembroke, who promoted him to be Rector of Brandesburton in the diocese of York, and of Chilmark in the diocese of Salisbury; afterwards he was made Dean of York and Chaplain to Queen Elizabeth, who advanced him to this bishopric in 159 $\frac{2}{3}$, after it had remained vacant two years: his patent is dated Jan. 29. He is spoken of as being a man of great and varied abilities. He was translated to Bristol on July 4, 1603; and subsequently to Worcester; where he died in July, 1641, in the ninety-fourth year of his age. A curious account of his monument is given in Harris's edition of Ware. Having been an Oxford man, his character is drawn by Antony à Wood, in his "Athenæ Oxonienses;" who describes him, as a lover of natural and experimental philosophy, an encourager of mining and minerals, and having great skill in chemistry; and states that he performed many useful services to the Crown(a).

1603. BERNARD ADAMS, M.A. was born in 1566, in the County of Middlesex; and became a Scholar, and afterwards a Fellow, of Trinity College, Oxford. He was consecrated to this see in April, 1604, his patent being dated on September 5 previous. He showed a liberal spirit, in repairing and improving his cathedral, and presented it with an organ. From the year 1606 to 1617 he held the bishopric of Kilfenora in commendam; and stated to the Regal Visitors in 1615, that the value of that see was only £32 0s. 4d., and the value of that of Limerick £126 17s. 4d. He likewise held a prebend in the church of Killaloe, and the vicarage of Ballin-garry in the diocese of Limerick (to which he was presented by the Crown), in order to cke out these scanty revenues. He died on March 22, 162 $\frac{5}{6}$, and is buried in the cathedral of Limerick, under a monument which is described in Ware. An original portrait of the Bishop is preserved in Trinity College, Oxford; and a likeness of him is engraved in the Oxford Almanac of the year 1732. [Ant. à Wood.]

(a) The Bishop has left the following works in print:

1. A Discourse proving the Utilitie and Necessitie of the Union between England and Scotland. 4to. Lond. 1604.

2. The Joyful and Blessed Re-uniting the two Kingdoms, England and Scotland, &c. 4to. Oxford, 1605.

3. Λιθοθεωρικὸς [A treatise on Alchemy]. 4to. Oxon. 1621.

4. The Last Will and Testament of Jesus Christ, touching the Blessed Sacrament of His Body and Blood. 4to. Lond. 1630.

5. A Discourse, showing the great Happiness that hath and may accrue to the kingdoms of England and Scotland, by uniting them into one Great Britain. In two parts, 12mo. Lond. 1641.

He also wrote, Pax vobis, A Treatise on the Unity and Peace of the Church. This has never been printed.

1626. FRANCIS GOUGH, M. A. an Englishman (fifth son of the Rev. Hugh Gough, Rector of All Cannings, in the diocese of Salisbury), was born in 1604, and educated at St. Edmund's Hall and at New College, in Oxford. In 1618 he became Chancellor of Limerick; and was advanced to this see by patent dated July 10. He was consecrated at Cashel, by Malcolm Hamilton, Archbishop of Cashel [Elrington], on September 17. In 1627 the King granted lands to this see of the value of £100 a year, on account of its poverty. The Bishop died at Limerick, on August 29, 1634, and was buried in his cathedral. After his death, his widow presented a petition to King Charles, stating that her husband had expended all his means in improving and endeavouring to recover the see lands; that he had died in debt, and had left a family of eight children unprovided for.
1634. GEORGE WEBB, D. D. a native of Wiltshire, educated at University and Corpus Christi Colleges, Oxford, was Vicar of Steeple-Aston in Oxfordshire, and afterwards Rector of St. Peter's and St. Paul's in Bath. In both those benefices he taught a grammar-school. Being an eloquent and polished preacher, he was appointed Chaplain in ordinary to King Charles I. He was promoted to this see at the express desire of the King himself: his patent bears date December 9; and he was consecrated in St. Patrick's, at Dublin, on December 18. He was a man of very strict habits of life and conversation. He published several works, which are enumerated in Ware's Irish writers. He died in the Castle of Limerick, a prisoner to the rebels, on the day before it was surrendered, viz. June (quære, January?) 23, 1641 [MS. T. C. D. F. 3. 11], and was buried in St. Munchin's churchyard.
1642. ROBERT SIBTHORP, D. D. a native of the county of Essex, Bishop of Kilfenora, was translated to Limerick on April 7. But the revenues of his see had been so wasted by the Rebellion and the subsequent wars, that he derived no income from it. The high character which he bore may be estimated from the fact, that Primate Ussher presented to the King a petition from the Bishops of Ireland, recommending him for the see of Ossory, at that time vacant. [Ware.] He died at Dublin, in April 1649, and was buried at St. Werburgh's church. After his death, the see remained vacant until the Restoration.

1660 $\frac{1}{4}$. EDWARD SYNGE, B. D. (brother of Dr. George Synge, Bishop of Cloyne), Dean of Elphin, was promoted by patent dated January 19; which patent empowered him to hold the sees of Ardfert and Aghadoe in commendam, and likewise the rectory of Tradery in the diocese of Killaloe. He was consecrated at St. Patrick's, Dublin, on the 27th of the same month, in company with eleven other prelates, by the Primate, assisted by the Bishops of Raphoe, Ossory, and Kildare. On December 21, 1663, he was translated to Cork; under which diocese see a further account of him.

LIMERICK, ARDFERT, AND AGHADOE.

1663 $\frac{3}{4}$. WILLIAM FULLER, D. C. L. a native of London, was educated at Westminster School, and at Magdalene Hall and Edmund Hall, and afterwards was a Chaplain of Christ Church, Oxford; D. C. L. in 1660. He became Domestic Chaplain to Lord Littleton, Lord Keeper of the Great Seal of England; and, being a warm Loyalist, suffered greatly in the Civil wars. Coming over to Ireland at the Restoration, he was appointed Dean of St. Patrick's, Chancellor of Dromore, and Treasurer of Christ Church, Dublin; and was advanced to the united sees of Limerick, Ardfert, and Aghadoe, by patent dated March 16, with license to hold his deanery in commendam, for two years only; and was consecrated in Christ Church, Dublin, on March 20, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Clogher, Ferns, and Cork. In September, 1667, he was translated to the bishopric of Lincoln; and was buried in that city in 1675, aged 67. See particulars of his life, in Mason's History of St. Patrick's Cathedral, p. 192, &c.

1667. FRANCIS MARSH, D. D. a native of Gloucestershire, educated at Emmanuel and Caius Colleges in Cambridge (of which last house he was a Fellow), came to Ireland on the invitation of Bishop Jeremy Taylor; and having been ordained by that prelate, became successively Dean of Connor, Dean of Armagh, and Archdeacon of Dromore. His patent for these bishoprics bears date October 28; and he was consecrated at Clonmel, on December 22, by the Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Waterford, Ferns, and Killaloe. From hence he was translated to Kilmore and Ardagh, on January 10, 167 $\frac{2}{3}$; and afterwards, in 1681, to Dublin.

167 $\frac{2}{3}$. JOHN VESEY, D. D. (son of Thomas Vesey, Archdeacon of Armagh, ancestor of the Viscounts de Vesci, and of Lord Vesey Fitzgerald) was a native of Coleraine, in the county of Derry, and was educated at Westminster School, and at Dublin University. He became Chaplain to the House of Commons; and was made Rector of Eighternorrogh, in the diocese of Cloyne, and Archdeacon of Armagh; afterwards Rector of Carrigaline, or Beaver, in the diocese of Cork, and of ——— in the diocese of Ross; then Dean of Cork, and Treasurer of Cloyne. He was promoted to this bishopric by patent dated January 11; and was consecrated on the following day, in Christ Church, Dublin, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Archbishop of Armagh, and the Bishops of Killaloe and Ossory. In 1678 he was translated to the archbishopric of Tuam.

167 $\frac{8}{9}$. SIMON DIGBY, D. D. (son of Dr. Essex Digby, Bishop of Dromore) was educated at the University of Dublin, and afterwards was incorporated at Oxford; M.A. 1676; D.D. 1677. He was Chaplain to the Earl of Ossory, Lord Deputy; and became a Prebendary, and afterwards Dean, of Kildare: he also held a prebend in the church of Lismore. His patent for this bishopric bears date March 19; and he was consecrated on the 23rd of that month, at Christ Church, Dublin, at the same time with Bishop Wetenhall of Cork, by the Archbishop of Armagh, assisted by the Archbishop of Dublin, and the Bishops of Meath, Kildare, Killala, Raphoe, and Ossory. In the year 169 $\frac{1}{2}$ he was translated to Elphin.

169 $\frac{1}{2}$. NATHANAEL WILSON, D. D. an Englishman, was educated at Magdalene Hall, Oxford; M.A. 1667; D.D. 1685. He became Chaplain to the Duke of Ormonde, and by him was made Dean of Raphoe. He was raised to this bishopric by patent dated [December or] January 20; and was consecrated at Christ Church, Dublin, on the 18th of the following May, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Meath, Kildare, and Clogher. On July 27 he was enthroned at his cathedral. He died of apoplexy, supposed to have been caused by a fall from his horse, at Dublin, on 3rd November, 1695; and was there buried, in Christ Church Cathedral.

1695. THOMAS SMYTH, D. D. (grandfather of the first Viscount Gort) was born at Dundrum, in the County of Down, in the year 1654; he was a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin; and became successively Præcentor of Clogher, Dean of Emly, and Chancellor of Clogher. Lord Capel (Lord Justice of Ireland) recommended him strongly for this see, as a person of high character for diligence, good example, and great moderation towards dissenters from the Church. [MSS. Lambeth. 942.] The recommendation was attended to; and by the influence of Dr. Tenison, Archbishop of Canterbury, he succeeded Bishop Wilson, by patent dated December 2; and was consecrated in the Chapel of Trinity College, Dublin, on the 8th of that month, by William, Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Clogher, Killala, Dromore, and Cloyne. He was enthroned at Limerick, on April 30, 1696. In 1714 this prelate was appointed Vice-Chancellor of the University of Dublin. He was a liberal benefactor to the poor, both during his lifetime and by his will. After being the founder of a numerous and distinguished family, he died on May 4, 1725, and was buried in a vault prepared for his family, in St. Munchin's Church, at Limerick.

1725. WILLIAM BURSCOUGH, D. D. an Englishman, educated at Wadham College, Oxford (M. A. 1698; B. D. and D. D. 1715), became Chaplain to Lord Carteret, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, by whose influence he was made Dean of Lismore. He obtained this bishopric by patent dated June 15; and was consecrated at Dunboyne, in the county of Meath, on the 20th of that month, by the Archbishop of Armagh, assisted by the Bishops of Meath and Kildare. He is described as a man of great learning and piety, a good preacher, and much beloved by his citizens. After filling the sees thirty years, he died in 1755; and was buried on April 3, at his private seat, New Ross, in the county of Tipperary, in the eightieth year of his age(a). [Mant.]

1. A Sermon at the Funeral of the Duchess of Rutland. 8vo. London, 1711.
2. A Consecration Sermon, on 1 Corinth. iv. 1. 8vo. Ibid. 1715.

1755. JAMES LESLIE, D. D. a native of Kerry, became Curate of Swords; in 1724 Vicar of Donabate, near Dublin; Perpetual Curate of St. Nicholas Within, at Dublin; in 1741 a Prebendary of Durham; and in 1747 Rector of Lamesley (?) in the diocese of Durham. [Todd's MS.] He was made Bishop of Limerick, &c. by patent dated November 4; and was consecrated in St. Andrew's Church, Dublin, on November 16, by the Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Cork and Killaloe. He died at Limerick, on November 24, 1770; and was buried at St. Munchin's.

1770. JOHN AVERILL, D. D. Dean of Limerick, was promoted to the bishopric, by patent dated December 31; and was consecrated in Christ Church, Dublin, on January 6 following, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Raphoe and Clonfert. He was a man eminently and justly beloved for his piety and charity: but his career of usefulness was soon interrupted, for he was cut off by death on September 14 of that same year, while engaged on his diocesan visitation at Ennismore, in the County of Kerry. He was interred in the cathedral of Limerick, where the following inscription records his name and virtues:

3. A Sermon on King Charles II.'s Restoration. 4to. London 1715.

4. A Sermon on the 5th of November. 4to. Ibid. 1715.

5. A Sermon preached before the House of Commons, on 29th May. 4to. Ibid. 1716.

6. The Abuse of Liberty, a Sermon on 1 Peter, ii. 16. 8vo. Ibid. 1722.

7. A Sermon on the King's Accession, preached at Christ Church, Dublin. 4to. Dublin, 1725.

8. The question about eating of Blood stated and examined [in answer to Dr. Delany]. (Anonymous) 8vo. London, 1732.

9. The Apostolical Decree at Jerusalem proved to be still in force [in reply to the same writer]. 8vo. 1734.

10. A Fast Sermon, preached at Christ Church, Dublin. 4to. Dublin, 1739.

Hic jacet Reetè Rev. JOANNES AVERILL, D. D. Episcopus Limericensis, Obiit 14^o Sept^{ris}. 1771, ætatis 58.

Cujus si in Deum pietatem, in Regem fidem,
In Ecclesiam amorem, si in æquales liberalitatem,
In omnes spectes benevolentiam,
Vix ætas ulla tulit parem, nulla superiorem.

Though Averill's dust thus humbly here is plac'd,
With no proud monument or titles grac'd,
Yet shall he live when Kneller's tints shall fade,
And sculptur'd trophies moulder in the shade.
The saint-like character his life imprest,
Is stamped indelibly on every breast;
And where the Muse's voice appears too weak,
The poor, the fatherless, the widows speak.

1772. WILLIAM GORE, D. D. Bishop of Elphin, was translated to Limerick, by patent dated March 5; and was enthroned on March 19. He bore the character of a man of great learning and benevolence. He died at Bray, in the County of Wicklow, on February 25, 1784; and was buried in the vault of his family, in St. Mary's Church, at Dublin.

1784. WILLIAM CECIL PERY, M. A. (afterwards created Lord Glentworth), was a native of Limerick; where he was ordained Deacon on June 9, 1740. For some time he was Vicar of St. John's parish, at Limerick. He became Chaplain to the House of Commons; and was made successively Dean of Killaloe, Dean of Derry, and Bishop of Killala. He was translated to Limerick, by patent dated May 13; and was enthroned on May 22. He died at Limerick on July 4, 1794, and was buried in his cathedral.

1794. THOMAS BARNARD, D. D. became successively Vicar of Maghera, in the diocese of Derry (in 1751); Archdeacon of Derry in 1760; Dean of the same in 1769; and Bishop of Killaloe in 1780. He was translated to Limerick, by patent dated September 12. See further particulars of his character, among the Bishops of Killaloe. He died at a very advanced age, at Wimbledon in Surrey, on June 7, 1806.

1806. CHARLES MONGAN WARBURTON, D.D. Dean of Clonmacnois, succeeded by patent dated July 7. He appears to have been the only person collated by Bishop Cleaver during the short period of his holding the sees of Cork and Ross, viz. to the rectory of Tullagh and Creagh, in the diocese of Ross, on June 12, 1789. [D. Reg. Cork.] He was consecrated at St. Patrick's, Dublin, on July 13, by the Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Meath and Cloyne; and was enthroned in the following month of August. In 1820 he was translated to Cloyne, where he died in the year 1826.

1820. THOMAS ELRINGTON, D.D. was a Fellow, and afterwards (by patent dated December 15, 1811) Provost of Trinity College, Dublin. In 1806 he was presented to the rectory of Ardtrea, in the diocese of Armagh, by the College; and resigned it in December 1811, on being appointed Provost. He was advanced to this bishopric by patent bearing date September 25; and was consecrated in the College Chapel, on October 8, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Kildare and Ossory. In 1822 he was translated to the sees of Ferns and Leighlin.

Bishop Elrington was a man of great strength of mind, integrity, diligence, and learning; a strenuous defender of the Church against all her foes, as is evidenced by his numerous and valuable publications, a list of which is given under the diocese of Ferns.

1822. JOHN JEBB, D.D. a native of Drogheda, Archdeacon of Emly, succeeded, by patent dated December 23; and was consecrated in the Cathedral of Cashel, on January 12, 1823, by Richard, Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Waterford and Killaloe.

Bishop Jebb from early youth was a person of retiring and studious habits, and latterly devoted himself almost entirely to professional studies. The powers of his mind and the extent of his reading are seen in the valuable works which he has left behind him, a list of which has been already given in this volume, under the diocese of Emly. He was a benefactor to his cathedral; to which, besides other helps, he presented a new altar-cloth, and a new pulpit. For some years previous to his death the Bishop was prevented from discharging his official duties, by a severe paralytic stroke. He died in England, at Easthill near Wandsworth in Surrey, on December 9, 1833, aged 59; and was buried in the churchyard of the parish of Clapham, near London. A mural monument has been placed to his memory in the church, bearing a medallion of him, and an inscription written by his brother, Judge Jebb. A life of him, with a selection from his letters, was published by his chaplain, Rev. Charles Forster, in 2 vols. 8vo. London, 1836.

1830. HON. EDMUND KNOX, D.D. (youngest son of Thomas, first Viscount Northland), Bishop of Killaloe, was translated to Limerick on the death of Bishop Jebb. For some years previous to his death he resided chiefly on the Continent. He died at Birmingham, on his journey from London to Limerick, on May 3, 1849, aged 76.

1849. WILLIAM HIGGIN, M.A. Dean of Limerick, was appointed by patent dated ——. He was consecrated at St. Patrick's, Dublin, on July 15, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Cork and Down; and was enthroned on Sunday, July 22.

He has published A Charge at the Primary Visitation of the Dioceses of Limerick, Ardfert, and Aghadoc, in September 1849. 8vo. Dublin, 1849.

DEAN AND CHAPTER.

Sir James Ware is of opinion, that the Chapter of Limerick was founded by Bishop Donat O'Brien, who held this see in the beginning of the thirteenth century, and died in the year 1207; also, that this prelate first assigned distinct prebends to the Dean and other members of the Chapter.

We find mention made both of Canons and Vicars Choral in the time of Bishop Hubert de Burgh, who sat from 1222 to 1250; but cannot now trace the ancient holders of the different stalls. Robert of Dundovenald, who was made Bishop of this see in 1302, is styled “a Canon of Limerick;” and Hugh Lacy, “a Canon,” was raised to the bishopric in 1557. [Ware.]

The ancient Library of this cathedral appears to have possessed some valuable manuscripts. A list of forty-five MSS. formerly deposited here is given in Cod. Clarendon. 46 (now in the British Museum): among them were some treatises of Wycliffe. Probably this collection was dispersed and destroyed in the troubles which followed the Reformation; or perhaps in the Rebellion of 1641.

SEAL.

A seal of the Dean and Chapter, without date, is engraved in Ware's History of the Bishops.

SUCCESSION OF DEANS.

1204 to 1207. P. . . . was Dean. [Reg. Dec. Lim.]
 1212 (circa). J. . . . appears as Dean. [Cod. Clar. 46.]
 W. . . . [Ibid.]

“Reymundus, tempore HENRICI LE WALYN, Dec. Lim.” [MS. T. C. D. F. I. 18.]

1249 to 1278. THOMAS of Woodford appears. [Ware; also MUNSTER.]

- Reg. Lim. and Cod. Clar. 46.] In 1260 we find him Dean of Limerick also. He vacated in 1278.
- 1295-8. JOHN DE COTES [MS. T. C. D. F. I. 18]; but Cod. Clar. 46 calls him Thomas de Coccis (Cooke, or Cox?).
1302. LUKE appears as Dean. [Reg. Dec. Lim.]
1311. EUSTACE DE L'EAU, or WATERS, Dean, was raised to the bishopric in this year. [Ware.]
1360. STEPHEN DE VALLE, Dean, was elected Bishop. [Ware.]
1366. ADAM OWEN appears. [Cod. Clar. 46.] Probably he is the same as Adam Atteleyn, or Owyn, who is described as Dean in 1373-8, and was fined for having a daughter, nine years old, whom he had placed out "with the enemies of our lord the King." [MS. T. C. D. F. I. 18.]
- 1398 to 1409. RICHARD WARREN, WARYN, or WERYNG. [Ib. and Rot. Canc.]
1405. EUSTATHUS DE AQUA is named in MS. T. C. D. F. I. 18; but perhaps there is a mistake of a figure, and 1405 ought to be read 1305. (See above.)
1434. ROBERT POER was Dean of Limerick and Archdeacon of Lismore. He was sent as proxy for William, Bishop of Meath, to the Council of Bâsle; and on his return, the Council ordered the Bishop to pay all his expenses. [Registr. Swayne.] In 1446 he was raised to the bishopric of Waterford.
1451. THOMAS O'SEMICAN appears. [Cod. Clar. 46.]
1488. MILO DE BURGO. [Ibid.]
1493. PHILIP WATERS. [Ibid.]
1516. ANDREW CREAGH, LL. B. He resigned in 1543; and received the King's pardon for some unknown offence on the day when his successor was confirmed. [Rot. Pat. 35 Hen. VIII.] In the cathedral a stone is placed to his memory, with the inscription, "Hic jacet Magister ANTONIUS CREAGH, quondam istius Ecclesiæ Decanus:" but the year of his death is not mentioned.

“ DOCTOR DENTON was Dean of Limerick in the reign of King Henry VIII.” [Cod. Clar. 36.] (But quære, if of Lichfield, not Limerick? I do not find the name of Denton connected with any cathedral in Ireland.)

1541. T——. [Cod. Clar. 36.]

1543. ANDREW STRITCHE. The King confirmed his election by the Chapter on September 30. [Rot. Pat.] He died in 1551. [Cod. Clar. 46.]

1552. ROGER SKIDDY, B. A. His patent is dated May 10. [Rot. Pat.] On the same day he was appointed Rector of Kilmone in the diocese of Meath. In 1557 he was raised to the bishopric of Cork.

1556? DAVID ARTHUR was Dean. [Rot. Pat. 17 Eliz.] He resigned the deanery about 1583. [Cod. Clar. 46.]

1588. DENIS CAMPBELL, a native of Scotland, formerly Archdeacon of Limerick, appears. He was likewise Rector of Drumeliffe, in the diocese of Killaloe. In this year we find him, as Dean, appointed Coadjutor to his Diocesan, Bishop Casey. In 1603 he was nominated to the sees of Derry, Raphoe, and Clogher; but died in London, in July of that year, before his consecration could take place.

1603. GEORGE ANDREWS, M. A. Præcentor of St. Patrick's, Dublin, was an Englishman, and had been educated at Oxford. He was ordained Deacon on November 25, 1596. His patent for the deanery is dated August 31. [Lib. Mun.] In 1615 we find him holding a prebend in Killaloe. Bishop Ryder, in the year 1622, describes him as “ a learned and zealous preacher of God's word, and one of singular good life and conversation.” In 1635 he was promoted to the bishopric of Ferns and Leighlin.

1635. MICHAEL WANDESFORD, M. A. succeeded. He was brother of — Wandesford, Master of the Rolls. His patent bears date May 11. [Lib. Mun.] Before the close of that year he exchanged for the deanery of Derry.

1635. HENRY SUTTON, M. A. Dean of Derry, exchanged preferment with Wandersford. His patent is dated November 9. [Ibid.]
1640. ROBERT NAYLOR, or NEYLER, M. A. Dean of Lismore and a Prebendary of Cloyne, was appointed to this deanery by patent dated April 16. [Ibid.] In the Rebellion of 1641 he was plundered of property to the amount of £1797, besides his Church preferments, worth, communibus annis, £500. [MS. T.C.D. F. 2. 13.] He died in 1661. A high testimony is borne to his exemplary character, by the fact, that in 1662 the Convocation subscribed liberally for the support of his destitute widow and children(a). [MS. Lambeth. 684.]
- 166½. RICHARD BOYLE, D.D. His patent is dated February 5. [Lib. Mun.] In 1664 he was made Treasurer of Limerick; and in 1666 was raised to the bishopric of Ferns and Leighlin.
1666. JOHN SMITH, D.D. Chaplain to the Earl of Ossory, Lord Lieutenant, a Prebendary of this church, and Archdeacon of Ardfert, was presented June 12; admitted September 13. [FF.] In 1679 he was advanced to the bishopric of Killala and Achonry.
- 1679½. THOMAS HYNDE, or HINDE, B.D. of Brasenose College, Oxford, Archdeacon of Aghadoe. His patent bears date Feb. 26 [Lib. Mun.]; he was instituted and installed March 16. [FF.] In this same year he became D. D.
- 1690½. EZECHIEL WEBBE, M. A. (Quære, could he have been the Prebendary of Killenellick, in the church of Emly, in 1666?) Patent dated January 9 [Lib. Mun.]; insti-

(a) In 1639 the Earl of Cork's agent writes to his master, that his kinsman, the Dean of Lismore, was about being advanced to the deanery either of Limerick or Elphin; and was to be succeeded by one Mr. Price, a chaplain to the Lord Deputy, Doctor in Civil Law. [MS. in Lismore Castle.] Possibly this was Bartholomew Price, whom the Crown had presented to the "prebend" or rectory of Outrath, in the diocese of Lismore, in 1630.

tuted and installed March 9. In the course of the next year he was made Archdeacon of Aghadoe. He died on September 13, 1704. [FF.]

1. A True and Impartial History of the most material Occurrences in the Kingdom of Ireland during the last two Years. 4to. London, 1692.

2. A Continuation of the Impartial History of the Wars of Ireland. 4to. Ibid. 1693.

1771. HON. MAURICE CROSBIE, D. D. (third son of the first Lord Brandon, and father of the present Baron); patent dated Oct. 3; instituted Nov. 11; installed Dec. 16. He was likewise Rector of Castle-island, in the diocese of Ardfert. [Ch. B.] He died on June 28, 1809.

1809. ARTHUR JOHN PRESTON, M. A. a Canon, and subsequently Dean, of Kildare; patent July 20; instituted and installed August 17.

Dean Preston was a considerable benefactor to the Cathedral, which he rescued from a state of ruin. He also restored the Choral Service, which had fallen into disuse. He died on November 3, 1844; and was buried at the seat of his family, Kilmessin, near Tara, in the county of Meath.

1845. WILLIAM HIGGIN, M.A. a native of Lancashire, educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, came to Ireland in 1820; and was made Chaplain to the Richmond Penitentiary and to the Magdalene Asylum in Dublin. - 161 $\frac{1}{2}$. ROBERT (others call him GEORGE) GOUGH, B. A. (eldest son of Rev. Hugh Gough, Rector of All Cannings in Wiltshire, and brother of Bishop Gough; ordained Deacon May 31, 1607, and Priest September 29, 1608), was appointed by the Crown, on Nov. 23 [Lib. Mun.] (or [according to Reg. Vis.] May 15); installed July 26. In 162 $\frac{7}{8}$ he was made Archdeacon of Ardfert. He was still Præcentor in the year 1634. [Reg. Vis.]

TREASURERS.

1204-7. WILHELMUS DE KERDIFF was Treasurer. [Reg. Dec. Lim.] Some years later he had a dispute with Bartholomew de Camerâ, "Parson of the chapel of Limerick," about the tithe of fish and the mills of Limerick. The King, being applied to, wrote to the Archbishop of Cashel, and to the Bishops of Ferns, and Lismore, to settle the question. [Prynne's Records, iii. p. 63.]

Before 1223. JOHN ST. JOHN, an Englishman, a person of great ability, was Treasurer of this church; he also held the office of Treasurer of Ireland. In 1223 he was raised to the bishopric of Ferns, to which see he became a great benefactor. [Ware.]

1400 to 1426. SIMON LANGE appears.

1426. JOHN SCURLOCK was appointed by the King, the see being vacant. It appears that the Pope issued a bull of deprivation against him; but King Henry VI. supported him, and he retained possession of his dignity till 1446. [MS. Cotton. Cleopatra, E. iii. 40.]

1446? JOHN KENNOCK, or KEVENOK, was collated by the Bishop upon Scurlock's death; but the King presented John Pygge, M.A. The Bishop refused to admit him: upon which the King threatened to seize the temporalities of the see, and thus forced him to comply; so that he admitted Pygge on October 31, 1446. Upon this Kennock petitioned the Parliament, which ordered him to be restored. [MS. Marsh, v. 3. 24.] In 1449 he was the Chapter's Proctor to Parliament [Cod. Clar. 36.]; and was fined, for non-attendance or some other offence. [Rot. Canc. p. 265.]

1519. GEOFFRY ARTHUR was Treasurer. He died on May 16 of this year, and was buried in the Cathedral. A monument to his memory was erected in the Chapter-room, bearing the following quaint inscription; the contractions in the last line of which have hitherto baffled the skill of my learned friends, as well as of the historians Ferrar and M'Gregor, and other antiquaries. I trust, however, that by the valuable aid of the Rev. Arthur W. Edwards, all has at last been made plain, with the exception of one or, at most, two words.

Hic jacet in tumuli fundo sublatu a mundo Galfridu Arthure thesaurarius quondam istius ecclesie xvi luce Maya requievit in pace perpetua
 Anno crucifixi Domini m^o v^c xix^o
 Tu transiens cave qui hic dices Pater & Ave

1639. AMBROSE JONES, D. D. (son of Bishop Lewis Jones), a Prebendary of Emly; installed December 20. [FF.] In 1641 he resigned, and was made Præcentor. In 1667 he was raised to the bishopric of Kildare.

1758. DANIEL WIDENHAM; collated July 12.

1791. THOMAS QUIN, M. A. Præcentor; collated July 4. In 1808 he was made a Prebendary of Cork. He held this dignity fifty years, and died in 1841. Upon his death, the Ecclesiastical Commissioners recommended the suspension of the appointment to this dignity; but the Lord Lieutenant and Privy Council decided that it ought to be preserved. [See order of Council dated Oct. 25, 1841.]

1841. ROBERT KNOX, M. A. Chancellor of Ardfert; collated March 20. He resigned in the same year, and became Prebendary of St. Munchin's.

1623. Bishop Adams made a grant of the next presentation to THOMAS CARY, of Dublin, dated March 1. This was confirmed by the Dean and Chapter on March 19; and it would appear that Richard Cary was presented. But in 1626 Cary resigned it to the King. [Rolls Office.]
1624. RICHARD CARY was installed on October 15. [FF.] In 1625 he was made a Prebendary of Kilkenny. He resigned on June 9, 1626. [Lib. Mun.]

1667. SAMUEL LADYMAN, M. A. (afterwards D. D.) a Prebendary of Cashel; collated September 23. [Vis. Book.] He died in February, 1683-4; and was buried in the chancel of the church of Clonmel, of which parish he had been Vicar: a black marble tablet was placed over his tomb, bearing an inscription both in prose and verse, composed by himself. A copy of his will, dated Dec. 12, 1683, is preserved in the Diocesan Registry of Cashel. By it he left £50, with accruing interest, towards procuring a ring of bells for the church of Clonmel; 50s. to be yearly laid out in bread for the poor of Clonmel on June 1; and a like sum on January 1 (as had been his own custom to do for some years past). Also, £5 yearly "for the teaching of ten poor children to read English, and to learn the Church Catechism, with Mr. Perkins' six principles," the children to be selected by the Vicar and churchwardens.

Also, £5 to be distributed in sixpenny loaves, on 11. ATHNETT.

This prebend has been long attached to the bishopric, as Mensal; and in virtue of its possession the Bishop of Limerick has a seat and voice in the Chapter.

ANCIENT PREBENDS.

In this cathedral, as in several others, we find in ancient records notices of churches accounted prebendal, some of them merely made so for the duration of the incumbency of the possessor at that time; others became united to other parishes, and were afterwards known under different denominations.

12. IMELAGH DREYNYN.

1346. King Edward III. in this year presented Hugh de Waldene to this church as a prebend; but on finding Adam Hart already in possession, he revoked his grant. [Rot. Cane. 20 Edward III.]

Probably Emlygrenan is the parish meant, which now forms part of the Treasurership.

14. CROMYTH.

1408. THOMAS HUNTER is described in the Patent Rolls of Chancery [10 Hen. IV.] as "Prebendary of Cromyth." Probably the rectory of Crooin is meant.

14. ST. MARY'S OF DERRYGEALLYWAN.

1536. JOHN, Abbat of Owney in the County of Limerick, is presented to "the rectory or prebend of the parochial church of the Blessed Mary of Derrygeallywan, in the cathedral church of the Blessed Mary of Limerick." [Rot. Pat. 28 Hen. VIII.] Derrygalvin is now a rectory, in the Bishop's gift.

15. ST. MARY'S OF ANDEES, OR ANDESCHE.

1389. On the petition of Richard Archer, Rector of this church, stating that it was destroyed, King Richard II. directed the Bishop and Dean and Chapter to make it prebendal, "prebendare dictam Ecclesiam," during the life of the said Archer. He appears to have been in possession in 1409. [See Rot. Pat. 13 Ric. II. and 11 Hen. IV.]

1591. Neantonay (Nantonan) is the Præcentor's prebend.
 — Kilfamighnisse (Kilfeeny) is the Præcentor's prebend.
 — Clownicheadee (Clonagh) is the Chancellor's prebend.
 — Kileluona (sic) is the Dean's prebend.
 — Woth (quære Wothncy?), the Archdeacon's prebend.
 [MS. T. C. D. E. 3. 14.]

VICARS CHORAL.

The College of Vicars Choral of Limerick existed in the time of Bishop Hubert de Burgh, who filled the see from the year 1222 to 1250. They form a body corporate; and formerly possessed a "College," or common dwelling, near to the cathedral.

It appears that in the year 1615 they were seven in number; at the present time they are only six. In 1622 they were returned as being five, and an Organist.

In a Roll in the Diocesan Registry, now used for subscriptions of the Vicars at their admission to office, is the following entry, in the hand-writing of Dean G. Story. "Mem.: That it was the custom hitherto for the Vicars Choralls of St. Mary's, Limerick, when they were admitted to their places, to take the usual oaths before the Bishop. But upon advising with the present Lord Bishop, and reading the Statutes of 2nd Elizabeth in Ireland, and the 3rd of William and Mary in England, it appears that the Dean, and not the Bishop, is to administer the oaths; which by the said Statutes every one has power to do, who has a right to give a place.

"GEO. W. STORY.

"June 4th, 1715."

[The College of Kilmallock anciently had seven Vicars (under a chief who was styled "Provisor"), not to be confounded with the Vicars Choral of Limerick; but all its members having died during the troubles which followed the Rebellion of 1641, the College lapsed to the Crown; and at the Restoration, King Charles granted its estates to the Dean and Chapter of Limerick, for the support of their cathedral and choir.]

BISHOPS OF INISCATHAY, OR INIS-SCATTERY.

It is believed that this see was founded by St. Patrick, about the middle of the fifth century, on an island lying near the mouth of the river Shannon. There was an abbey here, in or before the sixth century. The prelates of this church are sometimes called Bishops, and sometimes Abbats, by the ancient writers. Very little information concerning them is now to be had, and the following names are all which can be traced.

ST. SENAN, "Bishop and Abbat of Iniscathay," was born in Clare, of a family allied to one of the Kings of Ireland; and, after receiving instruction for some time in this country, went over to Wales and became a disciple of St. David. Upon his return to Ireland, he is said to have founded several monasteries in the province of Munster, before he finally fixed himself at Inis-Cathay. He died on the same day with his Master, St. David, viz. on March 1, A. D. 544. His life has been published by Colgan.

ODRAN, a disciple of St. Senan, succeeded him as Bishop. He was living about the year 580.

AIDAN, "Bishop of Iniseathay," is mentioned in the Martyrology of Marian Gorman; but the period of his incumbency is not named.

Another AIDAN, called "Abbat of Iniseathay," died in 861.

FLATHBERT, "Abbat," was raised to the dignity of King of Munster, after the death of Cormac M'Cullenan in a war which was mainly fomented by this Abbat. He died in 940.

COLLA, "Abbat and Doctor, or Master of Iniseathay," died in 994.

O'BURGUS, "Comorban of Iniseathay," died in 1181.

AIDH (HUGH) O'BEACHAIN, "Bishop of Iniseathay," died in 1188; and soon after his death this see was united to that of Limerick, parts of its possessions being also annexed to the sees of Killaloe and Ardfert. [Ware.]

THIS is sometimes called the archbishopric of Iar Munhan (West Munster); and the bishopric of Kerry; and the see of Hyferte or Iferte.

There is great obscurity about the origin and the first founder of this see. Ert, who is supposed to have established it, flourished in the sixth century, and is reputed to have been preceptor to St. Brendan, Abbat of Clonfert. Some derive the name Ardfert from this ecclesiastic, and make him the first Bishop of the see. But in fact there is no certain knowledge on this subject; and, indeed, very little information is now obtainable respecting any of the prelates of Ardfert before the arrival of the English in Ireland.

ARMS OF THE SEE.

There is no engraving of the armorial bearings, either of the see or Chapter, in Harris's edition of Ware; nor have I been able to meet with any ancient seal of this diocese.

SUCCESSION OF BISHOPS.

Sæc. VI. The first Bishop of this see is thought by Sir James Ware to have been ERT (quære ERC?), a prelate under whom St. Brendan, founder of the see of Clonfert, studied in the sixth century. But neither the time of his appointment, nor that of his decease, seems to be known. See above, p. 433.

CERPAIN (or CORPAIN), is mentioned in the Annals of Inisfallen as Bishop of "Iferte," in the year 500. Probably there is an error in the date; for Ert (who is commonly reputed the founder of this see), if he was tutor to Brendan, must have flourished at a period later than this.

1075. DERMOD MAC MAEL-BRENAN, styled "Comorban of Brendan," and supposed to be Bishop of this see, died at Ardfert.

1099. MAGRATH O'ERODAIN, or O'RONAN, called "Bishop of Ardfert Brenain," died.

1152. MAC-RONAN, called "Bishop of Kerry," was present at the Synod of Kells, in 1152.

1161. MAEL-BRENDAN O'RONAN (probably the same person), died on September 22, 1161; and was buried at Ardfert.

1166. GILLA MAC-AIBLEN O'HANMADA died.

1193. DONALD O'CONARCHY, called "Bishop of Iar Munster," died.

1207. DAVID O'DUIBBITRIB, who bore the same title, died.

1215. JOHN, an English Benedictine monk, was consecrated Bishop of this see about the year 1215; but for some unknown cause he was deprived of his see by the Pope's Legate, in 1221 (or perhaps not effectually until 1224); and passed the remainder of his life in the Abbey of St. Alban's, to which he bequeathed many valuable jewels. He died there, in October, 1245.

1225. GILBERT, Dean of Ardfert, succeeded John, though not immediately. Being recommended by the Pope, he was confirmed by the King on May 7, 1225; and was consecrated in that year. The King wrote to the Archbishop of Dublin, to admit him, on Sept. 15. [Prynne's Records, vol. ii. p. 393.] He resigned his see in 1237.

1237. BRENDAN, Provost of Ardfert, was elected by the Dean and Chapter; and was confirmed by the King, on November 17, 1237. On account of his election having taken place without the royal license, the King compelled him to go through the ceremony of a new election and confirmation. He is said to have acted as a Suffragan to the Bishop of Lichfield. [Pegge's Memoirs of Bp. Roger de Wescham, cited by Cole.] He sat only five years, resigning his see in 1242.

1242. [Ware has not been able to recover the name of the prelate whom the Dean and Chapter, under royal license, elected in the room of Brendan, in 1242.]

1252. CHRISTIAN, a Dominican friar, was confirmed by King Henry III. on February 25. He sat but a short time; for another license was granted to choose a successor upon his death, dated August 20, 1256.

1256. PHILIP was elected; and died in 1263.

1264. JOHN, Archdeacon of Ardfert, succeeded; he was restored to his temporalities on February 27. He died in May, 1285; and was buried in Ardfert cathedral.

1285. NICHOLAS succeeded. His temporalities were restored to him on August 28, 1286. [Todd.] He sat but a short time, dying about the middle of March, 1287.

1288. NICHOLAS, a Cistercian monk, Abbat of O'Dorney, in the county of Kerry, was consecrated to this see. He held it during the long period of forty-eight years, dying about the beginning of 1336.

1336. ALAN O'HATHERN (or CATHERN) was consecrated Bishop of Ardfert. He died on December 2, 1347. [On a supposition of his death in 1341, the Pope appointed Edmund de Caermarthen, a Dominican friar; the appointment, however, of course, fell to the ground.]

1348. JOHN DE VALLE was elected Bishop by a portion of the Chapter, and was confirmed by the Pope on October 22; and his temporalities were restored by the King on March 10. Having filled this see upwards of twenty-three years, he died in 1372.

1372. CORNELIUS O'TIGERNACH, a Franeisean friar, succeeded by Papal provision. He sat seven years, and died in 1379.

1379. WILLIAM BULL, LL. B. Dean of Cork, was promoted by Papal provision; and received his temporalities from the King on February 14, 1379. In 1382 he was excused from attendance on Parliament, on account of the unquietness of the times and the poverty of his see. [Rot. Pat.] The time of his decease is unknown

1408. NICHOLAS, Bishop of Ardfert, appears as witness to an indenture made between the Earl of Desmond and one of his retainers, in this year; which indenture was enrolled in the thirty-second year of Henry VIII. [Pat. Roll of that year.] Ware states, that he was sitting in 1420 and 1431; but had found no further information concerning him. Smith, in his History of Kerry, calls him "Nicholas Fitzmaurice, second son of Sir Patrick, the seventh Lord of Kerry." [p. 202.]

14— MAURICE succeeded, by Papal provision. He died in 1462.

1462. JOHN STACK succeeded. After some disputes, and a favourable reception given by the Pope to some rival candidates, owing to his neglect of expediting the necessary documents, Stack was obliged to renew his titles. We do not know the time of his consecration. He attended a Synod at Fethard, in July 1480, as Bishop of Ardfert; and died in 1488. He was buried at Ardfert, "with his effigies in alto relievo, in his pontifical habit, but without any inscription." [Smith's Hist. of Kerry.]

1488. PHILIP, who during Stack's lifetime had been declared Bishop by the Pope, but was afterwards put aside for that time, succeeded to the see, by provision dated October 27. He sat almost seven years, and died in 1495.

1495. JOHN FITZGERALD, or GERALDINE, a Canon of Ardfert, succeeded by Papal provision on Nov. 20, 1495.

[The names of the successors during the next half century have not been ascertained.]

1551. JAMES FITZMAURICE, or FITZ RICHARD PIERS, appears as Bishop of Ardfert in 1551, and again in 1576. The dates of his consecration and avoidance are not certainly known. The Four Masters, who style him "a vessel full of wisdom," place his death in 1583.

1588. NICHOLAS KENAN was appointed Bishop of Ardfert and Aghadoc by Queen Elizabeth; his patent bears date October 22, 1588; and he was consecrated in that year. He died about 1598, or 1599, at Limerick, to which place he had retired to avoid the calamities of war.

1600. JOHN CROSBY, Prebendary of Disert in the Cathedral of Limerick, succeeded by patent dated December 15. The Regal Visitors, in 1615, describe him as being "Homo admodum civilis coram nobis." The Queen's letter speaks of him as "a Graduate in schools, of English race, and yet skilled in the Irish tongue; well disposed in religion." He died in September 1621, and was buried in his cathedral.

1621. JOHN STEERE, M. A. an Englishman, who had been Treasurer of Ardfert, and Archdeacon of Emly, and was afterwards Bishop of Kilfenora, was translated to Ardfert by letters patent dated December 8, and was restored to his temporalities on the 20th of July following. [Lib. Mun.] He did not long enjoy his see, dying in May, 1628.

1628. WILLIAM STEERE (brother of the preceding prelate),

Dean of Ardfert, was appointed Bishop, on the recommendation of the Archbishop of Cashel, by King's letter dated July 21, and patent dated September 19; his Majesty having made choice of him "for his learning, religion, and zealous life." On September 20 the King granted him a license to hold other preferment in commendam, to the value of £100 a year. [Rolls Office.] He was consecrated in October, by his Metropolitan, the Archbishop of Cashel. In 1636 he was appointed Archdeacon of Cork, and of Cloyne, in commendam. [FF.] He died at Ardfert, on January 21, 1637; and was buried in his cathedral. The Rev. Thomas Forth was intrusted with the guardianship of the Spiritualities during the long vacancy of the see.

1641. THOMAS FULWAR, D. D. (Chancellor of Cork?) was appointed Bishop by patent dated September 20, with license to hold the rectory of Ringroan (diocese of Cork) in commendam; and was consecrated in that year. In 1660 $\frac{9}{1}$ he was translated to Cashel, where he died in 1667.

Ware does not notice him among the writers of Ireland; but he published "A Sermon preached before the Society of Gray's Inn, London." 4to. London, 1642.

1660 $\frac{9}{1}$. EDWARD SYNGE, D. D. Dean of Elphin, was consecrated Bishop of Limerick, at St. Patrick's, Dublin, on January 27, in company with eleven other prelates, by the Archbishop of Armagh. He had been appointed by patent dated January 19; and held the see of Ardfert and Aghadoe in commendam. In 1663 he was translated to Cork, Cloyne, and Ross.

1663 $\frac{3}{4}$. WILLIAM FULLER, LL. D. an Englishman, Dean of St. Patrick's, and Treasurer of Christ Church, Dublin, was appointed Bishop of Limerick, Ardfert, and Aghadoe, by patent dated March 16, 1663 $\frac{3}{4}$.

From this time the see of Ardfert has continued annexed to that of Limerick; and the succeeding Bishops will be found under this latter see.

DEAN AND CHAPTER.

The Dean and Chapter of Ardfert are mentioned under the year 1236. [Prynne's Records, ii. 480.] Five Prebendaries are noticed in the Taxation of Pope Nicholas, A. D. 1291; but their prebendal churches are not specified. No prebends remain at present. The cathedral church of Ardfert was destroyed in the rebellion of 1641.

1225. GILBERT, Dean of Ardfert, was advanced to the bishopric in this year. [Ware.]

It would appear, that he was one of the Commissioners appointed to inquire into the losses sustained by the Protestants in some parts of Munster during the rebellion of 1641; and that he died at Bandon in the county of Cork, in the autumn of 1642. [Cox's Hist. of Ireland, vol. ii. p. 113.]

The bishopric of Killaloe was founded in the seventh century. It takes its name, Kil da Lua, from an Abbat named Lua, or Elua, or Mo-lua, grandson of a king of North Munster, who resided and founded an abbey there, and was esteemed a man of great sanctity. About the end of the twelfth century, the ancient see of Roscrea, founded by St. Cronan about the year 620, was united with and annexed to that of Killaloe.

ARMS OF THE SEE.

The seal of Bishop Carr, of the year 1716, is engraved in Harris's Ware.

The seal of Bishop Ponsonby, 1828, is preserved in the Museum of the Royal Irish Academy; where likewise is a Consistorial seal of the diocese, dated 1697.

SUCCESSION OF BISHOPS.

639 (circa). The first Bishop was St. Flannan, a disciple or pupil of the school of St. Lua; he was son of Theodoric or Turlogh, King of Thomond, who was a munificent benefactor to this church, and was interred there with great honor by his son.

Flannan is supposed to have been consecrated at Rome, about the year 639; but at what precise period, or how long he governed his see, remains in great obscurity. The successors of Flannan for some centuries are not now known. The earliest among them, whose name Ware could discover, is 1019. CARMACAN O'MUILCASHEL, who died in 1019.

1055. O'GERNIDIDER, Bishop, died.

1083. TEIGE O'TEIGE, or THADY O'THADY, called "Comorban of Kil da Lua," died.

1161. THADY O'LONERGAN, "a learned and charitable man," died.
1161. DONAT O'BRIEN, sixth son of Dermot O'Brien, King of Munster, called "Bishop of Tuadhmumhain" (Thomond, or South Munster), was consecrated in this year. He died in 1165.
1179. CONSTANTINE O'BRIEN, another scion of the royal race, attended the Council of Lateran, as Bishop of Killaloe, in this year. He died in 1194. [Four Masters.]
1194. DERMOT (or DONALD) O'CONING succeeded. In 1195 he was deprived by the Pope's legate, for some unknown cause; and, dying of grief, was buried at Cork.
1195. CHARLES O'HENEY succeeded. About this time the sec of Roscrea and a portion of the possessions of that of Inis-Cathay were annexed to Killaloe(a).
1215. CORNELIUS O'HENEY (probably the same person with Charles O'Henehy, last named), assisted at the Lateran Council in 1215, and died the next year, on his way home. For some months after his decease the see was committed to the custody of the Bishop of Ferns.
- 121 $\frac{5}{7}$. ROBERT TRAVERS, a native of Drogheda, was elected Bishop, and was confirmed by the King on January 14, 121 $\frac{5}{7}$. In 1221 he was deprived of his see, by authority of the Pope, for some cause not mentioned; on which he retired to England, where he lived for some years in privacy.
1221. The immediate successor of Travers is not known.
1231. DONALD or DANIEL O'KENNEDY, Archdeacon of Killaloe, was elected Bishop; after sitting about twenty-one years, he died in "the hot summer" of 1252; and was buried in the Dominican Convent at Limerick.
1253. ISAAC O'CORMACAIN, Dean of Killaloe, succeeded. His temporalities were restored on April 5, 1253. Harris mentions that he granted eight days' Indulgences to all such persons as should contribute to the building of St. Paul's church in London. In 1267 he voluntarily resigned his see, and became a monk of Holyross Abbey, in the county of Tipperary.

1267. MATTHEW O'HOGAIN, Dean of Killaloe, succeeded by election, pursuant to the King's license, dated November 10. He died in August, 1281, and was buried in the Dominican Convent of Limerick.

1281. MAURICE O'HOGAIN, Præcentor of Killaloe, succeeded. His temporalities were restored on February 4, 1282. He died in 1298, or 1299, and was buried in his cathedral.

1299. DAVID MAC MAHON, Dean of Killaloe, was elected Bishop by the Chapter, and was confirmed by the King; he received his temporalities on April 22; and was consecrated in the following month by the Archbishop of Cashel. He sat seventeen years, and died in 1316.

1316. THOMAS O'CORMACAIN, Archdeacon of Killaloe, was lawfully elected Bishop by the Chapter in 1316. (Yet the Patent Roll of 11 Edward II. (1317), mentions Matthew as Bishop at that time. [Rot. Cane. Hib.] At this period there were two prelates named Matthew sitting; one at Ross, and the other at Waterford; so that perhaps there is some error in this statement). He died in 1321, and was buried in his cathedral.

1322. BENEDICT O'COSCRY, Dean of Killaloe, succeeded. He was consecrated in 1322, and died in 1325 or 1326.

1326. DAVID MAC BRIEN (or DE PAVELAIS), a native of Emly, succeeded by the Pope's provision; and had his temporalities restored on November 26, 1326. He died on December 1 (or 12), 1342.

1343. THOMAS O'HOGAIN, a Canon of Killaloe, was consecrated Bishop of this see. He died on Oct. 30, 1354, and was buried in the Franciscan Convent at Nenagh.

1355. THOMAS O'CORMACAIN, Archdeacon of Killaloe, succeeded by provision of the Pope; he was consecrated this year; and had his temporalities restored in September, 1356. The King employed him much in affairs of State: so that we may conclude him to have been a person of considerable talents. He died in 1387 (the Four Masters say, in 1382), and was buried in his cathedral, "in the common burial-place of the bishops." [Ware.]

1389. MATTHEW M'GRATH, Dean of Killaloe, succeeded, by Papal provision, in 1389, but was not restored to his temporalities till September, 1391; he alleging that he was unable to pay the fees, by reason of his see having been wasted by the Irish rebels. It appears too, that the King, in 1389, had some doubts about his loyalty; as in a grant of one of his manors to the Bishop of Leighlin, to hold till the customary fees should be discharged, he describes Magrath as "Mere Hibernicus, et de natione inimicâ, ac inter inimicos nostros commorans, et eis adhærens, et mandatis nostris minime intendendo." [Rot. Pat. 13 Ric. II. apud Chart. et Priv. p. 84.] He was sitting in 1400; but the time of his decease is not known. He was buried in the Dominican Convent of Limerick.

1409. ROBERT DE MULFIELD, an Englishman, a Cistercian monk of Meaux, in Yorkshire, succeeded by the Pope's provision, on September 9, 1409; and was restored to his temporalities on the 17th of the following August. [Rot. 12 Hen. IV.] How long he enjoyed the see, is not known.

14— . DONAT MAGRATH, his successor, was sitting in 1428, and died in 1429.

1429. EUGENE O'PHELAN, or O'FELAN, succeeded: but it appears that he died in the next year, 1430.

1430. THADY MAC-CRAGH succeeded, by Papal provision, in 1430; and was restored to his temporalities by the King, on September 1, 1431.

143—. IRAD O'LONERGAN succeeded: of whom nothing appears to be known.

1441. JAMES O'GHONELAN was Bishop in 1441.

14— . TERENCE alias DONOCH O'BRIEN I. (second son of Turlogh Buy O'Brien, King of Thomond), succeeded by provision of the Pope. He was barbarously murdered by one of his own relatives, at Ennis in the county of Clare, in 1460.

1460. THADY succeeded O'Brien; and was consecrated in 1460. We do not hear of him after July 18, 1461.

JOHN MAC-CRAGH.

} Are by some writers said

1483. MATTHEW (or MAHON) O'GRIABHTHA, or O'GRIFFA, called in the pompous language of the Annalists "a fountain of hospitality and wisdom," died in this year; and was buried in the monastery of the Canons of Corcobaisene, in the county of Clare. [Four Masters.]

1483. TERENCE (or TIRLAGH, or THEODORIC) O'BRIEN II. who is said by Antony à Wood to have been educated at Oxford, succeeded. He is celebrated for liberality and hospitality; and is reported to have been distinguished by rather too great a fondness for martial affairs. He died in 1525.

1525. RICHARD HOGAN, a Franciscan friar, succeeded. In 1538, or 1539, he was translated to the see of Clonmacnois; but died in a few days after his translation.

1538–9. JAMES O'CORRIN succeeded. Wishing for retirement, he resigned his see in 1546.

1546. CORNELIUS O'DEA, Chaplain to the Earl of Thomond, was appointed Bishop by a congé d'elire directed to the Dean and Chapter, by King Henry VIII. on July 3, 1546; and, pursuant to a mandate dated July 12, was consecrated soon afterwards by Edward, Archbishop of Cashel. He sat about nine years.

1555. TERENCE O'BRIEN III. was appointed Bishop during Queen Mary's reign; and held the see to the year 1569, the year of his death, according to the Four Masters.

1570. MAURICE, or MURTOGH, or MORGAN O'BRIEN-ARRA, (second son of M'Brien, King of Thomond), who had been educated at Magdalene College, Cambridge, was appointed Bishop, or rather Custos of the see, by letters patent of Queen Elizabeth, dated May 15. It is remarkable, that he was not consecrated for six years after his appointment; but probably we find the cause of this in the terms of his appointment: "M'Brien-arra to have the profits of it; and when he comes to further age, to have the bishopric itself, if he be fit for it. [Cod. Clarend. 36.] In 1572 he complains to Lord Burleigh, that Malachias O'Molana, who claims his see under a bull from the Pope, is a disguised Papist. He calls himself "Bishop elect of Killaloe." [Appendix to Strype's Life of Parker, No. 87; see also No. 88.] His elder brother having died before him, the Bishop became chieftain of his house. [Todd's MSS.] He held the see for a long period; resigned it in 1612; and died on April 30, in the following year.

1613. JOHN RIDER, M. A. was a native of Carrington, in Cheshire; and was educated at Jesus College, Oxford. For some years he held preferment in England, being minister of Bermondsey, near London, and afterwards Rector of Winwick, in Lancashire; and coming over to Ireland he became Dean of St. Patrick's, Dublin, Arch-deacon of Meath, and a Prebendary of Killaloe. He was consecrated on January 12, 1612 $\frac{2}{3}$; his patent having been dated August 15, 1612. In 1616 the Bishop obtained a Royal letter, for the restoration of such lands as had been wrongfully taken from his see; and also for the general improvement of the bishopric. [Rot. Pat. 14 Jac. I.] He also made a representation to the Royal Commissioners in 1622, of several rectories aliened from the see by his predecessor, M. O'Brien; and, it appears, was successful in causing their restoration. The literary works which the Bishop published are enumerated below(a). He compiled a valuable document entitled "The State of the Diocese of Killaloe, presented to his Majesty's Commissioners, at Dublin, 1st July, 1622." A copy of this return is preserved in the Diocesan Registry of Cashel. It is very copious, minute, and interesting; and well deserves to be printed. The Bishop shows himself to be extremely anxious that the clergy should study and use the Irish language, for the better instruction of the natives. He died at Killaloe, on November 12, 1632 (leaving two sons, John and Thomas), and was buried in his cathedral.

1633. LEWIS JONES (a native of Merionethshire, in Wales, educated at Oxford), Dean of Cashel, and a Prebendary of Emly, succeeded, by patent dated February 12, 163 $\frac{2}{3}$; and was consecrated at Cashel, on the 12th of April following, by the Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Waterford and Limerick. He held his prebend in commendam, till the year 163 $\frac{7}{8}$. He was accused to Parliament of being a favourer of the Scotch Covenanters, and was censured by the High Commission Court. He was father of two Bishops: Henry, Bishop of Clogher, and afterwards of Meath; and Ambrose, Bishop of Kildare. He died in Dublin, on November 2, 1646, in the eighty-sixth year of his age(a), and was buried in St. Werburgh's Church. [Ware.]

1646. EDWARD PARRY, D. D. a native of Newry in the county of Down, a Fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, was a person of considerable talents. In 1627 he was Prebendary of Tipperkevin, in the cathedral of St. Patrick's, Dublin; in 1634 he was made Treasurer of Christ Church; in 1636, Prebendary of Stagonyl, in St. Patrick's; in 1640, Dean of Lismore; and in 1643, Archdeacon of Glendaloch. He was promoted to this see, by King's letter dated December 29, 1646; and patent dated 20th March following; and was consecrated at Christ Church, Dublin, on March 28, 1647, by Lancelot, Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Kildare and Cloyne; having been recommended by the Marquess of Ormonde as one singularly well affected for His Majesty's service, and beyond all exception for his life and learning. [Rot. Pat. 19-24 Car. I.] He appears to have distinguished himself, by a firm address to the Parliamentary Commissioners of England, for leave to reject the "Directory," and retain the use of the Common Prayer (then forbidden). On account of his good character and the smallness of the revenues of

(a) Harris's Edition of Ware says "in the 104th year of his age;" but surely this must be erroneous, for if the Bishop's age be correctly given, he must have been upwards of ninety years old at his consecration. Unfortunately the parish register of St. Werburgh's does not extend so far back; and no monument of him is found there. But this error is, I think, satisfactorily corrected by Archbishop Ussher; who, in a letter to Bishop Laud, dated May, 1629, recommends Dean Jones very strongly for the vacant archbishopric of Cashel, and describes him as being then sixty-nine years old: if so, he was born in 1560, and at his death in 1646 would be eighty-six years of age. [See Tanner's MS. 461, in the Bodleian Library, Oxford.]

this see, the King permitted him to hold his former preferments in commendam. [Rot. Pat. 19 Car. I.] This prelate, like his immediate predecessor, was father of two bishops, both of them of Ossory. He died, of the plague, in Dublin, on July 20, 1650, and was buried in St. Audoen's Church^(a). He left behind him a piece entitled "David restored; or an Antidote against the Prosperity of the Wicked, and the Afflictions of the Just," a Sermon on the seventy-third Psalm; this was afterwards published by his son. 8vo. Oxford, 1660. This work contains an engraved portrait of the author.

166 $\frac{0}{1}$. EDWARD WORTH, D. D. Dean of Cork, succeeded Bishop Parry, though after an interval of ten years, his patent being dated January 19, 166 $\frac{0}{1}$. He was consecrated in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, on the 27th of that month, in company with eleven other prelates, by the Archbishop of Armagh, assisted by the Bishops of Raphoe, Ossory, and Kilmore. He proved himself a munificent benefactor to his native city, Cork, by founding and endowing the Blue Coat Hospital; the particulars of which good work may be seen in a book entitled "Pietas Coreagiana." 4to. 17—. He died at Hackney, near London, on August 2, 1669; and was buried in St. Mildred's Church, in Bread-street, London; Dean Hackett, of Cork, preaching his funeral sermon. [Peck's "Desiderata curiosa."] Beside the noble foundation of a hospital in Cork, mentioned by Ware, Bishop Worth bequeathed £100 to be laid out on the purchase of lands or houses to endow a hospital at the Doek of Kinsale. See his published pieces, under the diocese of Cork; and a detailed account of his family, in Mason's History of St. Patrick's Cathedral. 4to. 1820, p. 205.

(a) See an account of the restoration of the monumental inscriptions of the Parry family in St. Audoen's Church, in the Irish Ecclesiastical Journal for June, 1849.

1669. DANIEL WITTER, or WYTTER, D. D. a native of England, came into Ireland as Chaplain to James Duke of Ormonde; and was successively made Dean of Ardfert, Prebendary of St. Michael's, Dublin, Dean of Down, and Chaneellor of Dromore. He was promoted to this see by patent dated August 19, 1669; and was eonsecrated in the following September, at Cashel, by Thomas Price, Archbishop of Cashel. He died in Dublin, on Mareh 16, 167 $\frac{1}{2}$, and was buried in St. Michael's Church, having by will left several benefactions to his church of Killaloe. He likewise gave fifty pounds towards providing communion plate for the Chapel of Trinity College, Dublin.
1675. JOHN ROAN, or ROANE, D. D. is said to have been a native of Wales, and educated at Brasennose College, Oxford; but he does not appear to have taken any degree at that University; nor do we know when he eame over to Ireland, though it is probable that he arrived in company with Dr. Margetson, who afterwards became Primate. He became Dean of Clogher in 1667, and was promoted to this see by patent dated April 19. He was consecrated in the following June, at Cashel, by Thomas Archbishop of Cashel, assisted by the Bishops of Waterford and Limerick. During the Revolution in King James the Second's time he was stripped and plundered of his property. He died at Killaloe on September 5, 1692, and was buried in his eathedral. The simple inscription on his tombstone is given by Ware.
1693. HENRY RYDER, or RIDER, M. A. was born at Paris; but was edueated at Westminster School, and from thence was elected to Trinity College, Cambridge, in 1663, and in that University he took the degrees of B. A. in 1666, and M. A. in 1673. He afterwards became a member of Trinity College, Dublin. In 1683 he became a Prebendary of St. Patrick's, Dublin, and in 1692 Archdea-

BISHOPS OF ROSCREA.

This see, situate in the northern part of the county of Tipperary, was founded by the Bishop, or Abbat, St. Cronan, who flourished about the year 610. Near to the end of the twelfth century this ancient bishopric was united and annexed to that of Killaloe. Sir James Ware has not recovered the names of any others of its prelates. The remains of a beautiful church, perhaps the cathedral, still adorn the town of Roscrea.

DIOCESE OF KILFENORA.

THE accounts of the foundation of the see of Fenabore, Kilfenabhra, or Kilfenora, are very defective. It is sometimes called, by the old Annalists, the see of Corc Modruadh, or Corcum Ruadh (Corcomroe), from the barony in which it is situated. The cathedral church is dedicated to St. Fachnan [quære, whether the same as the founder of the bishopric of Ross?], who, perhaps, was its first Bishop. The diocese is of very small extent, containing only seven benefices, including the deanery. In a Regal Visitation Book of 1615, its value in the King's books is stated to be only £5 Irish. It is situated in the west of the county of Clare, and was within the province of Cashel. From the year 1606 to 1617, this see was holden by a Bishop of Limerick. From 1660 to 1742 it was united to the archbishopric of Tuam; from 1742 to 1752 it was holden by Whitcombe, Bishop of Clonfert; but from this last period it has remained annexed to the see of Killaloe.

ARMS OF THE SEE.

An ancient seal, inscribed SIGILL . EP̄ALE IŌIS EP̄I FENNEB . (quære John O'Hinalan, 1552?), is in the Royal Irish Academy; it exhibits an ecclesiastie seated, holding a book; beneath his feet is the motto "fidel in mīo" (faithful in the least).

SUCCESSION OF BISHOPS.

1254. CHRISTIAN, the earliest prelate of whom Ware was able to discover any notice, died in 1254; and was buried in the church of the Dominicans at Limerick.

1265. MAURICE (by some called HENRY), having been elected by the Chapter, obtained the King's assent, and the restoration of his temporalities, on February 12; and was consecrated by his metropolitan, the Archbishop of Cashel. He died in 1273.

1273. FLORENCE O'TIGERNACH, a Cistercian monk, Abbat of Kilsanne in the county of Limerick, was elected Bishop by the Chapter, in obedience to a congè d'élire, dated July 14; and obtained the Royal assent on September 18. He died in 1281.

1281. CHARLES, Dean of Kilfenora, having been elected Bishop, was confirmed by the King on September 8.

1291. G—— was Bishop. [Reg. Swaync, Armagh; see Harris's Ware, p. 70]

1300. CONGAL O'LOGHLAIN, Bishop of this see, died in 1300, “leaving behind him a good character for honesty and integrity, learning and hospitality.”

1300. SIMON O'CURRIN succeeded. He died in 1303, and was buried in the Dominican Convent of Limerick.

1303. MAURICE O'BRIEN, Dean of Kilfenora, succeeded. He obtained the Royal confirmation on October 8; he sat eighteen years; and, dying in 1321, was interred in the Dominican Convent at Limerick. Harris gives us, at p. 623, a copy of some barbarous Latin verses, said to have been formerly inscribed over the burying place of this and five other prelates.

1323. RICHARD O'LOGHLAIN [there is a doubt as to his name] was consecrated Bishop of this see, at Waterford, on Palm Sunday, 1323. [Ware, from Clynn's Annals.] O'Loghlain died on February 13, 1359.

1394-5. PATRICK was Bishop in 1394, when he took the oath of fealty to King Richard II. on March 19.

1434. PHELM O'LOUGHLIN, “Bishop of Kilfenabhra,” died. [Four Masters.]

1491. DENIS O'CAHAN resigned this bishopric.

1491. MAURICE O'BRIEN, a person of noble birth, a Canon of Killaloe, was appointed Bishop by the Pope, on Dec. 31, 1491 (or August 26, 1492). He died in 1510. [Four Masters.]

1523. Another prelate of his name held the see in 1523.

1552. JOHN O'HINALAN was Bishop on May 16, 1552. How long he sat is not known. The Annals of the Four Masters call him John Oge O'Niallan, “a preacher of the word of God:” they place his death in 1569, and state that he was buried at Kilfenora.

1570. JOHN was Bishop of Kilfenora in 1570.

1585. DANIEL signs as Bishop elect, on August 17, 1585. The see was vacant in 1602, perhaps by the death of this prelate.

1606. BERNARD ADAMS, Bishop of Limerick, held this see (the entire value of which, in 1615, was £32 4s.) in commendam, by virtue of a patent dated July 10, from 1606 to August 18, 1617, when he resigned it.
1617. JOHN STEERE, M. A. Archdeacon of Emly, succeeded by patent dated August 25, and was consecrated the next day. The King also granted him a letter, in aid of recovering the possessions unjustly withholden from his see. [Rot. Pat. 15 Jac. I.] He was translated to Ardferf, on December 8, 1621.
1622. WILLIAM MURRAY, D. D. Chaplain to King James, succeeded. His patent bears date November 27. He was consecrated on Dec. 18, in St. Patrick's, Dublin, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Meath and Clonfert. In June of the next year he obtained a Letter of Privy Seal, empowering him to hold in commendam the rectory of Lanaest, in the diocese of Exeter, or other preferment not exceeding £100 per annum. [Rot. Pat.] In November 1627 Murray was translated to Llandaff, in Wales.
- [1628. RICHARD BETTS. On September 19, 1628, a patent passed granting this see to Richard Betts, D. D. who had been Chaplain to King James, and was preferred to this dignity for his learning, religion, and zealous life. But when he came to Ireland and learned the poverty of the see, he declined the preferment, and returned without consecration.] [Ware, and Pat. Rolls.]
1630. JAMES HEYGATE, HIGATE, or HIGHGATE, M. A. a native of Glasgow, Archdeacon of Clogher, succeeded, by patent dated April 30. He was consecrated in St. Patrick's, Dublin, on May 9, 1630, by the Archbishop of Dublin, assisted by the Bishops of Ferns and Clonfert. Archbishop Laud earnestly represented to the Earl of Strafford the pitiful case of this Bishop, the whole income of whose see did not exceed fourscore pounds. [Strafford's Letters, vol. ii. p. 172.] In consequence of that report he received license to hold other preferments, to the annual value of £100 in the King's books, in commendam, upon condition of residing on his bishopric. [Todd's Ware.] He died on April 30, 1638, and was buried at Clounish, in the County of Monaghan. See some particulars related of him, in the Life of Bishop Spottiswoode, p. 144, &c.

1638. ROBERT SIBTHORP, B. D. an Englishman, Treasurer of Killaloe, and Prebendary of Maynooth, in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, succeeded by King's Letter dated June 19, with permission to hold his Treasurership in commendam; and was consecrated in St. Patrick's, Dublin, on November 14. Lord Strafford speaks of him as an honest and able man. In 1642 he was translated to Limerick.

1660 $\frac{1}{2}$. SAMUEL PULLEIN, or PULLEN, D. D. an Englishman, Chancellor of Cashel and Dean of Clonfert, was advanced to the archbishopric of Tuam, at the Restoration of King Charles II. and held this see in commendam. His patent is dated January 19, 1660 $\frac{1}{2}$; he was consecrated in St. Patrick's, Dublin, in company with the other eleven prelates, on the 27th of the same month.

From this time till the year 1742, the Bishops of Kilfenora will be found in the series of Archbishops of Tuam.

From 1742 to 1752, JOHN WHITCOMBE, Bishop of Clonfert, held this see in commendam. Finally, in 1752, it was annexed to that of Killaloe; and its prelates will be found among those of that see, down to the present time.

DEAN AND CHAPTER.

Little is now known respecting the foundation of the Chapter of Kilfenora, or the number of its original members. It is probable that this Cathedral, like others, received its constitution of a Dean and Canons about the end of the twelfth, or beginning of the thirteenth century. A Dean and Archdeacon are mentioned at the year 1245, and the Dean and Chapter in 1273. [Prynne's Records, vol. ii. p. 857; and vol. iii. p. 129.] In 1265 we find the "Canons" obtaining the King's leave to elect their Bishop.

Bishop Adams, in 1615, reported to the Regal Visitors, that the Chapter consisted of a Dean, Chantor, Chancellor, Treasurer, Archdeacon, and six Prebendaries; all of whom received "Canons' Portions" out of the Economy Fund. He names two prebends, Killarly and Disert Breachan. [Dr. Todd's MS. Ware.]

SEAL.

A seal of the Dean and Chapter is engraved in Harris' Ware (at the diocese of Tuam), p. 601; it is without date: it represents our Saviour bound to a pillar and scourged; and bears the motto LIVORE EJUS; and the inscription, SIG. CAPIT. ECCL. CATH. STI. FECKNANI FENEBOREN. This seal, which had long been in private hands, was purchased a few years ago by Bishop Mant, while holding the sees of Killaloe and Kilfenora.

1632. NEPTUNE BLOOD (ordained Priest March 18, 1622); collated Nov. 4; installed next day. [Reg. Vis.] Bishop Ryder, in 1622, mentions as one of his clergy, "Neptune Blood, Student in the College of Dublin, a good scholar, and reads the Irish tongue." He was presented to the rectory of Youghal-Arra in that year; but was dispensed with, pro quinquennio, that he might prosecute his academical studies. On March 24, 1642-3, he appears to have been presented by the Crown to some dignity or office in the Cathedral Church of Cork. [Vide Lib. Mun. Hib. which omits to name the dignity.]

1643? ROBERT BORTHE, or BARTHE, appears to have succeeded Blood. The dignity was vacant, by his death, in 1669. [Reg. Tuam.]
